FACTOR CASE BRANDED HOAX

BUSINESS GAINS PROOF IS CITED BY PRESIDENT

He Points to Charts on Price Index.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—For the first time since he began to grapple with the depression President Roosevelt today confidently offered evidence that better times were on the way.

On his desk in the oval executive office lay charts with their telltale wandering red, blue and black lines. Such charts have caused American business men to moan during the last three years. But today they were the cause for a typical Roosevelt grin.

Shows Price Index Record.

The President picked up the first chart. It showed, he explained, the rise and fall of the wholesale price index since 1914. Then he pointed out the two lines that followed in general the contours of the main line. They indicated the fluctuations of the wholesale prices of general manufactures and of farm products. Back in 1920, the presidential finger pointed out, both lines were unanimous in slumping discouragingly.

Then they picked up courage and began to climb. In 1928 and 1929 they reached dizzy heights. But farm products were the more ambitious and climbed the higher of the two. Then came the toboggan. The slide following 1929 was precipitous, and the same farm products line that had mounted so bravely was the one that tumbled the farthest. Again the President traced it out and showed how the commodities produced by agriculture had literally "dropped off the bottom of the paper."

Points to Climbing Lines.

Then he indicated happily the climbing lines for the last two months, and indicated furthermore as an excellent sign the faster climb of the farm products price index.

It wasn't his idea that a two months' gain was a sure sign of cure, but it was his idea that it showed a definite trend for the better. And he regarded as particularly favorable the definite upturn in farm prices. It indicated, he asserted, the laying of a solid foundation for a return to better days.

It indicated the reappearance of a farm purchasing power that had virtually disappeared. If it continued at its present rate it would eventually meet the more slowly rising line of manufacturers' prices and thus bring the farmer back to a parity between products sold and products bought.

Turns to Production Data.

Then the President picked up the other chart which showed the comparative fluctuations between production and employment. The two lines traveled pretty well together until the 1929 boom, when production shot far above the level of men at work. Following 1929 both came down pretty well together.

The last two months have seen both lines turn up again. That caused a presidential smile. But once more production has started to outstrip employment, and that brought forth a presidential warning that production must not be increased faster than purchasing power is restored through reëmployment.

SPEED CODES DRAFTING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—Several industries, racing to make as much hay as possible before an expensive federal control descends on them, are likely to pile up surpluses big enough to threaten a fresh collapse of employment, it was reported to President Roosevelt today.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator for the industrial control administration, conceding that at least in the cotton textile industry this was true, indicated that there was nothing he could do about it, seemingly, but he issued a plea for industrialists to keep production within bounds, and to raise wages.

The President took a more forceful view of the situation, ordered the industrial control administration to speed up drafting of codes, and began study of means to check the tendency toward over production pending the adoption of the several codes.

The business charts showing lines of production in practically all industries rising sharply are read by the President and Gen. Johnson with some trepidation, although in other quar-

BRITISH CHARGE PLOT TO FOIL EXTRADITION

Demand U. S. Seize Missing Man.

Convinced that the kidnaping of John [Jake the Barber] Factor was a hoax arranged by connivance of the millionaire speculator and his friends to enable him to escape extradition to England, Lewis Bernays, British consul here, served a demand yesterday on federal authorities to capture Factor and lodge him in jail. Factor is charged with having swindled a host of British investors out of $7,000,000.

Mr. Bernays and the British crown attorney, Franklin R. Overmyer, who have been striving for two years to have Factor extradited, delivered their complaint of the alleged hoax to Melvin Purvis, chief of the United States bureau of investigation here. They said they were convinced that Factor was in flight to Mexico and, recalling a bit of Factor history, added that the alleged kidnaping of Factor's son, Jerome, last April was merely a framed up prelude to the present job.

"Factor Note" Called Fake.

Adding a touch of color to the whole bizarre case, the Associated Press, in a dispatch from Eufaula, Okla., last night reported discovery in the street there of a cardboard box containing a note purporting to be from Factor in which he pleaded for deliverance from "Capone henchmen" who were taking him to Cuba. The fictitious character of the Oklahoma note, Chicago authorities said, was clearly revealed by the signature, "Jake the Barber," a nickname Factor is known to detest above all others.

Regardless of such incidents as the finding of the Oklahoma note and reported demands for ransom of $75,000 to $250,000 for Factor, Inspector Purvis of the bureau of investigation was holding fast to the theory that Factor was indeed in flight and had a suspicion that Chicago's No. 1 public enemy, Murray Humphries, might be with him. Federal agents and police of all Texas border cities and gulf ports were instructed to be on the watch for the pair, riding in a roadster.

Humphries Also in Trouble.

Humphries, the federal agents noted, has legal troubles as bothersome as Factor's, having been indicted on June 27 on charges of evading $23,190 of federal income taxes, a charge on which a number of his associates have already been convicted and imprisoned.

Humphries, reputed successor to Al Capone, and Sam Hunt, "golf bag gunman" of the Capone gang, were active in supposed efforts to procure Jerome's freedom during his alleged eight days' captivity between last April 15 and 23.

Sees Ruse to Dodge Court.

"The reason for a frame-up in the boy's case is readily discernible," said Mr. Overmyer. "We suspected it to be a fraud at the time, but said nothing for fear of playing into the hands of Factor.

"In accordance with the stipulations of his $50,000 bond, Factor was to have appeared before the United States Supreme court on April 15. He was aware, as well as we, that once he appeared in the District of Columbia he would be liable to arrest, regardless of the bond, and would have to take his chances before a District of Columbia court, which might be less favorably disposed than the Chicago courts had been. Therefore the kidnaping of Jerome, an occurrence his lawyers used effectively in explaining his failure to appear.

"We raised no objection to his nonappearance, lest Factor use the opportunity to cry persecution and thus try to curry sympathy of the court and sway public opinion his way. We hardly expected he would have the audacity to follow up that hoax with a bigger one."

Recall Mystery Activities.

Mr. Overmyer said he and the British consul had carefully considered all phases of Factor's disappearance before complaining to federal authorities. They were particularly impressed, he said, by the failure to report the kidnapings to police in either case and the mysterious activity of Factor's gangster friends in the case of the son's disappearance.

After much discussion, Overmyer added, the conclusion was reached that Factor was bound for the Mexican border. He was convinced that Mexico was the goal of Factor's flight, he said, because he had information that the former Halsted street barber once entered the United States that way.

Father's Back Broken by Dry, Son Charges

Burlington, Ia., July 7.—[Special.]—Charging extreme and unwarranted mistreatment of his father, Steiner Wilder, 72, whose back was broken in a scuffle with federal prohibition agents during a raid on his home June 22, Byron Wilder today announced that he would bring civil action against the raiders.

The older Wilder, who is lying partially paralyzed in Burlington hospital, has been arraigned on a minor liquor charge by United States Commissioner Walter W. Price. A small amount of moonshine whisky was found in the home.

The younger Wilder is in jail on a charge of violating the dry law. He will be released July 16.

Wilder's complaint will charge that Prohibition Agent F. L. Lorey, a 200 pound man, seized his father, who is of a frail build, and fell on him while trying to force him onto the sidewalk in front of the home.

Charges Attack on Wife.

Wilder claimed that his father attempted to drive off the dry raider when his daughter-in-law, young Wilder's wife, screamed that she had been mistreated by one of the raiders.

When questioned Lorey expressed regret over the accident, but denied that he had been unnecessarily rough.

"Wilder started slapping me and resisting arrest," Lorey said, "and I merely grabbed his wrists to quiet him."

Lorey was accompanied on the raid by Federal Agent Orval Brock and Police Captain R. E. Goodman, all of Burlington. In reporting the case to Commissioner Price, Goodman declared that Lorey had merely done what was necessary to quiet the old man. He branded the daughter-in-law's mistreatment story as a deliberate "frame up" in an attempt to quiet any liquor charge.

Dry Slayer Gets Continuance.

Oskaloosa, Ia., July 7.—[Special.]—Chief of Police Howard Allgood was arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. E. Bartley today on a second degree murder charge in connection with the slaying of Gerald Blackwood, 28, of Eddyville. Blackwood was fatally shot during a raid on a still on an island in the Des Moines river on the night of June 16.

The case was postponed until July 21 at the request of Arlo W. Palmer, county attorney, when a witness subpoenaed by the state failed to appear.

Murder Charges Filed.

Omaha, Neb., July 7.—(AP)—County Attorney Henry Beal announced after an inquest today that first degree murder charges will be filed against Sebastiano Vinciquerra and Allen Emmons, both of Omaha, in connection with the slaying here last Monday night of Earl C. Haning, former Nebraska prohibition agent.

BOW BELLS AGAIN RING; RESTORED BY SELFRIDGE

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 7.—The Bow bells, the world's most famous peal, rang out again today, restored after a silence of nearly six years.

The bells were rededicated by the Archbishop of Canterbury who, standing below the tower of St. Mary Le Bow, was handed the rope of the great tenor bell—the great bell of the Bow—by H. Gordon Selfridge, former Chicagoan, who defrayed the cost of restoration.

The archbishop said he hoped still more children of England would be educated in old nursery tales, and it would "be a woeful thing for future generations if they are not. Every English child properly educated knows of the Bow bells, familiar to Londoners for many centuries."

Shoots Mate She Finds with 'Other Woman'

Ersel B. Robinson, 43 years old, a court reporter, was shot in the chest last night by his estranged wife, Eugenie, 38, also a court reporter, when she found him in an apartment at 1738 Juneway terrace with another woman, Mrs. Catherine Stendahl, 23. Mrs. Stendahl, who is separated from her husband, occupies the apartment with Alice Robinson, 18, a daughter of Robinson by his first wife. Mrs. Robinson is his second wife.

Earlier, Mrs. Robinson, who lives at 1523 East 69th street, had telephoned Robinson at his home at 1600 Jonquil terrace for an appointment to discuss their marital status. He refused a meeting. Then he went to the home shared by his daughter and Mrs. Stendahl and had dinner. Not long afterward Mrs. Robonson appeared, smashed in a glass door, and scuffled with her husband. She shot him during the fight. All this time Mrs. Stendahl was hiding behind a locked door where she had taken refuge on Mrs. Robinson's appearance. The daughter appeared shortly after the shooting.

Mrs. Stendahl in a statement to police said she and Robinson "were keeping company" and that he had promised to marry her as soon as he could divorce Eugenie. She has known him since last August, she said. Mrs. Robinson said she wasn't jealous and didn't know why she shot her husband. She called on him, she asserted, to get some money and talk about a divorce or reconciliation. She was ordered held.

Bailey was put under observation.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Listlessly, almost impatiently, Joseph W. Harriman sat in federal court today and heard an expert describe him as "mentally incompetent."

So complete has been the disintegration of the banker's mind, Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe told Judge Francis G. Caffey, that he is unable to grasp the import of the criminal charges against him.

It would be impossible for him to give coherent and rational assistance to his attorneys in preparing a defense to the charge that he falsified the books of the bank he founded and headed, according to Dr. Jelliffe.

Dr. Jelliffe, a specialist in mental and nervous diseases connected with Columbia and Fordham universities, was a witness years ago for Harry K. Thaw.

Weeps at One Stage.

Only once during the day-long discussion of the deterioration of his mind did the former president of the Harriman National bank show any visible emotion. That was at a mention of the death of his son, Alan, in an automobile accident five years ago. Then he sobbed convulsively and his head fell forward.

Ignoring the emotional storm that seemed to be sweeping over his patient, Dr. Jelliffe, a stout bespectacled man whose hearing is supplemented by mechanical means, went on with his dissertation on Mr. Harriman's mental condition.

"He was not certain about dates," said the physician. "He would always say 'That was before or after my boy died.' He more or less dated everything from that. He told me his son was a young man, recently married, and with two small children. He had been in an automobile accident and sustained injuries which doctors said were trifling. Then suddenly, he told me, some one called him on the telephone and told him abruptly that his boy was dead. He could not speak of it without losing emotional control."

Donovan Questions Witness.

"What do you mean by that?" inquired Col. William J. Donovan, chief of Mr. Harriman's array of counsel.

"Whenever the death is mentioned he trembles strongly, his face gets red, the tears flow, he perspires, and he seems to have no control."

It is the contention of the defense attorneys that Mr. Harriman's mind has been so weakened by disease, anxiety, and alcohol that it is impossible to obtain his coöperation in preparing a defense. They ask that Judge Caffey spare them and their client the ordeal of a criminal trial.

At first Judge Caffey ruled that he would submit the question of Mr. Harriman's mental condition to a jury. Today, however, he said, study of the case had convinced him it was too complicated a matter for a jury to grasp. Therefore, he declared, he would decide the matter for himself after hearing testimony. He asked, however, that the defendant and his family consent to Mr. Harriman's commitment to an institution for observation in the event that the evidence on his condition is inconclusive.

Confers with Mrs. Harriman.

Col. Donovan asked for a recess, explaining that Mrs. Harriman's deafness made it impossible for her to hear a word of what was being said in the courtroom. After a few minutes Col. Donovan and Mrs. Harriman returned to their places at the counsel table.

"Mrs. Harriman asked me to say to the court," said Col. Donovan, "that she does not want her personal feelings to stand in the way. If your honor should feel that it would be advisable to have Mr. Harriman placed in an institution for observation she would not allow her feelings to interfere. She asks, however—though not as a condition of

Flyer Lost 23 Days at Arctic Post.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—The United States coast guard cutter Northland was ordered to Anadyr, or Anadir, Siberia, today to pick up Jimmie Mattern, American round the world flyer, who has been missing since June 14.

A five word message sent by the youthful aviator to Moscow told the world that he is safe in an isolated and sparsely settled district in eastern Siberia.

"Safe at Anadyr, Chukotka, Siberia. Jimmie Mattern," said the message.

The message was dated at the town of Bocharova. The sending time was 11 p. m., July 5. The brief dispatch set into motion at once plans for bringing home the 28 year old Texan, who had left New York on June 3 on an ambitious attempt to be the first man to fly around the world alone and to beat the record set in 1931 by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty of 8 day 15 hours and 51 minutes.

Mattern dropped out of sight on June 14 when he took off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, for Nome, Alaska, whence he planned to head down the home stretch of his long flight.

Anadyr is a trading post along the route which Mattern had mapped from Khabarovsk to Nome. It is situated on the Anadyr river, north of the Kamchatka peninsula, in northeastern Siberia, near the Bering sea.

Orders Action at Once.

The news of Mattern's safety reached Washington early today. Rear Admiral H. G. Hamlet, familiar with that stretch of sea on the edge of which the flyer came down, wirelessed the cutter Northland at once. The Northland has been combing the Alaskan waters for Mattern ever since he was reported missing.

Rear Admiral Hamlet expected the commander of the Northland to communicate with the aviator in the Siberian village. He ordered the commander to arrange with soviet authorities to transfer the aviator to the Northland as soon as it could reach whatever designation the Russian officials suggested. The Northland yesterday was about 300 miles from Anadyr.

Mattern, who previously tried to circle the globe with Bennett Griffin—a flight which ended when their plane cracked up in a Russian peat bog—was unreported on his last flight longer than any other long distance flyer. Due to the amount of time elapsed, the aviator may have been forced down at some distance from a populated area and compelled to make a laborious trek to the nearest village.

Beset by Bad Luck.

The flyer had been beset by bad luck on his flight time after time. His first landing was not a scheduled stop. Battered by winds on his trans-Atlantic hop, he came down at Jomfruland, a rocky island 70 miles from Oslo, Norway.

Eighteen hours then slipped by before gas could be obtained. He flew to Oslo, then hastened to Moscow; rested briefly, and hopped off for Omsk, Siberia. In Siberia his real troubles began.

He was forced down at Prokopievsk on June 7 because of illness from gas fumes. He flew to Belovo to have his ship Century of Progress repaired. He then went to Krasnoyarsk. Mattern landed at Byelaya on June 9 and the next day reached Khabarovsk, which was to have been his first scheduled stop beyond Omsk.

Balked by Storm.

The aviator waited at Khabarovsk two days to get his plane in shape for the perilous flight over the icy waters of the Bering sea. He hopped off for Nome on June 12, but ran into a storm and returned to Khabarovsk. Another day went by before he started out again, this time to become lost to the world until today.

Message Sent Wednesday.

"Safe at Anadir, Chukotka, Siberia. Jimmie Mattern."

The message was dated at the town of Bocharova. The sending time was 11 p. m., July 5.

Anadir, or Anadyr, Chukotka peninsula, is situated north of the Kamchatka peninsula. Capt. Roald Amundsen reached there in 1920 after being lost more than a year and a half in the arctic regions on one of his dashes to the north pole.

Immediately upon receipt of Mattern's message, official circles moved to send assistance, ordering four eastern provinces to take the necessary steps to verify the report of his presence at Anadyr and to do everything necessary to aid in the further progress of his flight if it is found his plane can still continue.

TO CONTINUE FLIGHT

Jimmy Matterns, world solo flyer, will continue his flight and complete his journey to Chicago. This was announced last evening by H. R. Jameson, one of Mattern's Chicago sponsors, a few hours after he had received a cablegram from Moscow announcing that the aviator was safe in the village of Anadyr on the Chukotka peninsula in northern Siberia.

Upon receiving the message Mr. Jameson, who is an official of the Arrow Mills corporation, cabled a reply in which he asked for full details of the flyer's condition and that of his plane. Mr. Jameson also radioed to a rescue plane crew now at Nome, Alaska, to stand in readiness to fly to the aid of Mattern.

Jameson and H. R. Mills, secretary of the Mills Novelty company, are the backers of Mattern's flight. Mr. Mills, who was cruising on Lake Michigan in his yacht, did not know of Mattern's cablegram unless he picked up radio broadcasts of the news.

Mother Learns the News.

In Freeport, Ill., yesterday Mattern's mother, Mrs. Caroline Mattern, exclaimed: "Thank God for that," when she was told that her son was alive. After a few tears of thankfulness she said:

"I was confident all the while that Jimmy would turn up in some remote place. He is too resourceful not to be able to battle the elements safely. Now I'm the happiest woman in the world."

Mattern's wife is in Walla Walla, Wash.

FLOOD SWEEPS CANYON; FEAR TEN ARE DEAD

Morrison, Colo., July 7.—[Special.]—Trapped by a twenty foot wall of water which swept with terrifying suddenness through Bear Creek cañon today, at least ten persons were swept to their deaths.

Automobiles were turned into twisted masses of wreckage, cabins were destroyed, and miles of mountain highway was blotted out by the force of the onrushing water, which followed a cloudburst.

Two bodies had been recovered tonight by searchers who made their way through the storm swept cañon. One was tentatively identified as that of Mrs. Vincent Soderman of Denver. It is believed her daughter, Eunice, 4, drowned with her.

The other body was that of a young man about 20 years old.

Mr. Soderman was rescued. With them in their automobile, overturned by the water, were Mrs. Liberty Jackson, 37, Los Angeles, and her son, Billy, 11, both rescued.

Because of the hundreds of transients and tourists camping out in the cañon it may be some days before the exact death toll of the storm is known.

Three other persons believed drowned are Jack Burton, 50, of Los Angeles, whose wife was killed in the California earthquake last fall, and Lee and Buddy Conde of Denver.

They were in a hotdog stand at Starbuck and were swept downstream with the wreckage.

TRAFFIC HIGHER ON GREAT LAKES THAN LAST YEAR

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 7.—[Special.]—The business barometer of the great lakes is steadily rising for the 1933 season and is almost twice as high as it was a year ago, according to the statistical report on lake commerce issued at the St. Mary's Falls canal here today.

Total freight movements to July 1 came within 100,000 tons of doubling the total freight of the corresponding period last year. On July 1 a total of 7,769,196 tons had passed through the ship canal, compared with 3,925,172 tons up to July last year.

Porter Shot After Bandits Menace 3 in Resturant

Harold Powell, 22 years old, a porter, was shot through the left lung last night by one of two bandits during a robbery of the South-Way restaurant and saloon, 8116 Stony Island avenue. The bandits had taken $15 from the till and were menacing Charles Hamilton, the owner, several patrons, and two employés when Powell entered through a rear door. He saw the robbers and tried to run. One of them fired. Powell was taken to the Jackson Park hospital in a serious condition.

Paraguayans Check Three Bolivian Thrusts; Kill 1,500

ASUNCION, Paraguay, July 7.—(AP)—An official communique issued tonight said a new Bolivian assault on Fort Nanawa in the Gran Chaco failed and that smaller attacks at Gondra and Zenteno were repulsed by Paraguayan troops. The bulletin said 1,500 Bolivian troops were slain and 32 were captured.

Civil War Vet Dies at 110; Never Applied for Pension

SIX PERIL THEIR LIVES TRYING TO RETRIEVE A CHILD'S PLAYTHING

Quincy, Ill., July 7.—(AP)—Six persons today almost lost their lives here in a vain attempt to retrieve a child's plaything, an automobile horn which had fallen into an abandoned gas filled cistern.

Descending, one after another, into the 15 foot cistern, the six persons were overcome by monoxide gas. Firemen finally lifted their unconscious bodies feet first from the pit by looping ropes around the legs.

Eugene Klingsmith, 11, playing in the yard of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Gilberg Fisher, with whom he lives, dropped the horn down the cistern. He slid down after it.

Fisher saw the boy's body lying on the floor of the cistern and he went to his rescue. Mrs. Fisher followed. Both were overcome.

Police and firemen were summoned. Carl Bowman entered the hole and was unconscious in a few moments. Herb Sanders and Jack White, firemen, donned gas masks and descended. The masks proved to be ineffective and both were overcome.

Fire Chief George Simmons then ordered looped ropes attached to long poles, by this method the six victims were dragged out and taken to a hospital.

The firemen were released after oxygen treatment. Hospital attaches said the other four were not seriously ill.

RUTH NICHOLS ASKS FAITH IN WOMEN PILOTS

Miss Ruth Nichols, New York flyer, last night made a plea to women in general for confidence in women pilots. She spoke at a dinner at the Palmer House that terminated the two day convention of the Women's National Aeronautical association.

Miss Nichols provided a strong argument for her contention that women flyers are competent when she told how she was permitted to pilot a big transport ship from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City on her way to Chicago.

"Women haven't enough confidence in women," she told her audience of women flyers, women air enthusiasts, and flying men. "This organization will be doing a real service if it will encourage the woman traveler to feel she is safe with a woman pilot. That's the way to create jobs for women in aviation."

JUDGE REFUSES OUTLAW UNION'S INJUNCTION PLEA

Judge Denis E. Sullivan yesterday refused to issue an injunction sought by officials of the outlaw teamsters' union to restrain State's Attorney Courtney and police from interfering with their activities. He referred the case to a master in chancery.

Judge Sullivan ruled on the bill for injunction after he had received a reply on behalf of the state's attorney, charging that the teamsters' organization is controlled by gangsters. It was drafted by Assistant State's Attorneys Hayden N. Bell and Robert Cushman.

The reply said the petitioners "fraudulently and with the aid of violence and intimidation seized positions on the executive board of the union," and that they have conspired with the gang controlled Trucking and Teaming exchange [T. N. T.] to dictate to various industries what men they shall employ and at what terms.

TIE UP WITH U. S. IN PRICE RAISING! HULL TO PARLEY

Plans to Stress Need in Framing New Program.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—Having saved the world economic conference, as he believes, from untimely dissolution, Secretary of State Cordell Hull set to work today preparing a new program of proposals to lay before the body if it actually survives.

Upon the character of these proposals the chairman of the American delegation was in communication with President Roosevelt several times today. Although the proposals are in a nebulous state, the understanding is that they will give greater prominence than before to the desirability of all nations following the American example in raising commodity prices by artificial means for the purpose of restoring the purchasing power of the consumer.

Hull Talks With Delegations.

Mr. Hull also began discussions with the British, Scandinavian and other delegations which supported the American position of seeking a united front on the program to be considered. It was suggested in these talks that tariff reduction and other economic measures might be agreed upon with the proviso that they shall go into effect when permanent stabilization of currencies is achieved.

These negotiations all pointed in the direction of endeavors to obtain almost anything that will pass for justification of keeping the conference alive. It is apparent that Secretary Hull will be satisfied with any agreements no matter how general or how loaded down they are with reservations.

In the view of the secretary of state, the conference must be kept alive and some sort of agreements reached, or else another international conference will not be held for decades, and the nations will become even more distrustful of each other than they are now. The failure of this conference, Mr. Hull feels, would also sound the death knell of the disarmament conference and give the whole armament reduction movement a setback for many years.

Mr. Hull refused to become discouraged by the decision of the economic subcommission today that tariff reduction agreements could not be discussed in the absence of currency stabilization agreements. He is confident he comraands a majority of the members of the steering committee which, he believes, will overrule the action of the subcommission at a meeting on Monday and decree a discussion of virtually every subject on the original agenda.

Unworried by Drop in Dollar.

He sees no reason why discussions of all monetary and economic questions should not continue with France and other gold bloc nations, recording reservations if they choose.

Even the sensational weakening of the dollar today did not impress Mr. Hull as likely to embarrass him in getting some sort of an agreement out of the parley. He thinks it should impel all delegations to summon all possible determination to solve the problems confronting the world. As he views it, the fall of the dollar cannot continue indefinitely, and it is to the interest of all nations to end it in a reasonable time. They way to end it is to carry on the conference to a successful conclusion, he contends.

FRANCE IS BEWILDERED

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—With the fate of the economic conference apparently hanging in the balance, the ranks of the gold nations tonight seemed as confused as all the other delegations, and it began to appear that the real key to the situation is the course of the dollar's fluctuations.

Two contradictory signs appeared from the day's muddle. They involve continuing the work of the monetary commission. The French found the gold bloc augmented by all European nations except Great Britain, the Scandinavian group, and Portugal, and that the division among the members of the steering committee participating in the vote showed the two camps about equally strong in this key committee.

Despite this, the French attitude tonight was definitely less intransigeant than yesterday. While continuing to declare that it is impossible for France to take any decision on monetary matters, Georges Bonnet, minister of finance, admitted that the speechmaking phase of the conference might go on. He said, with considerable disgust, that personally he had not come here to make speeches. Nevertheless, he became somewhat vague about the date of his own departure, which yesterday he definitely announced for early next week.

French Are Worried.

The steady and dizzy downward progress of the dollar appears to have done more than anything else to undermine the firm decision of the gold bloc to leave or sabotage the conference. In some French circles hope is entertained that the bottom is nearly reached and that President Roosevelt, instead of balking at stabilization, may be shouting for help in a week or so to keep dollars from dropping lower than he desires.

The French also are very worried for fear that the pound will begin to follow the dollar, in which case the position of the gold bloc will again become critical. Thus, the French are divided between hope and fear, but are beginning to feel that in any case isolation will not help them.

Paradoxically, the view is held by some objective observers, who are particularly familiar with the position of the gold bloc, that while the conference momentarily is in the middle of chaos, a general agreement on its underlying objectives may be nearer than at any time since its start.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—In spite of the gloomy prognosis of the European gold bloc doctors, the world economic conference today continued to revive and as a result of hard pulmotor work by the Americans and British, the bloom of health tonight had returned to its cheek. It is epected to resume work in full vigor on Monday.

The contrast between yesterday and today was marked. Yesterday the lobbies hummed with the atmosphere of a crisis. Today an air of calm hung over the Geological museum, conference headquarters.

Work on New Agenda.

In all committee rooms, however, committees, subcommittees and subsubcommittees were working hard in an effort to carry out instructions of the conference steering committee. They were told to submit reports Monday as to what sort of work, in their opinion, could be usefully carried on in view of the attitude of the gold countries in trying to bar monetary problems from discussion while America persists in opposition to immediate temporary stabilization of exchanges.

These discussions were carried on while the dollar was slumping from hour to hour, but in spite of this the day proved a Waterloo for the gold army. The principal discussion took place in the first subcommittee—the one on immediate measures of financial reconstruction—of the monetary commission.

In this session, Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, boldly demanded that the commission keep up the attack on monetary problems despite the attitude of France and other gold standard countries. He declared that various items on the program of the commission were so intimately interrelated that none could be discussed without involving the others.

Bonnet Expresses Surprise.

Then came Georges Bonnet, French finance minister, chief protagonist of the gold standard, who expressed surprise at Chamberlain's attitude. Bonnet said acidly that he thought it a direct contradiction of the resolution passed by the steering committee last night, which took cognizance of the position of the gold countries—France, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, and Poland.

He said that France wished for nothing revolutionary or drastic, but merely wanted measures adopted to check currency speculation and wild fluctuation, and to promote an understanding between the central banks. With increasing acidity the French finance chief said he sympathized with the troubles of the United States and had no desire to increase them, but that France had tasted the bitter fruit of inflation and could not abandon its insistence on stabilization.

Couzens Replies to France.

In the afternoon session of the committee Senator James Couzens of Michigan, only Republican member of the American delegation, replied to Bonnet. The senator was equally acid. He welcomed Bonnet's friendly interest in the United States, but reminded the commission of the 30,000,000 unemployed whose woes the conference had been called upon to relieve.

"The conference must go on with the work for which it was summoned," Mr. Couzens exclaimed. "Before going off the gold standard the United States tried to make credit abundant and encouraged private enterprise, but found that that was not enough. The United States maintained the gold standard while other countries were depreciating their currencies and going off gold. America did not criticize these countries, although during all that period her unemployment was increasing.

"President Roosevelt, with the full approval of the American people, is trying to raise price levels, and from that purpose he will not be deviated."

After further discussion, in which several gold bloc adherents repeated Bonnet's arguments, a vote was taken. The result was that the British-American plan to proceed with all subjects carried by a vote of 25 to 15.

Fails to Win Compromise.

That the French leader realized he was defeated was evidenced by the effort he made privately to reach a compromise after the speech by Senator Couzens. He approached Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British treasury expert, and suggested that if the British would consent to put commercial indebtedness in the fore of the discussion, thus perhaps enabling the French to get out of commercial debts as they have avoided war debts, they would be willing to permit other subjects to be discussed. But Chamberlain refused to agree. The result is that the steering committee will be informed Monday that the monetary commission favors carrying on in full.

The American delegation was defeated a few hours earlier when the committee on commercial policy, a subordinate group of the economic commission, voted to exclude discussion of tariffs and quotas from the revised agenda. The committee approved a French demand by eight to seven voices. The American delegation though beaten temporarily, hoped to reverse this decision before the steering committee on Monday.

France and her gold allies flatly refused to discuss tariffs. They argued that they involved monetary questions.

ANADYR LINKED ASIA TO ALASKA IN EARLY TIMES

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, said today that Anadyr, where the missing flyer, Jimmie Mattern, turned up, was a trading post before Columbus discovered America and that through it Chinese goods found their way into what now is Alaska.

"Many years later," Stefansson said, "smoking came to the Eskimos through Anadyr. Tobacco from America went to China and, together with the little Chinese opium pipes, found its way across the strait.

"We have found these pipes in eastern Alaska, as far east as the Mackenzie river, indeed as much as 1,000 miles east of Bering strait."

ROOSEVELT MAY LEAVE GOLD BLOC OUT OF ENTENTE

Slate British, Scandinavia, So. America in Tieup

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—A proposal for the formation of a new economic entente among some of the leading nations of the world was under discussion today by President Roosevelt and his chief economic advisers.

This plan would allow the nations of the gold bloc, led by France, to go their own way, while the United States, joined by England, Canada, and other English dominions, the Scandinavian countries, Mexico, and all the South American nations, would proceed more or less together toward economic recovery. Although the proposal is in a nebulous state, and no direct assurances of participation from the other nations have been received, in the present discussions, it was considered that the group of countries might proceed in a united movement to raise prices and control production.

Basis for Tariff Agreement.

This is the plan upon which the United States now is well launched, although ours is a domestic program. The President is reported to feel that other nations might well adopt the same program, if they choose, paving the way in the future for a linking of the various economic systems through trade and tariff agreements.

In the beginning there would be no tieup between the financial setups of the various countries, no attempts to establish fixed rates of exchange or immediately to break down tariff protections. The American program for recovery would proceed independently.

Attending lengthy conferences at the White House today, at which the London economic conference and its agenda were under discussion, were Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, Bernard M. Baruch, New York capitalist; Acting Secretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson; Norman Davis, the President's roving ambassador-at-large, and Frederick Livesey, economic adviser to the state department.

Must Present Program.

The revival of the London conference, after it had been believed hopelessly dead, brought the President to the necessity of presenting some sort of program to take the place of the discussions of tariffs and monetary stabilizations, in which he would not surrender to the view of France.

Since Cordell Hull, secretary of state and leader of the American delegation, entered into an impassioned plea that the conference continue, and delegates from other nations supported Mr. Hull, the conference is on again, albeit on somewhat spindly legs.

So the President summoned his advisers and mulled with them over the agenda of the conference, digging out the proposal to lift world prices, and to curtail production.

The President considered that his own domestic program could well be adopted by as many nations of the world as were prepared for it, and from this his advisers carried on to the possibility of setting up a new trade entente.

FRENCH PREMIER TO SEE DUCE IN ORDER TO SETTLE DIFFERENCES

PARIS, July 7.—(AP)—Premier Daladier will go to Rome to sign the four-power pact July 24 and to have a private talk with Premier Mussolini in order to lay the basis for a settlement of differences which have marred relations between France and Italy since the world war.

As a result of the Italian premier's pact, in which Germany, France, Great Britain and Italy will join for peace, France is ready to form a two-power club with Mussolini to show the Balkans how to keep out of war. It it generally conceded that the way is now open for settling Italy's grievances against France. Italy entered the war under a series of promises in the London treaty of 1915, some of which were not fulfilled.

More important, it is generally agreed, is the problem of keeping peace in the Balkans. Allied with France are the little entente nations, Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania, and Poland. Italy has strong influence in Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, and has established good relations with Germany. French officials say the probable course of the government will be to set up a close economic system to unite commercially the three French friends of the little entente and Italy's so-called protégées, Austria and Hungary.

LINDY MAY HOP TODAY ON FIRST LEG OF HIS TRIP

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh may take off tomorow on a flight to Halifax, N. S., the first leg of their projected aerial survey of possible air lines over Greenland on a northern route to Europe.

Lindbergh spent most of today at the plant of the Edo Aircraft corporation, College Point, where the monoplane is being tuned up for the trip. He was accompanied by Harold Gatty, round the world navigator, who aided him in checking instruments and installing a drift indicator. Mrs. Lindbergh was with them.

From Halifax the Lindberghs are expected to fly to St. Johns, N. F., and then to Cartwright, Labrador.

POLICEMAN MUST STAND TRIAL ON BEATING CHARGE

Judge Acts After Hearing of Victim's Injuries.

Municipal Judge Leon Edelman concluded the hearing of a disorderly conduct trial yesterday with the following statement:

"I see no reason why the defendant should have been arrested. The brutality of the policeman was uncalled for and men like him do not belong on the police force. I recommend that he be taken before the trial board."

The policeman was Anthony Bradtke of the West North avenue station. The defendant was Joseph J. Merkel, 11712 Lowe avenue, a collector for the Chicago Title and Trust company, who is 30 years old, married, and the father of two children. His teeth were loosened, his face was bruised, and there was a swelling on his neck after he was arrested, according to a physician's statement. Merkel said the policeman beat him with fists and revolver.

Says Merkel Shouted Curse.

"I was driving south in Western avenue on May 29, about 6 o'clock in the evening," Policeman Bradtke testified. "The defendant passed me in an automobile and he shouted a curse at me. I drove after him and ordered him to pull in to the curb. He looked like a suspicious character to me. He would not get out of the automobile, so I told him to drive to the nearest police station and I would follow. He swung up a side street and through an alley, trying to get away from me. When I overtook him he swung at me and tried to fight. I overpowered him and sent him to the station with a squad car that arrived just then."

William Fullen, 2109 West North avenue, testified for the policeman to the effect that he saw Merkel strike Policeman Bradtke in the chest. The lockup keeper of the Shakespeare avenue station testified that Merkel was bleeding when brought to the station and that Merkel said he had had "a couple of drinks." That was all the evidence offered against Merkel.

Believed Policeman a Robber.

"I was collecting rents and had $315 of the company's money on me at the time," Merkel testified in his own behalf. "I had been robbed a month previously, and when Policeman Bradtke, who was in civilian clothes, put a revolver to my head as I was driving my car, I naturally thought he was a robber. I hadn't said a word to him or to any one and I was driving along, minding my own business.

"I stepped on the gas, but he overtook me in his car and forced me to the curb. He said he was a policeman and I asked him to show me his star. He called me a vile name and said he would show me plenty of stars. A gas station attendant came up to inquire what was wrong. The policeman told him to call the station. He pointed to a police call box twenty feet away and asked the policeman why he didn't use it. Bradtke then told me to drive to the station.

Tells Story of Beating.

"When he wouldn't use the police call box I was more afraid of him. I hid the company's money under the seat and then I drove into a coal yard, where there were men who would protect me from a robber. It was there that he hit me with his gun and his fists. The arrival of a police squad car saved me from a further beating. I drove to the station, and there $25 was taken from me and I was told I could go. I went to a doctor's office for treatment."

Paul J. Caske, 2642 North Artesian avenue, told of being arrested when he ran over to where Bradtke was beating Merkel. At the station he was told to "get to hell out of here," he said. Felix F. Bruchman, 2348 North Artesian avenue, said he saw Bradtke beat Merkel.

Capt. Frank Matchett, Bradtke's commanding officer, and Supervising Captain John Horan were in court. Capt. Matchett said Bradtke would be taken before the trial board.

Warrant for Park Policeman.

A warrant charging Policeman Ray Eddy of the Lincoln park police with assault and battery was issued yesterday by Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry in the South State street court.

Judge McGarry summoned the policeman to court, as a courtesy, before issuing the warrant, in which William Marsen, 835 Irving Park boulevard, alleged that Policeman Eddy struck him with a blackjack in a traffic argument.

Policeman Eddy acknowledged that he struck Marsen, but said that Marsen became abusive. In excusing his action Policeman Eddy said that he was crippled from a wound which he had received a year ago in a riot in Michigan avenue and was afraid to take chances of further violence.

He accepted service of the warrant and the case will be heard in a few days.

OIL PORTRAIT OF ALBERT FALL AS SECRETARY GONE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—A portrait in oils of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, whose own ventures in oil brought him notoriety, is still mysteriously missing from its accustomed place in the department of interior.

More than six months ago the portrait disappeared suddenly. Officials of the department were unable to state just exactly what had happened to it, except to suggest that perhaps it was taken down to be "cleaned."

Today, half a year later, they were even more completely in the dark as to what happened to it. W. B. Acker, department chief clerk, whose duty it is to take care of the building and furnishings, declared he had no idea what had become of the Fall painting.

There were those, however, who insisted that Mr. Fall's conviction and subsequent sentence to prison in connection with the notorious Teapot Dome oil scandals of the Harding administration had much to do with the removal of his portrait.

"Best of Friends"

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—William Powell, debonair screen actor and Carole Lombard, actress, are going to be divorced in Nevada on her complaint, Mrs. E. C. Peters, her mother, disclosed today. "They just decided all of a sudden that they couldn't agree," said Mrs. Peters. "They will remain the very best of friends in spite of the divorce."

No Divorce Talk

Hollywood, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Leaving town today for the week-end, Richard Dix, film actor, admitted through his secretary that he and Mrs. Dix, the former Winifred Coe, San Francisco society girl, had separated.

"There are no hard feelings," the actor said. "We talked it over and decided a separation was best. We enjoyed different things. A divorce was never discussed."

Mrs. Dix was understood to have returned to the home of her father, Winfield Scott Coe, retired San Francisco merchant. Her husband declined to say where he was going.

The couple married secretly at Yuma, Ariz., on Oct. 20, 1931. They have one child, a daughter.

AUTOIST KILLED, FAMILY OF FIVE HURT IN CRASH

Priest Badly Injured When Car Upsets.

Paul Richter, 26 years old, was killed last evening and five members of one family were injured, two of them critically, in a head-on collision between their automobiles at Milwaukee avenue and River road, south of Wheeling. Richter, whose home address is not known, was driving alone in a car police said was owned by A. W. Hilberg, 6744 South Morgan street, business agent for the International Engineers and Hoisters' union, for whom he worked occasionally as chauffeur.

The five persons in the other car who were injured were James Drymiller, 38 years old, of 916 Greenview avenue, Des Plaines; his wife, Loretta, 34, and their children, James Jr., 8; Gilbert, 5, and Jerry, 4.

Father and Son Severely Hurt.

Drymiller and the children were taken to Northwestern hospital and Mrs. Drymiller to Des Plaines hospital, both in Des Plaines. Drymiller and Gilbert were severely hurt. Richter was driving south and Drymiller north in Milwaukee avenue when the accident occurred. Richter, police said evidently tried to turn into River road, cutting ahead of Drymiller.

The Rev. M. J. Heeney, 48 years old, 3116 North Marmora avenue, pastor of St. Ferdinand's Roman Catholic church, was seriously injured yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding went off a road five miles north of Waukegan, crashed into a post, and overturned. Father Heeney and G. J. Anderson, 1112 Taylor street, who was only slightly injured, were on their way to Chicago after a short trip into Wisconsin.

Two Die When Train Hits Truck.

Two men were killed yesterday when the truck in which they were hauling a load of stock to Chicago was struck by the International limited of the Grand Trunk railroad at the Burnham avenue crossing near Lansing, Ill. They were identified as Robert E. Russell, 45 years old, and Ford Camblin, 55 years old, stock haulers of Morocco, Ind.

The crack passenger train, bound for Chicago at a speed of 60 miles an hour, demolished the truck, scattered ten hogs, three sheep, and three calves along the right of way, and carried the wreckage for three quarters of a mile.

Members of the train crew said Russell, the driver, apparently had not seen the train in time to stop. Engineer H. L. Vandergrift of Battle Creek told police he sounded his whistle half a mile from the crossing and again as he drew nearer.

An inquest into the deaths of Mrs. Lottie Solt, 45 years old, 6708 Constance avenue, and Victor Pandel, 19 years old, 6238 South Talman avenue, victims of an automobile crash early yesterday, was continued until July 15. The driver of the car, John Pandel, 45 years old, father of the dead youth, was in a critical condition yesterday at the Washington General hospital.

The deaths of Richter, Russell, and Camblin brought the Cook county motor toll for 1933 to 508.

CONSUL DENIES THREATS AGAINST ITALIAN ARMADA

Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general, yesterday denied reports that he had received letters threatening to "blow the Italian planes out of the lake" when the Balbo squadron lands in Chicago. Lieut. Make Mills of the police industrial squad said that if such letters had been received they doubtless were the work of cranks.

"We attach little importance to such things," Lieut. Mills said. "Every time a prominent Italian comes to town the consulate receives threatening letters."

As with all such events, a large detail of police will be on hand to guard the flyers and their ships.

Long Summer Nights Keep Balbo Awake.

BY AXEL THORSTEINSON.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 7.—Held by his judgment to take no risks with the weather, but impelled by his desire to get along with the Italian mass flight by stages from Orbetello, Italy, to A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, Gen. Italo Balbo ordered his men to stand ready early in the morning for a possible takeoff on the fourth lap to Cartwright, Labrador.

Weather reports today from the north Atlantic did not appear favorable, but late tonight the weather was calm here. Motorboats were to be ready at 2 a. m. to take the aviators to their seaplanes anchored and warmed up at Vatnagardar pier. Gen. Balbo expressed pleasure that all the motors of the 24 planes were in good shape.

"Everything has been wonderful here," he said, "except the bright summer nights, which keep me awake."

Sees More Air Visits.

The flyers spent a restful day and after lunch went on an excursion to Thingvalla, the plains in southwestern Iceland, where the parliament and courts of this thousand year old nation used to meet in the open.

A member of the Italian squadron told THE TRIBUNE that the flyers will not return from the United States to Italy by the northern route and added:

"But you may see other squadrons following ours, as the aim of Gen. Balbo is to keep the air fleet on the move the same as fleets of warships which travel from one country to another for training purposes."

The aviator declared that the squadron may stay in the United States a month, returning by way of the Azores.

Gen. Balbo today sent a message to Rome reiterating his determination to await favorable weather before attempting the hop to Labrador, which is considered even more dangerous than the flight Wednesday from Londonderry, Ireland. Fog, low hanging clouds and rain were encountered, but the entire squadron came through without a mishap.

Cartwright Is Ready.

The Iceland-Labrador stretch is the longest of the entire cruise, being 1,500 miles over water, an expanse of the north Atlantic which is susceptible to fogs and almost hidden icebergs. Trawlers are stationed along the course, and an emergency base called Italiahaab has been established near the southern tip of Greenland.

Little more than a week ago Sandwich Bay at Cartwright, Labrador, was reported free of ice. Two Italian submarines, the royal yacht Alice, a hired supply ship and the icebreaker Ungava raced there from Newfoundland. They have all in readiness to greet the squadron of 24 Savoia-Marchetti seaplanes on their first stop on the North American continent.

Today Gen. Balbo and his 95 airmen were luncheon guests on the Swedish-American liner Kungsholm which sailed from New York on June 28 with a galaxy of 500 notables and pleasure tourists to Iceland and the north Atlantic.

VOLPE, FACING DEPORTATION, IS BARRED BY ITALY

Anthony "Mops" Volpe, erstwhile florist, pal, and henchman of Al Capone and consistent public enemy, was perilously close yesterday to the dramatic distinction of becoming a man without a country.

The latest chapter in the three year fight the federal government has waged to deport Volpe as an undesirable alien was written by the Italian consul General Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio. Dr. Castruccio informed District Director George J. Harris of the immigration bureau, that he would refuse to issue a visa to Volpe for deportation to Italy on the grounds that the gangster lost his rights as an Italian citizen when he was naturalized in the United States.

Mr. Harris referred the matter to his chief in Washington, Commissioner of Immigration D. W. MacCormick. It was expected that Mr. MacCormick would seek a revocation of the Castruccio decision at the Italian embassy.

But should this fail, and Italy stood pat, Volpe would have an unusal status which, if it did not match that of Edward Everett Hale's hero, would make him undesirable in two countries, with the United States holding the bag.

Having no word from Washington last night, Mr. Harris and his associates cast about for a possible solution. They found one possible solution which may be utilized if Italy persists in washing its hands of the gangster.

Volpe was born in Argentina, of Italian parents. They took him to Italy, where he was naturalized. Should all else fail, the chances that the government will seek to send Volpe to South America were considered good.

But if neither Italy nor Argentina will have him, the question of Volpe's disposition remained unsolved last night. None could recall a similar situation.

Meanwhile the gangster remained at liberty under a $10,000 bond. He was reported to have sold his Halsted street flower shop to provide funds for the deportation battle. Volpe was naturalized in a state court in 1920. Two days later his papers were revoked because he had failed to mention previous arrests.

U. S. MAIL FRAUD INDICTMENT HITS BAINS AND FISHER

Exchanges of Securities Basis of Charges.

John Bain, head of a chain of twelve banks now defunct; his two sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, were indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud. Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, before whom the indictments were returned, fixed bond at $5,000 for each of the defendants.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, who took twenty witnesses before the grand jury, said that the offense charged consisted in the main of inducing investors through misrepresentation to exchange good securities for worthless securities of the Bain interests.

Say Exchanges Total Two Million.

The government charged that the Bain banks were loaded with approximately $2,000,000 worth of first, second, and third mortgages issued against real estate holdings controlled by the defendants. These, the government charged, were traded to clients of the banks in return for first mortgages on small homes.

Three Face State Prison Terms.

Three of the defendants named in the federal indictment—all except Robert A. Bain—face prison terms on state charges growing out of the crash of the twelve banks on June 9, 1931, with a loss to depositors of $13,000,000.

In the state cases Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber estimated that, in additio nto the $13,000,000 loss in deposits, the public lost approximately $30,000,000 through the sale of Bain banks' stocks, mortgages, and bonds.

JURORS ACQUIT BALL PLAYER IN DIVORCEE'S SUIT

She Asked Pay After Date, Boss Testifies.

A jury before Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy returned a verdict last night in favor of Harley Boss, first baseman for the Cleveland Indians, in the suit in which Miss Lillian Eloise Mitchell asked $50,000 damages from the ball player.

Miss Mitchell, a native of Winston-Salem, N. C., charged that on April 19 Boss attempted to rape her in his apartment in a Cleveland hotel, blackening her eye when she resisted his advances. He denied the charge and countered with the assertion that after he had taken her out to dinner she asked him for money, telling him that her time was "valuable."

The jury, of which William A. Butler, 1338 West 98th street, a clerk in the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, was foreman, took only two ballots in reaching a not guilty verdict, it was learned. The first ballot was 8 to 4 for acquittal.

No Criminal Charge Made.

Members of the jury said that they found discrepancies in Miss Mitchell's story of the alleged attack, and also that they were unfavorably impressed by the fact that she had failed to prefer any criminal charges against Boss in Cleveland.

Miss Mitchell, represented by Attorney Lloyd Faxon, won a default verdict of $10,000 before Judge Martin H. Finneran when Boss failed to enter an appearance in a previous suit. She agreed later to have this verdict set aside and to have a jury hear the case on its merits.

Tells of Date for Dinner.

Boss testified that he met Mrs. Marie Switzer, who introduced Miss Mitchell to him, in Washington in 1928, when he was up from the minor leagues for a tryout with the Washington Senators. On April 18 of this year, he said, she introduced Miss Mitchell to him in Cleveland and he invited Miss Mitchell to have dinner the next day with him and two other members of the Cleveland club.

"She sat on my knee in the car as we were driving to dinner," Boss testified. "We danced in my room after dinner and I embraced her. Everything was friendly. She told me she had been married and in trouble and divorced. She was selling magazines, she said, but without much success. She said she had no money.

"Then she said she was tired and wanted to go home, and I said: 'That's all right with me.' Then she asked me if the time she had spent with me wasn't valuable to me. I said: 'I've had en enjoyable time and I'd be tickled to help you, but I don't get my first pay check until May 1.'

Told Her "I'm Not That Kind."

"Then she flared up. She said she thought her time was worth money. I told her I hadn't planned to meet any one like that and that she had better go. I told her: 'I'm not that kind of a guy.' Then I opened the door and pushed her out.

"She said she had no cab fare and I gave her 75 cents and she took it. I only had $11.75 myself, but I was sorry for her. The first I heard of her again was when a newspaper man called me up and said she's sued me for $50,000."

Boss made a categorical denial of Miss Mitchell's charges that he had pulled down a bed, thrown her on it, attempted to rape her, and struck her in the eye when she struggled and screamed.

"I treated her as a girl of good character until I learned that she was not," he said. "I was angry when she told me that her time was worth money."

PREFERS CELL TO U. S. AGENTS AT BEER SALOON

The boys on the south side, in the region once dominated by "Polack Joe" Saltis and Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, like peace and quiet as they contemplate their beer. This was revealed yesterday in the appearance of Walter B. Lenzen, part owner of a saloon at 7251 South Ashland avenue, before Federal Judge Fred L. Wham.

Lenzen last week pleaded guilty to charges of possessing liquor and maintaining a nuisance, and was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail. The sentence, however, was suspended, and Lenzen placed on probation for one year. Yesterday the defendant appeared in court and asked a favor.

"Judge," he said, "I find this probation too confining. Prohibition and probation agents are in my hair and cluttering up the place all the time. Please let me serve my sentence."

"I believe that the main reason that he wants to go to jail is that his place is a hangout for hoodlums," Prosecutor Lloyd C. Moody told the court. "These hoodlums do not like to be bothered and, I believe, have forced Lenzen to come here seeking a jail sentence."

"Do I still have jurisdiction?" Judge Wham enquired. He was told that he did by the prosecutor. The judge revoked the probation order, fined Lenzen $250 and sent him off to jail for four months.

O. K. $750 BILL FOR LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE EVIDENCE

An echo of the Leopold-Loeb case was heard yesterday when the city council, on the motion of Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], allowed Frank Ropke, a fisherman living at 91st street and the Calumet river, $750 for recovering the typewriter on which ransom notes for the slain Bobby Franks were written.

Ropke was hired by police in 1924 to recover the typewriter, and with the aid of a diver finally brought it up from the Jackson park lagoon, where the two young killers had confessed that they had thrown it.

He submitted a bill for $1,250, but aldermen said they believed the state's attorney should pay the balance.

Innocent Man Is Convicted of Murder, Lawyer to Pay

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., July 7.—[Special.]—Henry T. Olson, who was convicted six years ago of a murder he did not commit, today was awarded damages of $29,250 against the attorney who failed to save him at his trial. The verdict, one of the largest on record in Winnebago county, was returned by a jury before Circuit Court Judge William J. Fulton.

Several witnesses in the damage action testified that the defendant attorney, Harry B. North, knew at the time of Olson's trial that the murder had been committed by two youths who since have confessed and now are serving terms in Joliet penitentiary. North, a former state's attorney, emphatically denied this.

Agree on Lawyer's Negligence.

The jury, agreeing with Olson that he had been greatly wronged through the lawyer's negligence, voted the latter guilty on the first ballot. There was only a slight amount of discussion as to the amount of the award, according to the foreman, Charles Cotta, who said he "never had seen a group of men so much of the same mind." Olson had sued for $50,000.

The murder of which Olson was falsely accused was that of Floyd Stotler, gasoline station owner who was slain during a robbery. Olson was arrested and indicted and Orville Stotler, father of Floyd, identified him as the killer. The jury disagreed as to his guilt, but on a retrial Olson was found guilty and sentenced to a life term at Joliet.

Unwilling to pay the penalty of a crime in which he had had no hand, the convicted man fled while motion for another trial was pending, forfeiting his bonds of $10,000. With the brand of Cain upon him, he went into seclusion in New Orleans.

Months later the real killers, George Bliss and Maurice Mahan, were apprehended. Questioned by the police, they told the whole story of their own criminal action and exonerated the fugitive. They were tried and convicted. Bliss was sentenced to thirty years and Mahan to fourteen years in prison.

Then began a new search for Olson, to let him know that the stigma of murder had been taken from him and that he might return. Coming back to Rockford, he began an exhaustive investigation which, he said, convinced him that Attorney North knew for certain that Bliss and Mahan had committed the murder.

His suit for damages was filed July 11, 1929. The usual legal delays ensued and it was only ten days ago that the case came to trial. It was bitterly fought from the start.

Puts Jurors on Stand.

Olson's present attorney, Frank Maynard, put on the stand two of the jurors who sat in the trial that resulted in the conviction of Olson. These men, John Kullberg and Arthur G. Lundgren, testified that North, in his opening statement, declared he would "produce the killers at the proper time."

Another witness was Bliss, brought back to the courtroom from his prison cell. He declared that, two weeks before the Olson conviction, he was called by Attorney North to his private office and told by North:

"I have known for some time that you were in that killing."

TELLS BENEFITS OF ALGONQUIN TO DISCOURAGED

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

"Camp Algonquin gives mothers and children who are discouraged a 'second wind.' Two glorious weeks in that camp send them back to Chicago an asset, not a liability."

These are the words of Miss Edna L. Foley, superintendent of the Visiting Nurse association. Speaking from her years of experience in a nursing service that has brought comfort in illness and expert care to thousands of impoverished homes, Miss Foley yesterday urged further support of THE TRIBUNE fund which makes these vacations possible.

"It is perhaps more important that mothers and their children get away from the city for a vacation than those of us who are employed," Miss Foley said. "It gives them something else to think about than their troubles. Whether they are 4 or 40, this 'second wind' results in better appetities, better sleep, and an amazing physical improvement.

Change Performs Miracle.

"A change does every one good, but it performs a miracle for these families. They are re-created spiritually and mentally, and sent back an asset to the city. Their starved lives and bodies which were liabilities before, are built up to a new conception of life and living."

Miss Foley said that the difference in the mental and physical health of children who have been to camp and those in the same family who have not, is easily seen by social workers and nurses. The ones who have had the vacation change from city life come back endowed with a reserve energy that carries them through the next winter.

"People don't realize," she said, "how terribly barren some of our city streets are.

"Camp Algonquin does so much good for mothers and children that I cannot say enough for it. It is a wonderful place to go. I am sure those who regularly support the camp fund will see that those who are scheduled to know its joys this summer are not denied because of lack of funds."

$8.40 for Mother or Child.

Readers are reminded that not one contribution reached the fund yesterday. The cost of these vacations is slight, only $8.40 being the actual cost of a two weeks' vacation for a mother or her child. Transportation is furnished free by the Chicago and North Western railroad. Gifts will be welcomed and should be sent to the fund in care of the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

THE TRIBUNE Free Ice fund, which sends the ice man calling on families who are unable to make the camp trip, received only $13.55 yesterday. A nurse at Hines, Ill., sent $5; the Glenwood Junior Relief league gave a play and raised $3.05; the Friday Night Bridge club sent $4.50, and Tom and Joe Smith, $1. This gives the ice fund a grand total of $717.48.

DEMANDS PROBE OF AUTO THEFT SITUATION HERE

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 99; recovered, 74; stripped, 11 [from Chicago police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Thursday].

The city council yesterday referred to its police committee a demand from Ald. James R. Quinn [50th] for investigation of automobile thefts and recoveries in Chicago. Ald. Quinn said 30,000 automobiles were stolen in the city last year, a large number of which were not recovered.

"As a result," the alderman told the council, "Chicago automobile owners are forced to pay the highest automobile theft insurance rates in the history of the city. I want the investigation to determine, if possible, the causes for the prevalence of car thefts and the cause of the failure to recover a larger number. Legislation to cure the evil then should be recommended."

The National Automobile Underwriters' association, according to the alderman, has designated eight areas in the city in which resident owners of cars cannot obtain automobile theft insurance.

UNCLE SAM TO PAY $8 DUE WASHINGTON MAN FOR 12 YEARS

Baltimore, Md., July 7.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam is about to pay a rather small debt that has been owing for years. The federal court here has just signed an order requesting the treasury to pay to Salvatore Chrite of Washington, $8 that's been owing to him for twelve years. District Attorney Sobeloff received a letter from Salvatore's attorney describing the debt. It was in payment for land that the government got from Chrite and the only reason it hadn't been paid was because Salvatore never had asked for it in the prescribed manner. The district attorney checked up the record and presented a petition to the court.

MAN, FIANCEE, HIS EX-WIFE LIVE TOGETHER

Former Husband Pays Board and Alimony.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Racine, Wis., July 7.—[Special.]—A frame cottage nestled among shade trees on one of the most tranquil streets of this city shelters a most unusual household. A young mother and her two children live with her divorced husband and the young woman he expects to marry.

On the stage or screen such a twist of the eternal triangle would be portrayed in the solemn intonations of tragedy or the gayety of a farce. In real life, so say the principal characters, the situation is carried off in harmony.

Asks to Remain at Home.

The former wife is Mrs. Linda Beegle, 27 years old. She obtained a divorce last June 22, so that her husband might be free to wed again. Her children are Doris, 8, and Richard, 6. Mrs. Beegle was granted alimony of $30 a month to support herself and her children.

The husband, Jay Beegle, 30 years old, asked to remain at home, so that the money he paid for room and board would augment the alimony payments. Mrs. Beegle had no objection. This arrangement continued several weeks.

Recently the other woman, Miss Lydia Weber, 22 years old, lost her job and was ordered from her home by her parents because of her relations with Beegle. She was invited to join the Beegle household by the former wife.

Former Wife Needs Money.

"Now we all live together, and why not?" said Mrs. Beegle yesterday. "I need the money. My former husband paid me $30 a month alimony. That's not much to live on, so he pays me room and board. He might as well live here as in a rooming house."

Beegle said he will marry Miss Weber as soon as the state law allows, which is next June 22, unless he gets work in another state.

"And Mrs. Beegle is invited to attend the wedding," Miss Weber added.

Third Divorce in 5 Years Separates Couple Here

When Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude granted a divorce yesterday to Mrs. Mary Stromberg, 4823 North Lincoln street, from Arndt Stromberg, display manager for a department store chain, he recalled that he had given Mrs. Stromberg a similar decree five years ago, separating her from the same husband. They remarried later. Stromberg got a decree a week ago on charges of cruelty. Mrs. Stromberg presented a petition to set aside Stromberg's decree, which the judge allowed. Mrs. Stromberg presented evidence of desertion yesterday.

KEEP HANDS OFF BUSINESS! HITLER WARNS HIS NAZIS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 7.—Leading German industrialists today hailed with great satisfaction Chancellor Hitler's warning to "hotheads" in his Nazi organization not to interfere with the economic life of Germany. Hitler particularly stressed the absolute necessity of placing ability ahead of Nazi partisanship in a conference with high officeholders yesterday.

"Men versed in business and economic affairs must not be removed simply because they do not happen to be Nazis," the chancellor said. "Ability alone must decide in business. History will not judge us by the number of business men we have removed, but by the number of new jobs we have created.

Evolution, Not Revolution.

"The broad streams of revolution must be changed over to the safe bed of evolution. When presenting reforms to the nation we must prove that our knowledge is unassailable. Our political power will be the greater the more we strengthen our economic foundations. We have the power to enforce our will wherever we please, but the persons we depose must be replaced by more efficient successors.

"The ideas underlying the Nazi program do not mean that we must act like fools and upset everything, but rather that we must realize our ideals wisely, carefully, and gradually."

Hitler's warning was echoed tonight in a decree issued by Rudolf Hess, National Socialist party secretary. The decree forbade Nazis interfering with department store activities.

"In due time these stores will be abolished, but under present conditions no changes will be made since all efforts must be concentrated on procuring work for the idle," Hess said.

Takes Over Glass Blowing Trade.

Thuringia, which was the first German state to go over to the Nazis, has placed the entire glass blowing industry under the absolute control of the Nazi commissar. To keep as many persons at work as possible he has forbidden the operation of new glass blowing machines.

Meanwhile, the government announced that unemployment figures dropped to 4,856,000 on July 1. This is 620,000 less than a year ago.

It was reported today that the body of a murdered man found in the locks Zerpenschleuse has been identified as Johannes Stelling, one of the leaders of the defunct Socialist party. Police declare the tragedy is being investigated. They have refused to confirm the identification. The body was discovered last month.

Raid Homes of Doctors.

Nazi physicians coöperating with the secret Prussian police today raided the homes of 30 physicians and arrested them. Most of the victims were Jews. They were charged with being members of a Marxist, communist, and anarchist organization operating in the Jewish community. The official Nazi organ, Der Angriff, said the arrested men controlled the central office of anti-German atrocity propaganda.

The first royalist organization to disband in Germany since the rise of Hitler to power took place today. It was the Bavarian Home and Royalist league.

Berlin police have announced the arrest of the Dominican father Franciscus Strathmann, chief of the recently dissolved Peace league of German Catholics.

Reaches Into "L" Coach and Steals Woman's Purse

A thief reached through the open window of an elevated train at the Chicago avenue station yesterday and snatched a purse containing $3 from Mrs. Cora B. Short, 1121 East 64th street. The train started as the thief fled down the station stairs.

MRS. F. D. ROOSEVELT TO ASK ALL IN U. S. TO TELL TROUBLES

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—A blanket invitation to the 126,000,000 people of the United States to tell their troubles to her soon will be issued by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Additions to the already enormous personal correspondence of the President's wife will be sought in connection with a letter department which Mrs. Roosevelt will conduct for the Woman's Home Companion. It was learned today that Mrs. Roosevelt extends the invitation in the forthcoming issue of the magazine, out July 20.

How the fan mail will be handled remains to be explained, but Edward Anthony, of the Crowell magazines, said they would furnish stenographic assistance if Mrs. Roosevelt desired it. She has signed a two year contract. The amount she will receive was withheld.

Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall will help her mother answer the mail.

Miss Nancy Cook, one of the Roosevelt secretaries, didn't know the specific arrangements for the new correspondence, but she commented:

"It has always been Mrs. Roosevelt's policy to write or dictate every letter bearing her signature—and I don't think she will change that. Recently her mail brought 300 to 400 letters a day."

AIMEE HOPS OUT OF HOSPITAL BED AND "VANISHES"

Flight Amazes Her Doctor in Paris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 7.—Dr. Charles S. Bove, Paris and American surgeon, had the idea that he was the confidant of Sister Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, four square gospel leader of Los Angeles, just because she let him send the telegram to her husband, David Hutton, informing him that she had a baby in order to find out where the leak in her communications occurred. This morning he dropped in at the American hospital to find out how his patient was recovering from her operation. She was not there.

Ignoring all such formalities as getting a discharge from the hospital, which always is demanded after a surgical case, Aimee hopped out of bed at 9:30 o'clock this morning and paid her bill. She departed in company with her married daughter, who had just arrived in Paris.

The escapade was the main subject of conversation at a meeting of American surgeons who visited the Paris clinic today. The medicos had a hearty laugh over the stories reporting the evangelist as having a baby.

What the doctors chortled about most was what must have been Hutton's feelings when he received the cablegram announcing a boy had arrived. Several of the surgeons knew of previous operations on the evangelist and they felt certain Hutton must have known about these also.

Another development of the frank doctor-to-doctor talk was the revelation that the gospel leader's legs don't suit her. At least two surgeons of the group now in Paris were asked to do something in the way of improvement, but both refused on the grounds it was too dangerous. As for the face lifting operation which Aimee laughingly denied, surgeons swear it was true. They said Aimee's face has been lifted and lifted plenty.

Husband's Sprees Win Divorce Decree for Wife

Mrs. Sophie Anderson, 6134 Woodlawn avenue, was granted a divorce from Arthur Anderson, 5932 Aberdeen street, yesterday by Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court. She charged Anderson habitually spent his pay on sprees. She was awarded $6 a week for the support of herself and her son, Howard, 6 years old.

Cuba Orders Release of 19 Political Prisoners

HAVANA, Cuba, July 7.—(AP)—Gen. Alberto Herrera, secretary of war, today ordered the liberation of 19 political prisoners held at Principe prison. They were charged with sedition.

FARLEY DIRECTS REPEAL FORCES IN DIXIE STATES

Three Elections in South This Month.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt administration will lead the campaign in states of the south for repeal of the 18th amendment.

Alabama, Arkansas, and Tennessee are to vote during the next fortnight, the first southern states to put the issue of prohibition before the electors, and today James A. Farley, postmaster general and Democratic national chairman, announced that he will make an address in Memphis, Tenn., July 15, urging quick action on repeal. All three states are to be hooked up by radio for the Farley speech.

Arkansas and Alabama hold their election of repeal delegates July 18, and Tennessee on July 20. Oregon also votes July 20.

Mr. Farley said today his advices from the south indicate that every state which has an election set for this year will vote for repeal in an unbroken line, and that the 18th amendment will be expunged from the federal constitution before New Year's.

Battle Turns to South.

In an unbroken line, 16 states have already voted for repeal. These 16 commonwealths contain 43 per cent of the population of the United States. The professional drys are now centering on the south, which went dry before national prohibition, but which in recent years have shown an anti-prohibition surge in the elections.

Postmaster General Farley is also urging swift action by Kentucky. In a second telegram to Gov. Ruby Laffoon today he was asked that action on repeal be included in the call for the special session of the Kentucky legislature now being considered by the governor.

In his message Mr. Farley told Gov. Laffoon that failure to act at once might delay ratification of the 21st amendment, repealing the 18th, and entail a great loss in revenue to the federal government.

Laffoon Holding Back.

The message from National Chairman Farley put squarely before the Laffoon administration the question of whether it would travel with the administration on one of its cardinal policies, in conformity with the plank adopted by the national convention in Chicago a year ago which made the Democratic party the party of repeal.

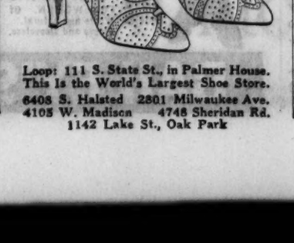

Reports have been that Gov. Laffoon has been averse to placing repeal in the special sessions call. The Farley message said:

"Should no action be taken by Kentucky until the regular session, it is possible that repeal may be delayed for six more months, meaning the loss of millions of dollars to the national government in revenue."

Relief Group to Buy Seed for Farms Hit by Storm

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission has appropriated $15,000 for the purchase of seeds for use on farms in Illinois whose crops were destroyed by last Sunday's wind and rain storm. Between 1,500 and 2,000 farms northwest of Chicago were seriously damaged. Seeds will be furnished only to those farmers who are destitute or whose credit is limited. The Illinois department of agriculture will coöperate with the commission in administering the appropriation.

BRUNKERS AGREE; EACH TO HAVE ONE OF TWO CHILDREN

Albert R. Brunker, Chicago reformer, and his former wife, Mrs. Margaret Gaylord Ruppel of California, apparently are near an agreement on the custody of their two children, reports from Reno indicated yesterday.

The children, Barbara, 7, and Robert, 5, have been in the custody of each parent for six month periods since their parents' divorce in 1931. Since then court battles have been waged in Reno and in Chicago, each parent seeking permanent custody of the youngsters.

Now, however, a petition has been filed by them before Judge B. F. Curler in Reno, providing that Mrs. Ruppel shall have permanent custody of Barbara, and Brunker, permanent custody of Robert. Each parent would have the right, furthermore, of visiting the child in the other's charge.

GREAT MEXICAN SHOW INITIATES NEW FAIR LIGHTS

BY EARL MULLIN.

Mexican Fiesta week, presenting the brilliant colors and the romance of langorous southern nights, the flashing black-eyed señoritas and the guitar playing romanticos from south of the Rio Grande, opened last night at the Fair. Thousands of spectators filled the Rainbow gate area at the south end of the Exposition grounds to participate in the largest free amusement enterprise yet sponsored in the Fair grounds.

Opening night of the fiesta was in celebration of the inauguration of the new lighting system in the Rainbow gate area. Five hundred actors, presenting a four hour show in the street and on three large outdoor stages, opened the new bright light district. If the crowds keep up as they did last night, the fiesta performance will last throughout the Fair.

Five Blocks of Bright Lights.

The fiesta was organized by the south end concessionaires, who felt that something should be done to liven up their end of the grounds. Five blocks of lights, built on an ultra modern design, run directly through the center of the street. Giving both direct and indirect lighting, the floods turn night into day. Each light post is in the form of a circular stair, ending in the modernistic trays and globes.

Patterned after the annual fiesta of the Mexican towns and villages, the show presents every type of wild west rodeo and southern ranch amusements. Mexicans from old Mexico, miners and dance hall girls from the '49 camps, the rodeo riders from the 101 Ranch show, log rollers, Ukrainians and Cossacks and many others participate in the programs.

The attendance yesterday, up to 11:30 p. m., totaled 128,571. It was the fourth largest turnout since the Fair opened, exceeded only by June 23, July 3, and July 4, and the tenth day with a total exceeding 100,000. Fair officials announced, too, that in the week since last Saturday paid admissions have exceeded 1,000,000, a new high total for a seven day period.

Michigan and Japanese Day.

Today at the fair will feature two major attractions, Michigan day and Japanese day. Japanese day will center at the Japanese pavilion and the visit of the ambassador and his party.

Michigan day will be observed in the court of the Hall of States with Gov. William A. Comstock as honor guest. Following a program of music and speeches, a reception will be held in the Michigan exhibit. Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair, will represent the Fair organization and give the address of welcome.

Music will be furnished by the Midland band, the Iron Mountain chorus and band, and the Munising band, the Sault Ste. Marie orchestra, the Niles High School Glee club, the Muskegon women's chorus, the Marquette Choral society, the De Molay band of Grand Rapids, and the Interlochen band.

40,000th California Registrant.

Honors on yesterday's program were divided between California day and Children's day.

The California ceremonies were held in the Court of the Hall of States in the afternoon. As part of the ceremony, the forty thousandth visitor was registered in the exhibit. Officials said that only about 10 per cent of the visitors register. California day at the Fair commemorated the 87th anniversary of the raising of the American flag in the state and the formal occupation by the United States. Leland W. Cutler, chairman of the California commission, represented the state, and the Fair was represented by President Rufus C. Dawes.

COW ON HER WAY TO MILK RECORD IN FAIR TURMOIL

Unmindful of the bustle of crowds and the strange noises about the domestic animal show in the World's Fair, a sleek coated Guernsey cow named Lady Rue is chewing her cud on the way to a new world's record in milk and butterfat production. She is a living testimonial to what scientific feeding and breeding can produce in a dairy cow with an ancestry of distinction.

Daughter of a former world record cow who sold for $10,000, Lady Rue hails from Minneapolis, where her owners operate the Hotel Radisson. As a junior 2 year old first calf she made her first world mark with 626 pounds of butterfat.

Now at the age of 4 years she is establishing another world mark by producing 10,968 pounds of milk with 496 pounds of butterfat in six months. She needs to produce only 358 pounds of fat in the next six months to beat the present record holder, and is doing it at a faster rate since she was moved to the Fair than in her home quarters. She is now yielding 60 pounds [more than 37 quarts] of milk daily.

Pennsylvania Beer Tax to Total 6 Millions a Year

Harrisburg, Pa., July 7.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's two month old beverage tax on beer and wines is returning revenue to the state at the rate of six million dollars a year. The department of revenue today announced receipts of $540,465 from this tax last month and $444,232 for May. The tax was in effect only in the last 25 days of May.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Four leading Chicago equestrians were named yesterday as chairmen of committees for a World's Fair horse show to be held in the 124th Field Artillery armory in Washington park Oct. 21 to 29. Porter Fox, president of the show, named Maj. Gen. Frank Parker as polo chairman; Dr. Daniel Orth, horse show chairman; Mrs. Austin Niblack, ladies' horse show chairman, and Maj. P. T. Carpenter, ring committee chairman. Assisting Mr. Fox are M. A. Kern, vice president of the show; Prince Michael Cantacuzene, secretary; George B. Nelson, treasurer, and Harley Heyl, Fred Mills, Austin Niblack, Dr. Daniel Orth, and Maj. Parker directors. Maj. Roy B. Nordeimer is managing director.

A transportation survey by E. S. J. Irvine, chief of the transportation division of the Fair, shows that the majority of visitors to the Fair who use public transportation facilities come to the grounds by bus or street car. The elevated lines carry 3.7 per cent, the Illinois Central 14.5, the bus lines 17.6 inbound and 18.5 outbound, and the street car lines carry 19 per cent inbound and 21 per cent outbound. Officials estimate that about 40 per cent of the visitors come in private automobiles or walk.

Harry S. New, United States commissioner to the Fair, yesterday consented to become a member of the Sioux tribe at a special ceremony Sunday afternoon. He will be formally inducted into the tribe by the stalwart old Chief Blackhorn. There will be pipe smoking, war dances, and plenty of Indian pantomine, but the Sioux warriors, who also made the late Calvin Coolidge a chieftain, have not yet revealed what they are going to call their newest member.

The dedicatory ceremonies of "The Nazarene," Col. Henry Stanley Todd's interpretative picture of Christ, which hangs in the Hall of Religion, will be conducted by Dr. Herbert L. Willett, dean emeritus of the Christian divinity school of the University of Chicago. Many art critics who have seen the picture class it as one of the greatest interpretations of Christ that has ever been painted.

An unusual theatrical performance by the Braille theater guild of Evanston will be presented next Monday afternoon in the Children's theater on Enchanted island. It is a one act play called "Cabbages," and is in competition for the Drama league cup. All actors in the Braille cast are blind. They are the only organization of blind players outside New York City.

The first three hundred children between 7 and 12 years old who file applications for entry permits to the children's own Mardi Gras carnival, to be held next Friday on the Enchanted island, will compete for prizes for the most beautiful costume, the funniest costume, the most original costume, and the best mask.

L. Oscar Challman, president of the Cook county council of Lions clubs, has been named as head of the welcoming committee for five thousand delegates to the Lions international convention in St. Louis, who are coming here direct from the meeting on July 15.

Victor Grabel's Chicago concert band will inaugurate its series of free concerts tomorrow evening on the floating theater in the north lagoon at the Fair. Five concerts will be given on the floating theater, each beginning at 8:30 o'clock in the evening.

FAVOR IMPERIAL FLAG FOR GERMAN BUILDING AT FAIR

Group Adopts Motion After Debate.

The pre-war imperial German flag of black, white and red will fly beside the American flag from the German-American building at A Century of Progress if the recommendation of the executive committee of the Chicago World's Fair German group is followed.

The group adopted a motion that the flying of the old imperial flag, along with the flags of Austria, Switzerland, America, Chicago, and A Century of Progress, should be recommended to the German-American Hostess Society, Inc. This group has charge of the German-American building, which will be opened within the next two weeks.

Considerable oratory in both German and English preceded the adoption of the motion at a luncheon meeting in the Bismarck hotel. Discussing the decoration of the buildings, it was suggested that if the German flag were flown, a partisan aspect indicating support of Chancellor Hitler's Nazis might be given to what was intended as a nonpartisan German-American exhibit. It was agreed the swastika, the emblem of Hitler's Nazis, which has been added to the old imperial flag since Hitler's accession to power, should be left off the flag to be flown at the German-American building.

Miss Marie W. Becker, president of the German-American Hostess Society, Inc., presented at the meeting a proposal of the German government to send to A Century of Progress an exhibit of the seven German "world wonders." The exhibit, which would include models of the S. S. Bremen, the Graf Zeppelin, and the largest German seaplane and airplane, was tentatively accepted.

FIELD'S GIVES UNCLAIMED TAX FUND TO CHARITY

The sum of $35,000, representing unclaimed collections of the first 3 per cent sales tax, which was declared unconstitutional, will be given to the Emergency Welfare Fund of Chicago and similar charities in Oak Park, Evanston, and Lake Forest by Marshall Field & Co., it was announced yesterday. This sum is in addition to a large sum already credited to charge customers.

When the Field stores began collection of the tax auxiliary sales slips were given to customers to hold as records. When the tax was declared unconstitutional customers were reimbursed upon presentation of these sales slips.

With the new sales tax law in operation, arrangements were made to disburse the surplus to charities for relief purposes. The money will be divided among the charities in proportion to the total amount of taxes collected in the four stores.

Girl's Killer Sentenced to 20 Years in Prison

John L. Minzer, 30 years old, was sentenced to serve 20 years in the penitentiary yesterday after Judge Harry A. Lewis had overruled a motion for a new trial. Minzer was found guilty by a jury of strangling to death his sweetheart, Miss Amelia Sailly, 29 years old, in her room at the Harper End hotel, 5012 Harper avenue.

RECALL 80 YEAR AMITY AT JAPAN'S PAVILION TODAY

Nipponese Envoy Arrives for Ceremonies.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Eighty years ago today Commodore Perry ended Japan's traditional isolation and inaugurated the "open door" policy, as he sailed into Uraga bay and dropped anchor with four men o' war. That day the Japanese shogun and his forces were thrown into panic. The imperial court appealed to heaven as in a national emergency. Yet today Japan commemorates the ensuing unbroken eight decades of friendship with America by formally dedicating its pavilion at A Century of Progress.

Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador to the United States, radiated unbounded satisfaction in the occasion as he arrived in the city yesterday, accompanied by his wife, his son and daughter, the latter a student at Princeton. It marked the first opportunity the Nipponese statesman has had to inspect Chicago, and he beamed upon all and sundry as he was welcomed by Yoshio Muto, consul general for Japan, and a bevy of his countrymen.

Envoy Voices Happiness.

"You cannot imagine how happy I am," he told interviewers. "This is a great occasion. Japan's participation in A Century of Progress is 100 per cent, and I am happy to be here to attend Japanese day, especially since it is the anniversary of a great day in our history—eighty years from the date when Commodore Perry arrived in Japan with his fleet.

"Not many American people realize that Japan is the third greatest customer your country has. Great Britain is first, Canada second, and Japan is third. And, of course, America is the best customer of my own country."

Ceremonies of the dedication will start with the arrival of the ambassador and his party at 10:45 o'clock at the 14th street gate of the Fair, although the pavilion will be opened to the public at 10 o'clock for the distribution of souvenirs. A salute of eighteen guns will announce the arrival of the official group.

Dawes to Greet Ambassador.

President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair will receive the Japanese officials in the Administration building immediately after the inspection by Ambassador Debuchi of the guard of honor.

At 11:10 o'clock there will be a procession to the Japanese pavilion, south of Soldiers' field, the executives being preceded by a military band and escorted by a detachment of soldiers. On arrival at the building the band will play "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Kimigayo," the Japanese national anthem.

Two hundred invitations have been issued for a noon luncheon in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel under auspices of the Japan-America society, at which the addresses of the ambassador and President Dawes will be broadcast at 2 o'clock over NBC.

In the evening there will be a showing of motion pictures in the Japanese garden at the Fair.

FLIES TO CHICAGO DAILY TO HAVE BILLS APPROVED

Springfield, Ill., July 7.—(AP)—So that Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan can sign bills passed by the Illinos legislature, Marie Hess, his private secretary, has been making daily airplane trips from Springfield to Chicago.

Donovan's wife is seriously ill in a Milwaukee hospital and the lieutenant governor has been unable to stay here to sign the bills as soon as they are prepared by the enrolling and engrossing force.

Carrying a large bundle of bills, Miss Hess again boarded a plane today for Chicago. There she meets Donovan who signs the measures and gives them to his secretary to rush back to Gov. Horner.

Before the governor can be given the proposed laws for his aproval or veto, it is necessary that they be signed by both Donovan and Speaker Arthur Roe.

Roe has been in Springfield most of the time since the legislature adjourned last Saturday.

Elmore Suggests Price of 100 Million.

Agitation for the sale of the drainage canal to the federal government as a means of raising funds for the building of the sewage disposal works ordered by the United States Supreme court was renewed yesterday. Trustee Howard W. Elmore, at a regular meeting of the district trustees, proposed that the canal be offered to the federal government for 100 million dollars.

Trustee Elmore declared that unless funds are raised by the selling of the canal the district will be unable to build the sewage disposal works, which will cost about 100 million dollars. The district has not the bonding power to raise the required funds, he said.

The district now has outstanding bonds of $107,032,000 and other obligations of $34,381,483, a total of $141,413,483. This leaves a reserve bonding power of only $41,770,145 out of the limit of $183,183,629.

Recommends Sale to U. S.

"In your anxiety to comply with the mandates of the Supreme court it appears to me you have overlooked a simple yet a most reasonable and fair solution," Mr. Elmor told the other trustees. "What I propose is that the federal government purchase the main and Sag channels of the district canal. This should produce a minimum of $100,000,000.

"These canals were built thirty years ago by taxpayers, with appurtenances and carrying charges at an approximate cost of $100,000,000. They are wisely designed and built for ultimate use as a waterway and commercial channels. The day has arrived.

"Upon completion of our sewage disposal program the use of the canals for sanitation purposes will be negligible. They will, however, be in constant use as a great highway of commerce. This benefits all the people of the United States. In view of the fact that the channels are now under government supervision as navigable waters it is not unreasonable to ask that the government assume complete ownership and jurisdiction by outright purchase."

Challenge to Democrats.

Mr. Elmore is the lone Republican trustee. In concluding his plea he declared that he as the only Republican on the board challenged his Democratic colleagues to adopt the suggestion and militantly fight for its success.

"I can't find any fault with the proposal," said Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, "and I am sure I voice the sentiments of the Democratic members of this board. I congratulate Mr. Elmore and join with him. Now that he is in favor of the program the board is unanimous."

Trustee Woodhull explained that a similar resolution was introduced before the board by President Thomas J. Bowler on May 23 and adopted. The resolution named no purchase price. Mr. Elmore said he had not seen the resolution in the minutes of the board.

President Bowler said there was precedent for the purchase of the canal. In 1928, he said, the federal government bought the Cape Cod canal from a private company, assuming an indebtedness of six million dollars in addition to a purchase price of $5,500,000.

Taylor Urges Better Judges in Farewell Address to Bar

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Illinois, barring one defect, has one of the best judicial systems in the United States, but it is only by accident and chance that men best qualified to administer this system become judges; success as a judge is not dependent upon ability as a judge or lawyer, but upon politics.

These and other opinions on the relative merits of the federal and state judiciary, and the appointive and elective systems, were expressed frankly yesterday by former Judge Thomas Taylor, who after 18 years' service retired from the Circuit bench last month voluntarily. At the age of 72 Judge Taylor has the luxury of becoming a philosopher who is free. As master in chancery and as judge he has been in the courts for nearly 50 years.

Given Farewell Dinner.

Judge Taylor was given a farewell dinner last night by the Chicago Bar association on the eve of his departure for California. In an address to the lawyers and in the course of an interview during the afternoon he discussed various topics, including the part that the bench and bar must play in the social changes that are inherent in the "new deal" at Washington, which, he says, is not a new deal at all, but a radical change in the rules of the game.

"As to the judiciary," he said, "in a sense, no man is big enough to be a judge. I have a notion that a judge, notwithstanding the almost limitless volume of things discovered, must still take all learning as his province. He will never attain his goal, but he will ever improve his capacity and quality and tend to obtain that wisdom without which he must fail."

The judge had before him on his reading stand "Adventures in Ideas," by Whitehead. At 72, white haired and "retired," he finds this path the best.

"Africa may be explored and Everest conquered," he said, "but the universe of ideas is unbounded and it may well be true that mankind now is only in the dawn period of intellectual advance."

Voters Tools of Politicians.

Returning to the judiciary:

"In my judgment, our jurisprudence as a whole is the best that the human mind has yet conceived; and its satisfactory use is entirely dependent on the quality of the participants, the bench and the bar.

"We have many able men at the bar. It is a pity they will not be able to get on the bench. We do need something here. It is a calamity. I could name 300 or 400 of the best lawyers, fit for the bench, but not one of them will ever have the ghost of a show. Our people will not select men who are the best for them. They are plastic in the hands of the politicians.

"Judges come up through the political route. The young lawyer becomes a precinct captain and a good organizer. In time he gets close to the ward committeeman.

Proposes Elimination Plan.

"He then tries out for the Municipal court. After a few years here the ambitious ones aspire to the Circuit and Superior bench. Their success is at no time dependent on their ability as judges. We get good ones only by chance.

"I am of the opinion that it might well be that the best method for the quasi-popular election of judges would be to limit the selection of the political parties to a body of candidates, say 50 or 100 even, originally selected by a referendum of the whole body of the bar. I am convinced that a majority of the Bar association or of the bar at large would act collectively only for the good of all the people. This would give the people a chance to vote in a restricted area.

"The federal bench is appointive and undoubtedly the result has been an average far above the state judges. Massachusetts has judicial appointments by the governor, with the consent of a committee of the state senate, and as a result has had the best judges of all the states.

Favors Longer Terms of Office.

"An increased term for state judges, in the absence of these other methods, would result in making the judges freer from politics. The long term wards off local influences and subconsciously produces a better kind of independence on the part of the judge. The short term compels the practical man to have a mind to the political situation.

"Illinois has one of the best systems of any state, but I think the judges should have the right to comment and sum up the evidence. This is looked upon as a pre-requisite for a proper modern system of justice.

"Perhaps the greatest difficulty of the judge is to keep sufficiently in abeyance his prejudices and emotions. It is easy, too easy, to be lenient and too merciful. Judged by the average of our judges and juries, as a people we are inclined perhaps too much toward indulgence and condonation rather than to apt punishment and, as a consequence, the creation psychologically of deterring influences is frustrated.

Responsibility Increasing.

"As I leave the judicial scene I foresee an ever increasing amount of work and responsibility for the profession of the law. There is mass production of material conveniences. There is no mass production of justice. Each citizen is unique and so are his rights and wrongs.

"I do not believe in the Russian regimentation nor in any known form of socialism. Nor do I believe in the fallacy of equal opportunity for all; that only means, as some one has said, all start fair and the devil take the hindmost. But I do believe in equality of consideration; that is, justice, in which there is both reasonable liberty and individuality, without which man must ever remain in great part a slave.

"It will be seen that a great metamorphosis in the basic principles of our jurisprudence is necessarily contemplated and actually begun by the so-called 'new deal.' Many conventional connotations of the French constitution, it would seem, have been changed or are abandoned.

What the "New Deal" Means.

"If by a 'new deal' is meant that the cards are to be picked up by the government and reshuffled and then arbitrarily dealt out by the government to the players—the people of the United States—then the life of each one of us becomes changed, completely metamorphosed. Each submits his all or his nothing and takes his chance; some may be better off and some may be worse.

If the cards are to be dealt face up and equally distributed, that betokens communism or at the least, socialism, either of which for the great majority would be revolutionary; and, historically considered, abhorrent to the vast majority of our thinking people.

The 'new deal,' it would seem, however, judged by the industrial recovery act, is not a 'new deal' at all but a radical change in the rules of the game. In other words, the playing of certain cards in a certain new way or order is now to be compulsory.

Conflicts with Common Law.

"It may safely be said that there is in the industrial recovery act a fundamental political and governmental control, or individual and social 'compulsion.'

"That which many men would not do voluntarily, and some things which they could not do under the old law, they now are to be compelled to do. Such compulsion is a sort of tertium quid, a third something produced by the union or collision or two opposite forces, e. g., socialism and capitalism. The fact that compulsion or force is necessary is some evidence that our civilization with its doctrine of laissez faire is to some extent a commercial and material failure.

"Though in many ways in conflict with the common law, and an abrogation of it in part—and some think unconstitutional—yet, it does not necessarily perforce destroy substantial individuality nor necessarily repress initiative; though restrictive in form, it may not be, in substance, destructive.

Bar to Play Big Part.

"It will not do to gloss the truth. It is an untrue dichotomy to say we are free and bound at the same time. We have now made a sacrifice—in part—of a former virtue. It may be well that it is limited in duration. At the end of two years we may be chastened and able anew to recapture our ancient virtue without the admonition of the law.

"What will be done under the new rules will in a great part be the result of the advice of lawyers. The bar will be called upon to build a new legal structure. There will undoubtedly arise untold quantities of litigation and all of it in many ways of new character. What takes place in the next two years becomes in a sense irrevocable. The physicists principle of entropy applies."

Records of Trade Gains Bring Grin.

ters of the administration they have been hailed as one of the surest signs of economic revival in the land.

Lately reports have come to Washington showing that many factory operators are running their shops night and day in an effort to pile up a good supply of goods before the wage boosts and working hour cuts are imposed upon them by federal code.

These goods, according to reports, will then be sold at higher prices resulting from the increased costs of production, with the net result that the employés who produced the goods will not have received higher wages, and consumers who buy them will be forced to pay the higher prices.

May Discharge Employés.

At the same time, it was pointed out, when the federal control is put into effect, with minimum wage and working hour restrictions, industries which have piled up surpluses in their periods of grace will then discharge employés and during the time of using up the surpluses a new unemployment condition may result.

Gen. Johnson later issued a vigorous denial of propaganda, said to have been used by labor union organizers who have been recruiting members in some sections of the country, that workers would not receive consideration under the national recovery act unless they belonged to a union.

"Circulars and other literature purporting to come from labor union agents," said Gen. Johnson, "have intimated or openly stated that it is a purpose of the national recovery act and administration to unionize labor, or that the only way labor can secure benefits under that act is to join this or that union."

"Similar statements purporting to come from industrial concerns," he added, "have intimated that this or that newly formed company union is the only organization through which labor can get a fair deal under this act.

All Labor Protected.

"Both statements are incorrect, and such erroneous statements of the act and its administration tend to foment misunderstanding and discord," the administrator declared. "It is the duty of this administration to see that all labor—organized as well as unorganized—gets a square deal, and the administration is organized to do and will do that duty."

Gen. Johnson pointed to the textile industry, where a major portion of the workers are unorganized, yet which has received the first attention of the administration.

"It is not the duty of the administration to act as an agent to unionize labor in any industry," he asserted, "and as has been repeatedly stated, it will not so act.

"Manifestly, the purpose of the act is to create and preserve harmonious relationships and to prevent industrial strife and class conflicts.

"Labor in any industry has the right to organize and bargain collectively; the law also recognizes the right of individual workers to bargain for their own conditions of employment. But in the execution of this new social policy to which the government stands committed it is the obligation of the national recovery administration to require the payment of living wages by industry as a condition of continued existence and to prevent excessive and unreasonable disparities, in the interest both of social justice and a balanced economy.

Will Not Organize Labor.

"Collective bargaining under adequate government sanction and supervision should hold no fears for the fair minded industrialist. On the other hand, the national recovery administration pledges itself through its labor advisory board to obtain a fair deal for labor in any industry presenting a code, whether the employés are organized or not. It is not the function or the purpose of the administrator to organize either industry or labor."

Gen. Johnson, meeting newspaper men today, mentioned several times in the interview that efforts would be directed toward restoring the purchasing power of labor in 1929. When it was called to his attention that the year 1929 has been condemned by the President as the peak year of wild orgies of speculation and spending, bringing about the depression, Gen. Johnson said that he did not believe it would be possible to restore 1929 purchasing power in all industries.

"I mentioned that in the cotton textile code," he added, "because that is what they would do."

Must Vary with Industry.

"Do you have the same idea with respect to other industries, steel for example,"

"The amount of reemployment varies in industries. In some of them with big machinery there would be no possibility of raising their situations to the 1929 level."

Then the general added, significantly:

"There was no orgy of high living in 1929 so far as labor was concerned."

It was not made clear whether the administration will strive for 1929 wages so far as possible or not.

Calls Richberg's Warning Extreme.

Gen. Johnson was asked if he subscribed to the opinion expressed by his chief counsel, Donald R. Richberg, who in a speech in New York yesterday declared the industrial recovery bill gave industrial leadership "one more chance—perhaps the last—to justify its authority."

"I would think that would be an extreme statement," Johnson replied. "I wouldn't say that it was anybody's last stand until this is all over."

A question was put as to whether industrialists are not holding back now, unwilling to present codes and expose themselves to governmental control, because of the natural rise in business conditions.

"I have not seen any one that I can conscientiously say is holding back. I know that people that are just two jumps ahead of the bear are a whole lot quicker than when the bear falls back somewhat."

Attorney Richberg's statement that if business managements did not now embrace the industry control act they would later be forced to submit to further political control, was brought to Gen. Johnson's attention.

Fears Another Setback.

"We came pretty close to a complete collapse just before the inauguration of this administration," he said. "We have had a little pull-up. The figures indicate that we must do something about it. We may have a new collapse.

"I shudder to think what would happen in this country if we had another. I don't like to be a prophet. If there was a new crash in this country I don't know what would happen. Now, here is a plan so that these industries can prevent unmanageable surpluses and run away price structures. It is at least an experiment."

KILLED BY FALLING DERRICK.

Hans Johansen, 44 years old, 7930 Colfax avenue, was killed yesterday at Decatur, Ill., when a derrick overturned as a 20 ton girder was being swung into place on a construction job.

COURT TO PASS ON HARRIMAN'S MENTAL STATUS

her consent—that in that event she be allowed to be with him."

Judge Caffey said he would accept no conditions; he would retain the right to exercise his own judgment and do what his conscience told him was wise and right.

Tells of Tests Made.

Much of Dr. Jelliffe's testimony consisted of a description of the tests by which he sought to plumb Mr. Harriman's mind. These showed, the mental expert said, that Mr. Harriman had a keen memory for past events, but was hazy about the recent past. They showed him lacking in the finer association of ideas and in differentiation. He suffered from the idea that he was being persecuted, that there was a plot against him, and "he contemplated self-destruction," Dr. Jelliffe testified.

Dr. Jelliffe found out these things about his patient by asking questions and noting the answers.

When asked the difference between a "lie and a mistake" Mr. Harriman told the doctor that "it is a matter of judgment," whereas, Dr. Jelliffe declared, it was clearly a question of intent. When asked the difference between a bird and a butterfly Mr. Harriman, according to his doctor, replied that "both can fly." The usual answer, Dr. Jelliffe said, is that "butterflies have wings and birds have feathers." Mr. Harriman thought also that the ox was a domestic animal, while a horse was a "city animal," a distinction which, Dr. Jelliffe thought, indicated a pretty serious mental condition.

Unaware of Arrest.

In cross-examination Dr. Jelliffe told District Attorney George Z. Medalie and the court that when he examined Mr. Harriman on March 24, ten days after the banker was formally arrested, he did not know of that incident. Later he did obtain some of the details of the charges against Mr. Harriman from George S. Leisure, one of the banker's lawyers, and incorporated them in a new questionnaire.

"Did Mr. Harriman know he was charged with a crime?" asked Mr. Medalie.

"He said he was," replied Dr. Jelliffe.

Mr. Harriman, however, insisted, according to Dr. Jelliffe, that he knew nothing about the false entries of more than $1,000,000 he is accused of making, and said, a little impatiently, when he was asked about them, that they were matters "outside of his department." He "hired men at $25,000 a year to look after such matters," Dr. Jelliffe said the banker told him.

The hearing will be continued on Monday.

ASSERTS BRITISH HEALTH ELUDES DEPRESSION ILLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—Though worry and trouble were induced by the depression, the nation's statistics on sickness and death show that the physical health of Britons has been surprisingly well maintained, according to Sir Edward Hilton Young, minister of health.

Sir Edward told parliament that the latest figures showed the death rate in England to be 12 per 1,000 population, which was regarded as exceptionally good considering conditions. The decrease in the death rate of children was deemed striking—having been halved in the last 23 years.

Most important of all as a barometer of public health, the death rate from tuberculosis fell to 838 per 1,000,000 in 1932 from 896 per 1,000,000 in 1931," the minister reported.

Sir Edward referred to the government's "five year plan" against slum conditions which he hoped would provide decent dwellings to replace unhealthy tenements for 500,000 people. The present rate of demolition of slums in England and Wales exceeds 12,500 houses annually, but it is hoped this will be increased to 24,000 next year, he said.

Opposition critics pointed out that many such replacements are renting too high for low paid workers. It was further complained that coördination is lacking between slum clearance and city planning.

Local authorities, one critic said, are providing residences on a scale more than sufficient to take care of double or treble the present population at a time when the population of the British Isles is tending to become stationary.

"We are not planning for the future," warned Arthur Greenwood, a Laborite.

THOUSANDS SEE VENETIAN NIGHT IN JACKSON PARK

The Jackson Park lagoon was turned into a Venetian lagoon last night in celebration of the annual Venetian night carnival. A crowd estimated at more than 50,000 men, women and children thronged the banks and bridges to watch.

Fifty lavishly decorated floats, brilliant with Japanese lanterns, skimmed over the smooth lagoon waters. Nineteen small parks, under jurisdiction of the south park board, which sponsors the event, participated.

Gondoliers propelled the floats and gave a realistic touch to the setting. Only one mishap occurred. Mark White Square's float, depicting a Japanese pagoda, turned over under a sudden gust of wind, knocking two men into the water. They swam to safety.

DUNNE DEMANDS MORE FACTS IN WILMETTE ROW

The controversy between former Gov. Edward F. Dunne and Wilmette beach officials over the seizure of clothing of five of Dunne's grandchildren at the Wilmette beach on June 24, was renewed yesterday when the ex-governor sent another letter to Louis K. Gillson, president of the Wilmette park board, demanding a more complete explanation.

To an earlier request President Gillson explained that the Dunne grandchildren were not discriminated against because they were Chicagoans, and that their clothing had been picked up because they had left it on the sand in violation of beach regulations.

Mr. Gillson admittedly avoided replying to seven or eight other points in Mr. Dunne's letter. These concerned the supply of various data and copies of ordinances, if any, authorizing the seizure of clothing. In his newest letter the former governor is insisting on this information.

Fumes from Still Cause Explosion; Many Injured

Rochester, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—A score of persons, including several children, were injured today, some of them seriously, by the explosion of fumes in a residence as prohibition agents were dismantling a still found on the premises.

The entire neighborhood was thrown into a panic as the blast hurled flaming debris on to a crowd of more than 100 persons which had gathered to watch the agents take down the still.

Most of the injured were standing in a yard between two houses when the explosion blew out the side of one of them.

COUNCIL PUTS ITS APPROVAL ON LAKE AIRPORT

Authorizes Mayor to Ask U. S. for $6,000,000.

The city council yesterday approved the Chicago Plan commission's plans for a lake front airport, and with it the proposal that Mayor Kelly go to Washington to ask federal authorities to provide the $6,000,000 which the project would cost as part of the $ billion 300 million dollar public works program set up in the national recovery act.

In the discussion of the airport, Mayor Kelly told the council that he would draw up within a few days, at a conference with his cabinet, a program of other local public works which the federal government might be asked to finance. The council, which had intended to recess for the summer yesterday, will hold another meeting Tuesday to receive this program.

Site of Proposed Airport.

The proposed airport would be built in what is known as Harbor District No. 2, directly east of the Adler planetarium on Northerly island, to which it would be connected by a 500 foot bridge. It would be a built up island, triangular in shape, with the apex extending into the lake, to reduce to a minimum the amount of filling to be done in deep water.

The west end of the new man-made island would afford space for hangars, terminal buildings and maintenance shops to be constructed by various air lines. Use of the lake front airport would reduce to ten minutes the time required for plane passengers to reach the loop, whereas it now requires an hour for them to reach the business district from the airport on the southwest side.

Because of the saving in time involved, the project has the indorsement of the air lines, postoffice officials, and express companies. The postoffice department would save $40,000 a year in the decreased cost of transporting air mail to the central postoffice.

Amend Beer Ordinance.

The council passed two amendments to the beer ordinance. One frees beer vendors from the requirement of posting a bond, which aldermen have pointed out is a factor adding to the cost of beer, without giving the city any real protection. The other amendment takes the control of licenses out of the hands of the aldermen.

Under the provision that the city council give final approval to all beer licenses, each alderman would have been the dictator of beer sales in his ward. Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman was given the privilege of the council floor and he told the aldermen that licenses must be issued under general rules.

"If the council had the power to give one man a license and refuse another, the courts might rule that such an arbitrary act would knock out the whole licensing ordinance, which would cost the city $900,000 in fees for the remainder of this year," Mr. Grossman said.

Mayor Kelly, who under the amendment has final control over licenses, assured the aldermen that he would consult individual aldermen on all license applications from their wards.

Increase License Fees.

The council also increased the minimum license fee for public places of amusement from $250 to $375 a year. Under the old fee, with the provision for merger of licenses, any tavern keeper paying $300 a year for a beer license could have opened a cabaret without payment of further revenue to the city.

"We can't blame 10 cent beer on high license fees," said Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, at an earlier meeting of that body. "In Milwaukee they sell beer for 5 cents a glass, yet they pay the same federal and state taxes, and the same or approximately the same city license fee."

The council passed the 1933 tax levy ordinances, including one of $3,000,000 for the working cash fund, and authorized the issuance of 1933 tax anticipation warrants against the levies, which probably will not be collected until early in 1935.

ROCKEFELLER TO CELEBRATE 94TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—A dinner party with three generations of his family present will be John D. Rockefeller's only departure from routine tomorrow on his 94th birthday anniversary.

The observance of the day will be even simpler than in recent years. At Mr. Rockefeller's request the usual serenade by a band will be omitted, and the only music will be a few hymns on the pipe organ after the dinner.

After an 8 o'clock breakfast his valet, John Yordi, will read him, as is customary, the high lights of the day's news. In addition, though, there will be a stack of congratulatory messages that already are arriving from all parts of the country.

If the weather is good, Mr. Rockefeller will play nine holes of golf, a sport on which he exhibits intense concentration.

ROCKEFELLER JR. URGED TO RUN FOR NEW YORK MAYOR

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Albert Ottinger, who came close to beating Franklin D. Roosevelt for governor in 1928, proposed today that John D. Rockefeller Jr. be nominated for mayor on the fusion ticket to oppose Mayor John P. O'Brien.

In all seriousness, Mr. Ottinger said he believed Mr. Rockefeller would be the ideal candidate and the strongest man the anti-Tammany forces could put up. Mr. Ottinger is a member of the Republican fusion committee, of which Charles S. Whitman is chairman, and is sponsoring the name of Mr. Rockefeller in that body.

Minimum Wage Law Is Also Approved.

Springfield, Ill., July 7.—[Special.]—Representative Sullivan's bill, providing that habitual criminals and their bodyguards may be prosecuted as vagrants, was among the bills signed by Gov. Horner today. It revives an old law for the suppression of loiterers with no visible legitimate means of support, making it applicable to modern conditions.

Gov. Horner also signed Senator John Lee's bill providing for a minimum wage for women and children. The law creates a wage board to consist of representatives of labor, employers, and the public, to be named by the governor, to establish wage standards, under the department of labor.

Among the bills signed by the governor today were:

JAPAN DEMANDS BIGGER GUNS AND BIGGER TANKS

GENEVA, July 7. — (AP) — Japan wants bigger tanks and bigger guns than are provided in the British draft convention for the disarmament conference, Tokio's delegation made known today in filing amendments.

The Japanese suggestions called for tanks of 20 tons instead of 16 tons, as authorized by the British project, which is the basis of discussions at the conference. Topographical conditions in the far east require tanks of a more extensive range and action, the Japanese document asserted.

Similarly the Tokio amendments advocate making the maximum limit for land guns 155 millimeters, instead of 115 as under the British plan.

BEER MAGNATES VOTE 'DIGNITY' FOR THEIR BREW

Col. Ruppert Jeers, but He's Outnumbered.

The public must be educated to the "dignity of beer," the board of directors of the oldest trade organization in America, the United States Brewers' association, decided with only one dissenting vote yesterday. The directors met at the Congress hotel.

The dissenting vote was cast by the president of the board, Col. Jacob Ruppert, the New York brewer who is better known as the owner of the New York Yankees' baseball club and boss of Babe Ruth.

"What does beer need with dignity?" Col. Ruppert roared when the question came up. "All beer has to have its foam and the proper taste and a kick. From what I've seen the public is well educated to beer.

"Everybody Knows It's Good."

"Why, I've been over at the World's Fair, sitting in the Streets of Paris, and I've seen dainty little girls, as pretty as a picture, putting their lips to steins. Right alongside them at the bars would be hoary old bachelors like myself drinking flagons of the stuff. Everybody knows that beer is good and they are putting their knowledge to practice."

Col. Ruppert looks like an artist's idea of a bank president and he can't appear undignified even when railing against dignity. But his colleagues felt that his speech was a slur upon beer. One of them interposed:

"But, Colonel, we hope through this campaign to make the public realize the true value of beer as a national drink. We are interested primarily in letting the public know just how sanitary, healthful, and beneficial good beer really is."

Plan Is Adopted Anyway.

And so the "dignity" plan was adopted by representatives of 70 per cent of the brewers in this country who have a capital investment of $600,000,000. Other projects which the board discussed involved the policing of racketeers out of the brewing industry and the setup of a wage and hour regulation which will conform to the demands of the federal government's new industry director.

"The wages paid by the beer industry always have been high," said C. D. Williams, secretary of the board. "The wages we will fix as minimum for our members will be 30 to 40 per cent above the federal minimum. As to hours, there will be no trouble about that.

"The beer industry's biggest year in America before prohibition was one in which 40,000,000 barrels were sold within a twelvemonth. We expect to exceed that during the next twelve months. Plants now are working sixteen, and some even twenty-four, hours a day."

The Racketeer Question.

Of the disciplining of brewers who brewed illegal beer before congress made 3.2 per cent beer nonintoxicating, the board would say little. Secretary Williams said that the brewers themselves wanted to make their industry as law abiding as the legal profession.

"But what are you going to do about the racketeers who are in the brewing business right now?" he was asked.

"I could tell you a lot of human interest stories about that situation—but I won't," he replied.

The return of the 5 cent glasses of beer, the brewers said, depends entirely on the attitude taken by the federal and state governments in the matter of taxes. If taxes were small beer soon would be selling at a nickel, they said, otherwise it will remain at approximately its present price.

GRANTED DIVORCE

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Judge Joseph Sabath granted a divorce yesterday to Mrs. Irene Ann Howard, 1601 Cullom avenue, from William Howard. Mrs. Howard waived alimony and was granted the custody of her son, William Jr., 7 years old. Questioned by her attorney, Harry X. Cole, she testified that Howard refused to work two years after their marriage in 1923 and that thereafter she supported the family by working as a stenographer.

TEACHERS GIVE NEW TRUSTEES SALUTE OF JEERS

Hear Horner Will Sign $40,000,000 Bond Bill.

Attorneys Andrew O. Jackson and Irwin N. Walker, new school trustees, received a baptism under fire of 400 teachers demanding their back pay when they were inducted into office yesterday. The teachers appeared at the school board meeting in the Builders' building, La Salle street and Wacker drive, under the impression that an economy program was to be announced. The plans have not been completed, however.

Twenty-four policemen and two sergeants under the command of Lieut. Patrick H. Bonner of the 1st district had been detailed to the meeting to keep order. The room was jammed with teachers when the board members took their seats.

Welcomed by McCahey.

"I wish to welcome Trustees Jackson and Walker," said President James B. McCahey, "and to compliment Mayor Kelly on the appointment of men of this caliber. I hope their duties will be pleasant."

The trustees then set about the routine buiness of spending $500 to repair pumps at Lane Technical High school and the adjustment of several contracts for the new school buildings, upon which work has been halted for two years. The measures were passed, but in the midst of the voting Trustee Walker arose.

"Mr. President," he said, "I would like to pass my vote since I don't know much about this business."

Says Horner Will Sign Bond Bill.

The statement brought a storm of applause, laughter and yells from the crowd. Then Trustee Helen Heffernan moved for adjournment. The board members filed out amidst boos and jeers from the teachers.

John Fewkes, generalissimo of the teaching force in their recent parades and demonstrations, shouldered his way to the front of the room.

"I have just talked to Gov. Horner on the long distance telephone," asserted Fewkes, "and he promised to sign the $40,000,000 school bond issue immediately."

Sale of the bonds, it was explained, will finance the operation of the schools up to the first of next year, including payment in full of back salaries.

TEACHERS CLOSE BIGGEST MEETING IN N. E. A. HISTORY

10,000 Educators Begin Journeys Home.

The largest convention in the history of the National Education association closed yesterday at the Stevens hotel with the adoption of resolutions to safeguard the cause of schooling the nation's youth. The 10,000 educators began their journey homeward after a full week of meetings embracing all phases of education.

One of the resolutions condemned "cities which have failed unnecessarily to pay their teachers." The association did not go on record as to what cities came into this category.

Oppose Further Economies.

"No school retrenchment is truly an economy measure," read the statement on school expenditures, "unless it preserves the educational rights of childhood and is based on scientific professional principles. In view of rising price levels school boards should refrain from further cutting of school costs, including salaries, and return to normal levels of expenditure as soon as possible in cases where excessive reductions have been made."

The resolution committee also took a stand that teachers of equivalent training and experience doing the same kind of work should receive equal pay, regardless of sex, and that teachers should not be discriminated against because of marital status. The concluding resolution praised the Chicago teachers for their zeal and devotion during payless days.

In the final session a fight developed between the classroom teachers and administrative officers over a proposed amendment of the bylaws. The change was recommended by a group of city teachers who claimed that the 144 former officers of the association, who now have the power of voting as delegates in the representative assembly of the N. E. A., do not represent their constituencies.

Calls N. E. A. Too Conservative.

One teacher charged "these people make the N. E. A. too conservative and new ideas aren't given a chance."

"There is no reason why those who once were elected should represent their constituencies forever," asserted Robert Keenan, a Chicago teacher. "We have many Benedict Arnolds in the teachers' profession."

A storm of protest led Mr. Keenan to add that he didn't think there were any Benedict Arnolds in the N. E. A.

The amendment failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote for passage. Washington won over Detroit as the next convention city of the N. E. A. The meeting will be held the first week in July.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

It was stated erroneously in an item on Sunday that motorists able to prove that they had not used their automobiles for the first six months of the year were entitled to buy state licenses at half price. Employes of the secretary of state pointed out yesterday that a motorist must pay the entire annual fee whenever the car is reregistered.

ROBBERS INVADE REALTY OFFICE ONCE TOO OFTEN

Twice since Jan. 1 robbers visited the real estate offices of the Augustiny & Fabry company at 821 North Ashland avenue in successful forays. Each time they got $1,000. Yesterday a third attempt was made, but the management was ready for this one. Three men strode in and commanded Dusan Augustiny, a partner, and Lawrence Bernstein, an employé of the concern, to raise their hands. They complied, but Augustiny stepped on a hidden button and great quantities of tear gas were released in the room. The choking robbers fled and so did the intended victims.

'FUR' SAMMONS SEIZED WITH GUN IN KANSAS CITY

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker was informed yesterday by federal officials at Kansas City, Mo., that they had arrested James [Fur] Sammons, notorious Chicago gangster and ex-convict.

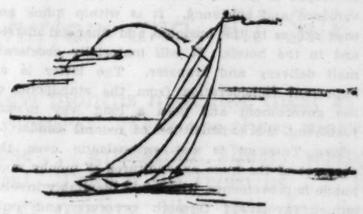

Sammons, an expert gang machine gunner, had $8,500, a quantity of jewelry and a loaded revolver on his person when federal agents arrested him as he entered a house which they were watching. The agents were seeking the gangsters who a month ago killed four officers and a prisoner with a machine gun on Kansas City streets.

Chief Schoemaker gave the opinion that Sammons, his mind believed unsettled by the years which he served in prison for murder, is a likely suspect in the Kansas City killings because of his known recklessness and his dexterity with a machine gun.

Sammons got out of Joliet prison on a writ of habeas corpus granted by Circuit Judge E. D. Shurtleff of Marengo, after he had been once liberated on the same plea and sent back to jail by order of the Illinois Supreme court. An appeal from Judge Shurtleff's ruling is now pending before the Supreme court.

Baltimore authorities have been trying for years to extradite Sammons to that city on a robbery charge.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

SCHOOLS IN THE WELFARE OF THE NATION.

One speaker at the convention of the National Education association, Paul C. Stetson, Indianapolis superintendent of schools, touched on a subject which frequently meets the disapproval of educators. He spoke of the necessity of economical management in the school system and the value of discovering the soft spots and getting rid of them.

Sometimes such counsel is regarded as an indication of hostility to the system of public education. Sound and necessary advice is thus held to be tainted with the desire to wreck the school structure for selfish capitalistic purposes. Any producer of wealth who had that idea would be extraordinarily silly. The spread of general education carries with it a diversification of wants. The wants of a primitive and unschooled people are frequently so simple that they can be filled by the home crafts of the people themselves. As schools raise the standard of life they increase the wants and demands people have and make possible the great commercial and industrial structure in which wealth is gained and used. A capitalist who wanted to destroy the public school system would be cutting his own throat.

When counselors and advisers urge school managements to be considerate and careful of public funds they have in mind the preservation of the school system and not its destruction. The ability to pay must be the final and determinant factor in a school budget. It is human nature for the people engaged in an enterprise to want to expand it. If they do not themselves have to provide the money they may not be so considerate of this ability to pay. When they have overextended their system they work their own injury because ultimately the failure of revenue must have its effect on the institutions dependent on it. These consequences, if they can be delayed in taking effect, gain thereby only the greater destructiveness when they fall upon the institution.

Taxation must be spread uniformly and therefore the determining factor is not the man of very great wealth but the citizen of moderate circumstances. When demands for money actually hurt him, as they have in recent years, the whole social structure begins to show the injury of it. There is a general public willingness to support excellent public schools, but there must be consideration of the necessary limitations on the private purse. Schools are in politics, and the law of politics is waste. Because educators are intelligent and public spirited they should be willing and they should be able to reduce the political content of the school system to its minimum, and they should be willing as well as able to get the best results at the lowest cost. If influential members of the teaching profession continue to regard such suggestions as indicative merely of malice to them and their work it is unfortunate for the great issues involved in the discussion and the decision.

OR ELSE.

Evidence is not lacking that an influential section of the brain trust is of the opinion that the way to induce prosperity is to frighten business men. Threats are filling the air. Trade agreements must be rushed through, or else . . . . Any attempt to test the validity of any of the new laws will lead to dire, if unnamed, consequences. The professoriat seems to have forgotten that even in the schoolroom threats are no longer the approved method of inducing pupils to learn their lessons. Applied to adults engaged in business, threats can only result in irritation, which is bad, and in loss of confidence, which is a thousand times worse if the purpose is to stimulate business and employment.

THE PROFIT MOTIVE.

When THE TRIBUNE sports department suggested the game played Thursday at Comiskey park the management of the two leagues and the sixteen ball clubs composing them immediately found every reason why the suggestion should be adopted and none why it should not. The difficulties were by no means inconsiderable. Schedules had to be rearranged, teams rerouted, a day found and a place decided upon, and the automatic working of the prearranged season had to submit to the readjustments which would put the selected players in Chicago.

Baseball is a profit seeking enterprise. Players and management are in the business of entertaining the public, and, although they have a natural bent for the sport and enjoy it, they're in it to make money. The readiness with which they cut through all the tape which might have prevented the acceptance of an interesting suggestion is worth noting because it reveals the flexibility and adaptability of the profit motive.

It is safe to say that no government bureaucracy and probably no nonprofit seeking management of amateur sports could possibly have responded to the proposal. All that a bureaucracy would have seen would have been the obstacles. The decision would have been predetermined by the attitude of the authoritative persons. Even the faculty management of collegiate sports would probably have resented a suggestion that their prearrangements be disturbed.

Rules and conventions and formulas get a sacred fixity which the mind reverences and refuses to change. In contrast can be seen the greater virtue of the system which operates for profit. It is suited for the fluid requirements of the world and is adapted to make the decisions and responses necessary to satisfy needs and meet situations as they arise. As this motive is weakened one of the most important and desirable inspirations is checked. The substitutes for it do not provide an equivalent force and they never confer public benefits compensating for the loss of the good which comes from active, imaginative, resourceful, private initiative seeking profit.

A NEW AIRPORT.

In the huge program of federal expenditure upon public work few petitions deserve more favorable consideration than that on behalf of the proposed lake front airport. The plans for this terminal have been thoroughly studied and the mayor will have expert opinion to support his appeal. Chicago is undoubtedly destined to be the hub of our continental system of air lines as it has been that of rail transportation and for similar reasons. It has been so recognized by leading air lines. Its terminal facilities should be improved and the lake front situation can be developed to give a station unsurpassed for convenience and efficiency. It is within quick and easy access to the business and financial district and to the hotels. It will materially accelerate mail delivery and transfer. The latter is an important consideration from the standpoint of the government and goes a long way toward justifying the expenditure of federal funds.

THE TRIBUNE is not enthusiastic over the prospect of the huge expenditures of money upon public improvements, which will inevitably involve unjust favoritism through pressure and pull, expenditures upon unnecessary and improvident projects, like the huge socialistic enterprise on the Tennessee, and much sacrifice in the form of heavy taxes upon the present and next generation. But if federal expenditure at this time is justified the development of well considered facilities for interstate air transport, including mail, would seem to be among the most legitimate disposals of federal money.

The aid for completion of the outer bridge is another project, allied in some degree with the airport development, and both involve modest drafts upon the vast expenditure proposed in the public works program. Compared to the millions already devoted to dubious projects, many of them of no federal significance, the funds sought for the Chicago projects are emphatically deserving.

HASTEN REPEAL.

The dry killing in Oklahoma following the shooting to death of an innocent youth by a local dry law enforcer in Iowa should provide a sharp incentive in all states to hasten ratification of repeal if they have not yet accomplished it. Both of these crimes were committed in districts in which the offenders seem to be politically too strong to be vigorously prosecuted, and they illustrate the stultification of the public conscience resulting from years of dry bigotry. The tide has now happily turned against this oppressive and perversive régime and the majority of the American people are returning to their normal reactions of justice and tolerance. But survivals of the régime are reminders that the sooner it is ended the better for the nation. The responsible citizenship and public agencies in every state which has not yet acted upon repeal should see to it that repeal is ratified at the earliest possible moment. Every day's delay means opportunity to commit murder with impunity.

MORE SOCIAL PLANNING.

As a manifestation of the planned society we offer the mandate of Herr Doctor Thomalla in charge of the Nazi campaign for bigger if not better families. The idea of the Nazi planners is that there are not enough German Aryans in the world and the production is to be stepped up by methods congenial to all thoroughgoing planners like the Anti-Saloon league, the Moscow commissars, and the Fascisti and Nazis. The herr doctor announces that all childless married women are to be branded "legalized prostitutes" and regarded as outcasts. Tax regulations are being formulated to encourage the intensified production of Aryans, and no doubt if these mild measures fail, the Nazi planners will think up more strenuous devices.

Editorial of the Day

A WINNING GAMBLE.

[Ottumwa Courier.]

The manner in which Chicago is "coming out of it" is arousing the interest and admiration of the entire country. A Century of Progress is doing it. The gloom of depression which held the nation's second city in its grasp for so long has lifted. With over 2,000,000 paid admissions rung up at the Fair gates already, Chicago, while scarcely able to believe it, is rejoicing.

Evidence of the new life is to be seen everywhere in the lake metropolis. Chicago is humming and it is crowded. And just a few months ago even the most loyal followers of the city's "I Will" slogan were doleful over the outlook. Of course Chicago still is woefully in debt, but it is on the way out.

Only a short time ago business was stagnant, stores and hotels were in bankruptcy or receiverships, and tens of thousands of unemployed were walking the streets. Today there has been a decided turn upward. The mammoth Fair out on the lake front, a strange mixture of worthy and gaudy exhibits, is credited with turning the trick, meaning millions for the regrowth of the city.

While Chicago rubs its eyes and wonders if it is true when it sees long lines waiting to register at the loop hotels, stores crowded with people buying, highways filled with visitors and thousands daily paying to see the Fair, it likes this new day and it believes it has come to stay.

Chicago gambled on the Fair when the city was down and out. It practically forced the sale of bonds to make the event possible. It looks as if the gamble will win. Certainly the new upturn it has given Chicago has made the venture worth while. The whole midwest joins in this feeling of better times.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

DOES A COLLEGE EDUCATION PAY? Take a wheel chair, now; it's never had what you might call a higher education, a wheel chair is really downright illiterate, but it earns seventy cents an hour, while the college graduate who pushes it gets only thirty. However, we would rather wheel some of those big, fat ladies around than have them sit in our lap. No, a wheel chair doesn't have it so soft even if it does get the most money. Of course, the wheel chair isn't bored to tears by being asked a thousand times a day if he played on the college team ("I'm jest crazy about football"), and if wheeling a chair around doesn't make his feet sore, and does he belong to the Eata Mucha Pie fraternity ("Say, they're swell, them Eata Mucha Pies; my boy friend belongs to 'em"), and things like that. But still you can't get away from the fact that if you're a wheel chair you've got to hold either a fat lady or a fat man, which is much worse, in your lap. Take it all in all, we'd rather be the Battle of Gettysburg. Then all we'd have to do would be to hear them say, "This must be a Russian battle, for all the soldiers have got whiskers."

ROMAN CANDLE.

A cardboard body with gaudy wrappings,
A gray-paper soul and a wick for a heart.
Poor dull thing, with your paper trappings,
Waiting a night and a match to start,
What? Do you know that your gray soul sleeping
Holds a miracle fast in its keeping?

I, like you, knew no lovely showers
Of sparks, 'til his lips were the match to light
My dull gray soul to its stars and flowers,
Which gave such radiance to the night.
Ah, the warmth of my heart and the pleasure
Of finding, at last, my unguessed treasure.

Roman candle, there'll come a nighttime
With velvet heavens, there'll be a flame
Touched to your wick, and you'll know a lifetime
Of ecstasy. What of after-pain?
What though tomorrow you lay bereft
With only your cardboard body left?
What though tomorrow you're broken and charred?
There was the sky, and there were your stars.

OUR FELLOW CITIZENS residing afar off in that dear France are fleeing homeward by the thousand because of the fall of the dollar. Likewise our tourists are turning back and hastening back to the old U. S. A. It's hard to see why, when the dollar isn't worth any more over here than it is elsewhere. But at home you don't notice it, because you don't have to take your dollars to the bank and get them changed into foreign currency. And what you don't know doesn't hurt you.

"WEEP NOT; the world changes," says the good poet Bryant. "Did it keep a stable, changeless state, it were cause indeed to weep." So yesterday when a voice over the telephone said, "This is me—you know, Max the Bootlegger," and I broke right in to say, "Nothing doing, the three-two stuff is good enough for me," Max shouted: "Wait a minit, now; I hain't sayin' nuttin' about hootch. This here now bread is a-goin' up Monday a cent a loaf more, an' I'm a-thinkin' I might do a little business in that line. I can sell it to you cheaper than what you'll get it at the stores. What about it?" "Get me a dozen loaves of Haig & Haig," says I, "or Canadian rye." "Wait a minute," gasped Max, "you got me goin'! I'm new in this breadleggin' game; don't kid me, I'm just a young felly a-tryin' to git on in the world. Play straight." So I told Max to get me either some corn bread or corn whisky, I didn't care which, just so it had corn in it, and left him to puzzle it out.

THE NAVY INSISTS that commercial broadcasters cannot have the wave lengths below 550 kilocycles because they need to talk back and forth between their ships. The navy's so small now that the next step should be to keep the ships together, and when they want to talk to each other the captains can poke their heads out of a porthole and yell.

"U. S. ENVOY Will Study Russia on Roosevelt Order."—Headline. I wish that U. S. envoy would find out something that has always bothered me. The first dinner I went to in Russia, a count or a baron or a prince or a grand duke—or maybe it was the czar; there was royalty all over the place—said to me, "Oh, Meester Littell, you must drink of the vodka to make you hungry and eat then to make you dry to drink of the vodka to make you hungry to eat of the food to make you dry"—and so on and so on. Now, what I want to know is, which comes first, the hunger or the thirst? Of course this is a good deal like the old question of whether the hen or the egg came first. However, in view of our approaching neighborliness with Russia, it is highly important.

TO THE LADIES.

And breathed deep breaths and sighed and sighed
As you beseeched that moon above
To tell you of your absent love:
"Oh Moon! where is my only one?
What doeth he?" And on and on.

Now be ashamed! And thank your stars
That moons can't talk; for Lochinvars
Went out, you know, with Walter Scott,
And your true love—as like as not—
Is with the fellows shooting pool

CHIGGER BITES.

A CHIGGER, commonly known as a redbug, is so small that the unaided eye can scarcely see the pest. But it can penetrate to the deeper structures of the skin and, what is a greater source of trouble, secrete a mild poison. This poison causes itching, redness, and some swelling; it is capable of liquefying blood—dissolving its corpuscles and causing it to ooze a short distance into the tissues.

There is no evidence that this poison can absorb in any harmful quantity, cause fever, hemolysis, or any other serious condition, or that it can transmit any disease. It is true that chigger bites sometimes result in ulcers, but that does not occur except as a result of scratching and infection by fingernail dirt. So far as the evidence goes, chiggers are of importance only in so far as they cause discomfort.

This carries with it one implication: if no attention, or very little, is paid to the itching—if the temptation to scratch is resisted, the discomfort caused by chigger bites will be reduced by half. If one will disregard the chigger, the discomfort caused will be greatly reduced and the hazard of infected scratch marks will be obviated. It holds true of all disorders and conditions the sole effect of which is discomfort that the patient contributes more than half the discomfort through his mental reaction and, as a corollary, the discomfort can be reduced at least half by the right kind of mental reaction.

There are various effective methods of relieving chigger bites. The one the writer knows most about calls for a drop or two of chloroform on each bite. After dropping on the chloroform one hand is cupped and held over the bite, so as to keep the chloroform fumes in contact with the skin. The hand is held in this position until the skin burns uncomfortably. This kills the bug in place. One treatment generally suffices. When the itching sensation disappears we know that the bug is dead, and that in a few days the swelling will disappear and the redness lessen gradually. Some people grease the bites with salted butter. There are several other very good chigger remedies—better than salted butter, in fact. The fond mothers of younger children may prefer to pick the bug out of the skin, using the point of a needle for the purpose.

There are various effective measures of prevention. A very good one is to start out in the morning by dusting powdered sulphur into the shoes and over the feet and up the legs to about the garter level. Ninety per cent of the chiggers invade from below. They get on the skin, usually of the feet and ankles, and crawl upward until they reach an obstruction such as a garter or a tight band on a garment. When its ascent is stopped the bug scouts around for an area of thin skin, then bores in, following the duct of a grease gland or sweat gland or a hair shaft. The skin on a flexor surface is generally chosen because it is thin.

It is a very good plan of prevention to take a bath and put on fresh undergarments after having been in pastures and other places where chiggers abound. Laundry soap is the best kind to use to wash off the bugs that have not yet holed in.

SWELLING FEET.

B. B. writes: I have a weak heart and am suffering from asthma. For the last two months my feet have been swelling. What can I do to stop the swelling? I am now feeling much better than I did two months ago, but my feet still continue to swell. Will bathing in salt water help? Is there any diet that I should follow to eliminate the swelling?

REPLY.

The probability is that your asthma and the swelling of your feet are both due to the condition of your heart. If the condition of the heart is improved by proper treatment of heart disease the asthma and the swelling will be relieved. Direct treatment of the effects is of very little service. Bathing in salt water and dieting are of minor importance.

TRAINING NEEDED.

V. L. writes: What makes me talk so fast and then get twisted up? I am a girl, 20 years of age.

REPLY.

You are afraid somebody will say it first, maybe. Your problem is one of training. Train yourself to be more deliberate, to decide just what you want to say, and then say it—slowly and with clearness of thought and of speech.

VACATION WAGES.

Chicago, July 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The company I work for has given two weeks vacation to each employé in the past. Nothing was said about a change until the arrival of the present vacation season. Now the boss says "no vacations." Is he within his rights? H. B.

No. There are few reported cases due to the fact that the amount involved usually is not large enough to warrant appeal, but it has been held that wages are "earned" for the purposes of the preference provisions of the bankruptcy act where a bona fide contract of hiring exists, and the clerk or servant contiuues in the master's employment and does all that he is required to do. "The practice of giving vacations with continued pay is very general in all departments of business. Vacation wages cannot be regarded as a mere gratuity, given in recognition of past or present services. By continuing the relation of employer and employé during a dull season, the employer holds his working force in readiness for the active season. The relation of the employer and employed is as strictly a business relation as it is during the working season and there is full legal consideration for the master's promise to pay wages during this period." "LET THE BUYER BEWARE."

Chicago, July 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have a lease on a basement flat until October. The place is very damp. The dampness is so penetrating we wish to move. The husband is the only provider, earning $25 a week. There are five in the family depending on him. Can the landlord garnishee his wages in the event he moved? A. S.

In general, tenant is supposed to inspect the premises before moving in and the maxim "let the buyer beware" applies. It seems probable that you would remain liable if you move out. It would be safer for you to try to get the president of the board of health in the city hall to act.

JULY 8, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—Whisky is dead in the United States for the period of the war. It went into oblivion yesterday when the senate voted to prohibit use of foods for manufacture of distillates and adopted also an amendment by Senator Smoot of Utah directing the president to commandeer all distilled spirits now in bond and to pay owners thereof the cost of production plus not more than 10 per cent profit.

LONDON.—German airmen raided London yesterday. The raid lasted scarcely twenty minutes, but during that time a number of bombs were dropped on the fashionable West End and the northwestern suburbs and a deluge of explosives was poured down on the central part of the metropolis, even on the "city" proper, the center in which lie the great banking and mercantile establishments. When the fighting was over it was found that 37 persons had been killed and 141 wounded. The outcry for reprisals has become so strong that several members of parliament announce that they will make formal demand for such action as soon as the house of commons reconvenes.

A FRENCH SEAPORT—The American troops entered yesterday on the final step of the mobilization that shall prepare them to leave within a few days for a permanent training camp somewhere behind the firing line. The unloading of supplies is almost finished and rolling stock is being concentrated preparatory to the departure of the troops.

WAR SUMMARY.—Petrograd reports the renewal of a vicious battle from Pinsk to the Carpathians and the capture of various German strongholds. Berlin, however, says the Russian tide has been stemmed. Paris reports the repulse of Germa attacks. An artillery duel is raging along the whole western front. Berlin reports the repulse of French surprise attacks in various sectors.

WASHINGTON.—Fifteen German subjects employed by neutral legations and consulates are on the state department's blacklist. Within a few days they will wind up their affairs and start for Germany. The government has decided that it cannot tolerate longer the presence of these aliens in positions where they might render valuable service to the kaiser.

LONDON.—A Reuter's dispatch from Peking announces that Hsuan Tung, the young emperor, has abdicated. Hsuan Tung, the son of Prince Chun, became emperor Dec. 2, 1908, under the regency of his father.

A DECADENT GENERATION.

Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., July 2.—I have just read with interest your editorial, "Government and Liberty," which, of necessity, covers less than one-half of one per cent of the subject. I note your continuing policy of sound adherence to the constitution, yet yours is as a voice crying in the wilderness. No one but a handful of oldsters read comprehendingly what you editorially print. "Eyes they have, yet they see not; ears they have, yet they hear not," applies almost equally to the last three generations. If a secret vote of your own employés were to be taken I am certain that the vote would be that your editorial policy is old fogyish. Today's slogan is: "Everything that is old is bad and must be torn down; everything that is new is good and must be upheld."

Each civilization, like an individual, is born, strives with mighty strength toward its adult growth, reaches its peak, becomes luxurious, decadent and finally dies. Through all the ages, history, without exception, has repeated itself. In Egypt, Joseph was a great statesman and made his country wealthy. But there came a generation which knew not Joseph and his policies were forgotten. Where today is Egypt?

Every present governmental policy presupposes, as you point out, a race of superhumans as administrators. Where can we find them? Certainly not among the politicians, nor yet among the big business men, who have so recently proven themselves the dumbest of fools. Your editorials are pleasant to a few of us, but you cannot stop the avalanche, and the false prophets should be punished. I pity only the babies.

HARD WORDS.

Benton Harbor, Mich., June 21.—Some few days ago a native of perfidious Albion turned his ignoble mind towards slander of the basest kind of John Paul Jones.

It is rather amusing to any other national to read the blatant mouthings of any representative of a race noted for the double deal, perfidy, and unspeakable national characteristics. England is a nation that was conceived in iniquity and brought forth in crime. It has been the progenitor of more crime, hatred, and violence than any other nation on the face of the globe, and even its own colonies are ashamed of the mother country.

QUESTION.

Chicago, July 1.—Is it true that a contest is on between the Chicago police force and Chicago's utterly unrestrained bandits to see which side can make it most uncomfortable for visitors to A Century of Progress? ANDERSON PACE.

HE WOULDN'T SPARE THAT TREE.

Chicago, June 21.—I have a new idea for helping economy along. I suggest that the gigantic trees lining all Chicago streets be cut down by the unemployed and converted into various forms of wood.

CLARENCE M. ANDERSON.

THE TRUTH ABOUT POLAND.

Chicago, July 3.—THE TRIBUNE has presented to the American public, with candid impartiality, undiluted facts about a nation of 31 million people, the sixth largest nation in population in Europe, in the editorial "Renascent Poland."

It is certainly refreshing to read the truth after the usual run of insidious propaganda—whether unwitting or deliberate—disseminated by certain American journalists in support of territorially ambitious Europeans.

The editorial clearly indicates that the Poles with innate determination and traditional pacifism have transformed their country from a diversified order of social, cultural, economic, and political incompatibilities—the outcome of almost 150 years of futile attempts at denationalization and subjection by three foreign despots—into a homogeneous, industrious and peaceful people. It further proves that the Poles can preserve internal order and harmony, and govern to the general welfare of their nation and the world, contrary to the contention of incapability to do so which was made the basis of the first partition in 1772.

ANDREW F. ZAJDA.

A RECOLLECTION OF PAT MURRAY.

Chicago, June 28.—Your valedictory on the passing of Pat [Fish] Murray was O. K. except for one omission in the colorful career of that picturesque personality. During his kerosene swatting campaign against purveyors of deteriorated fish the resourceful Pat capitalized on his political and personal clientele and his press agent publicity by opening a saloon and restaurant. This was not like Rector's. It was unique. A cozy little cubby-hole of a hideout in the basement on the west side of Dearborn street, south of Randolph street. A wee bar at the foot of the stairs, with one specialty—real "poteen" from the Emerald isle, called "mountain dew." Pestled into a saturation of lump sugar and served as old fashioned toddy, then just one more of the same. You had reached the saturation point and felt like moving the mountain. The edible menu, served at the few small tables and displayed mostly in a glass ice cooled case, consisted of steaks, chops—and fish, of course. And, O boy! what fish! Certainly Pat knew his fish. This was a sociable hangout for politicians, newspaper men and the Irish. But this miniature replica of Billy Boyle's did not last long. Maybe Pat overextended his credit to customers, being a generous and jovial spirit.

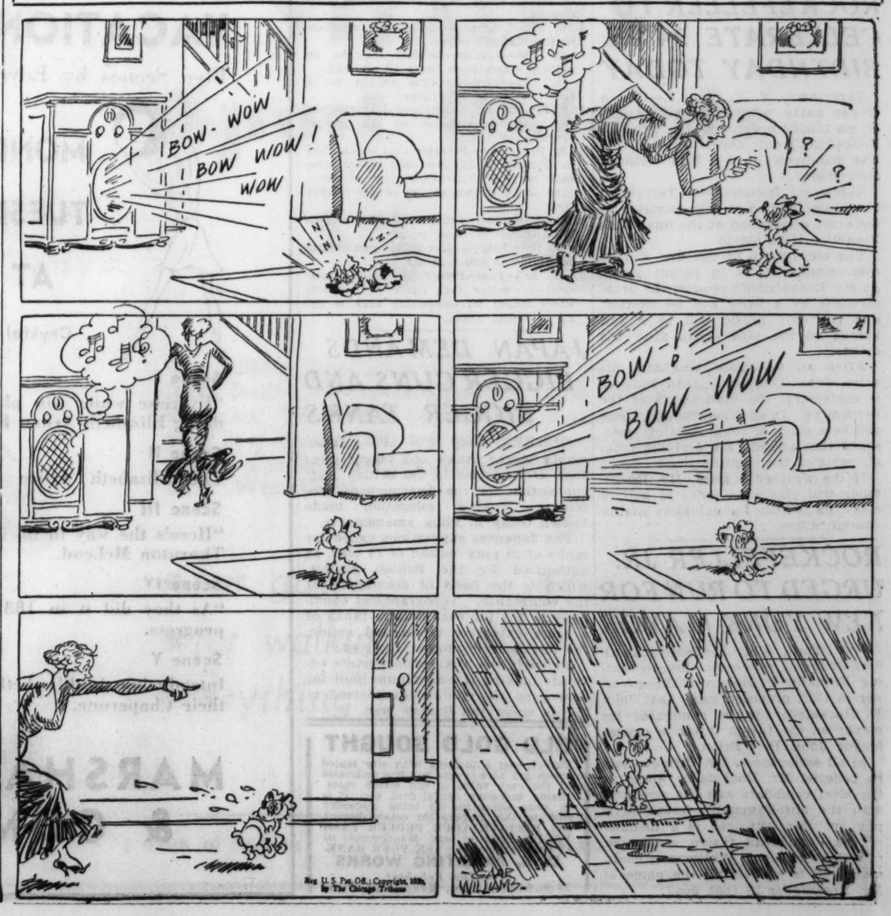

ARTHUR W. O'NEILL.

A PLEA FOR SUBURBAN POLICE.

Chicago, July 2.—THE TRIBUNE should be commended for its announced campaign to promote courtesy in policemen, but the offer of $25 weekly does not take in enough territory. Chicago, in the main, has a fine police department, but the suburbs, such as Oak Park, Evanston, Flossmoor, and many others, have departments just as fine. Why not take in all the suburbs in the Chicago area?

WARRANTS OUT FOR POLICEMAN AND CAB CHIEFS

Accused by Former Driver of Checker Taxi.

Charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice against five men accused in connection with the conflict between the Checker Cab company and a rebel faction of its drivers were continued until July 21 by Judge Thomas A. Green in the traffic court yesterday. The delay was granted in order to allow attorneys for the accused men sufficient time to examine the charges.

The charges grew out of a complaint of Ivar Swedberg, a shell shocked war veteran and former Checker cab driver. He asserted that the company officials forced him to testify falsely about the ownership of his cab, which was involved in an accident.

Warrants Issued by Judge.

Judge Green, after hearing Swedberg's story, issued warrants for Michael Sokol, president of the Checker Cab company; Paul L'Amoreaux, an official of the Parmelee company with which the Checker company is affiliated; Morris Markin, president of the Checker Cab Manufacturing company; George Egan, a claim adjuster for the Checker Cab company, and Policeman William McEvoy, who is attached to the vehicle bureau and who is one of the incorporators of an indemnity insurance company which bonds the cab drivers.

Another charge before Judge Green involving Policeman McEvoy also was continued to July 21. This is a complaint by William Evans, owner of a small bus line, who charged that McEvoy harassed him in an effort to have him take insurance "in the right company."

The Swedberg case is one of a series of court cases involving the Checker Cab company in the conflict which led to a revolt by 800 of the driver-owners of cabs. These drivers defied the company and reduced their rates from 20 cents for first half mile and 10 cents for each succeeding half mile, to 15 cents the first third mile and 5 cents for each third mile thereafter.

Report Earnings Boosted.

Numerous drivers reported to Judge Green yesterday that they are now kept busy most of the time, and that their daily earnings have jumped from $2 or $3 a day to $12 to $15 daily, due to the lowered rates. They are taking most of the business away from their competitors, the Yellow cabs, they said. The Yellow company charges the 20-10 rate.

"The Checker company has taken off several of our starters," one Checker driver said. "But even so, we get the business. We still get telephone business at our stands, but we don't need to go near a stand.

"We don't go to the World's Fair for loads now, and we don't need to. A driver might be the 500th cab in line there, and then get a 50 cent load.

"What the cab business in Chicago needs is smart management and rates low enough so the public can afford to ride. The public is showing its appreciation of our 15-5 rate and we only hope we will be able to keep on at this rate without interference by the company."

Case Pending in U. S. Court.

The driver gave his explanation in reply to a question as to whether there were any reprisals on the part of the company because of the revolt of the drivers who own their own cabs or are paying for them. The company sought the aid of the federal court to take the cabs from those drivers who owe money to the company for their cars. However, under an order issued by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, the drivers are to retain possession of the cabs pending a hearing on July 15, and they are permitted to continue the 15-5 rate at least until then.

All Checker drivers questioned yesterday said the reduction had increased their business greatly. If after July 15 the company tries to restore the 20-10 rates they will try to pay their indebtedness and take their cabs into another company, many said.

TRAFFIC REPORT HOLDS RECKLESS WALKER MENACE

The reckless pedestrian is condemned as a public menace, responsible for a large portion of street fatalities, in a report issued yesterday by Ald. John A. Massen [48th] as chairman of the council committee on traffic and public safety. The report was on an analysis of Chicago's 850 automobile deaths in 1932.

The statistics show 629 walkers and 221 vehicle passengers as the victims of last year's motor toll. The number of pedestrians killed between intersections, where the motorist clearly has the right of way, was 297. In deaths at intersections it is more difficult to determine whether the walker or the driver was at fault.

The statistics show that fatalities among school children and young men and women who have received safety instructions, are on the decrease.

NEGRO IN PRISON TRIES TO RAPE WIFE OF GUARD

Charles [Sugar] Johnson, 31 years old, a Negro who was convicted of the murder of a peddler during the Chicago race riots in 1919, began a thirty day term in a solitary cell at Stateville penitentiary yesterday after an attempt to rape the wife of Frank Smith, captain of the guards.

Johnson seized Mrs. Smith and threw her to the ground after he had been sent to the Smith home near the honor farm to work.

The woman's screams attracted John Peterson, superintendent of the honor farm, who captured the Negro. Johnson was sent to the prison in 1919 to serve a life term for the murder of Morris Lazzeroni, a peddler. His sentence was commuted to expire on Dec. 24, 1933, by Gov. Emmerson in July, 1932.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—Refusal of milk producers and dealers in the Chicago area to submit to regulation by Gen. Hugh Johnson, federal industry czar, was revealed today as the basis for the current dispute between representatives of the Chicago milk trade and officials of the agricultural adjustment administration.

A tentative marketing agreement, drawn up under the provisions of the farm relief act, has been submitted to the department of agriculture by farmers and milk dealers in the Chicago milk shed. But the insistence of administration leaders that such marketing agreements be so drawn as to constitute codes of fair competition under the industry control act has met with stiff and as yet unallayed opposition from the Chicago producers and dealers.

Under an executive order, issued by the President several days ago, trade agreements under the farm act are to be so drawn and coördinated that they will at the same time constitute codes of fair competition under the industrial recovery act administered by Mr. Johnson.

The inclusion of such matters as hours of work, wages and the like, in marketing agreements, will operate offensively against the farmer, according to the Chicago milk trade spokesmen.

JOLIET WAR ENDED

Retail milk prices will be increased three cents a quart in Joliet on Monday morning, it was announced yesterday by the milk companies of that city, in which a milk price war and controversy over wages has been going on for several months. The present price of 7 cents a quart will be raised to 10 cents.

With the price increase the companies will pay dairy farmers $1.90 a hundred pounds [46½ quarts] for milk delivered in Joliet. A satisfactory wage settlement with the milk wagon drivers' union is made a part of the companies' action in signing a trade agreement under the new federal farm act.

The new agreement will be submitted, along with a similar agreement now pending for the Chicago companies, before the farm adjustment administration in Washington.

Council to Investigate Parmelee Charges.

Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the city council local transportation committee, said yesterday that the committee will make an investigation of the Parmelee Transfer company's practice of charging rates for handling baggage out of Chicago railroad stations in excess of the maximum set by city ordinance.

The matter was brought to Ald. Bowler's attention by a case in which the company charged $5 for hauling five pieces of baggage from the Union station to the Medinah Michigan Avenue club. Section 2148 of the city code fixes a maximum rate of 50 cents for the first two miles and 25 cents for each additional mile for each piece of baggage 350 pounds or less.

Protests Gouging Visitors.

"Every day thousands of visitors to the World's Fair arrive here by rail with their baggage," Ald. Bowler pointed out. "Unless they are protected against extortionate charges they will go home with the feeling that Chicago is trying to gouge its guests."

The Parmelee Transfer company is a subsidiary of the Parmelee company, a Delaware corporation. That corporation also controls the Yellow and Checker Cab companies, whose representatives have been active in recent months in attempts to force through the council a monopoly taxicab ordinance which would bar from the field concerns operating cabs at reduced rates.

The Parmelee Transfer company has a monopoly of the baggage transfer business originating in all Chicago railroad stations. Its solicitors, by contract with the railroads, have the exclusive right to solicit business on incoming trains.

Deny City's Authority.

Officials of the company contend that no public body, neither the interstate commerce commission, the Illinois commerce commission, nor the city vehicle commission, has any authority over their rates. Their attorney, Sidney M. Glick, asserted that the section governing rates and another section providing for city licenses for baggage carts and trucks were included in the 1931 city code by mistake, having been repealed two years before.

There is no record of the council ever having repealed the maximum rate section. It did, on May 12, 1930, repeal the section providing for city licenses. The repealed ordinance was given to the council, without explanation, on March 6, 1930, by Thomas J. Courtney, the present state's attorney, who was then a state senator.

Inclusion of the two sections for licensing and fixing maximum rates in the new code in 1931 automatically wiped out the repealer, aldermen pointed out yesterday.

WIFE SUES FOR DIVORCE FROM W. J. M'CAULEY

Mrs. Adelaide Smith McCauley, 942 Michigan avenue, Evanston, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court against William J. McCauley, retail advertising manager of Montgomery Ward & Co.

Mrs. McCauley's bill, filed by Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr. charges that McCauley committed indiscretions in Chicago on May 3 and 4 with one Pixie Mayne, and repeated the offense with the same woman in Lexington, Ky. on May 5, 6, 7, and 8.

Mr. and Mrs. McCauley, married in 1917, separated on March 30, the bill states. They have two children, Betty, 15 years old, and Jean, 7. Mrs. McCauley charges that her husband gets a salary of $650 a month and owns bonds worth $50,000. Judge Walter J. LaBuy issued an injunction restraining him from disposing of any of his assets pending a hearing on temporary alimony Tuesday.

UNITES 42 BANK RECEIVERSHIPS TO SAVE EXPENSE

Plan Delayed by Court Goes Into Effect.

A move to "curtail expenses to depositors of liquidation of assets of closed banks" was taken by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett yesterday in consolidating under William L. O'Connell some 42 of the 145 Cook county bank receiverships. The state auditor promises eventually to consolidate all the bank receiverships in one office with one staff of auditors, clerks, attorneys, and one receiver.

The move was no surprise since the plan was outlined from the platform during Mr. Barrett's campaign for office against former State Auditor Oscar Nelson. Since last February Mr. Barrett has had in his possession the resignations of all the receivers under his control.

High Court Overrules Shurtleff.

Execution of the plan had been delayed while the state Supreme court issued a writ of mandamus directing Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Lake county to expunge from the records of his court an order invalidating the appointment of O'Connell as receiver of the closed Lake County State bank. The order was entered last March 8. The auditor appealed it on April 4, and the mandamus was issued last week, sustaining the right of the auditor to appoint bank receivers which Judge Shurtleff had denied.

O'Connell is a Democrat, once Cook county treasurer and the first chairman of the Illinois public utilities commission. He has been suggested by United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis for a post with the federal organization administering the $3,300,000,000 public works recovery program.

After announcing that he had accepted the resignations of the receivers, State Auditor Barrett said:

"It is my plan to centralize the work of receivership of these banks in a few locations, probably one on the north side, one on the west side, and one on the south side.

Great Savings Obvious.

"Obviously these consolidations will effect great savings in rent, clerical hire, receivership salaries, attorneys' fees, and miscellaneous expenses. It will be possible to curtail greatly the number of people now engaged in liquidating closed banks and to reduce expenses generally."

It was estimated that the slash in receivership fees alone would save depositors of the 42 banks a total of more than $100,000. Expenses incidental to the liquidation such as rent, clerical help, and attorneys would amount to approximately five times as much, it was said.

Barrett explained that temporarily the staffs of the old receivers will continue to function until the central offices have begun to operate.

The fee for the new general receiver has not been fixed, but Mr. Barrett said it would amount only to a fraction of the combined fees of the 42 receivers.

Takes Over Four More Banks.

The state auditor yesterday took over liquidation of four banks in the Chicago area which were not relicensed following the national moratorium in March. They are the Madison-Kedzie Trust and Savings bank, the Belmont-Sheffield Trust and Savings bank, the State Bank of Blue Island, and the State Bank of Palatine.

The banks have been in charge of the auditor's examiners, but no receivers have been appointed while attempts to reorganize were under way.

The Du Page Trust company of Glen Ellyn and the State Bank of West Point, in West Point, Ill., were given permission last night by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett to reopen without restrictions this morning.

DESPONDENT, SHOOTS SELF.

Frederick Ekstrom, 38 years old, 938 Rush street, shot himself yesterday at his home, apparently in an attempt to commit suicide. He was taken to the Henrotin hospital. Ekstrom's wife said he had been despondent over illness.

POISON IVY

PICNIC PARTIES ARE WARNED TO SHUN POISON IVY

Beware of 3 Leaved Plants, Is Rule.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Week end tourists and picnic parties will find it advisable to learn to recognize the three leafed poison ivy plant before venturing heedlessly into the hinterlands of the Chicago area. While most of the forest preserves and privately owned woods are fairly free of this plant, which can cause painful poisoning, patches have been found in well beaten paths within Chicago itself this week.

Poison ivy is growing abundantly along roadsides of Cook and nearby counties and has caused several cases of poisoning among parties who stopped to pick wild berries or flowers. Since the poison usually requires some time to penetrate the skin those unfamiliar with the plant seldom realize until too late the source of their trouble.

"Leaflets three, let it be," is a rule given by botanists to warn people from taking a chance of handling poison ivy. The plant grows in low clumps or in the form of a low creeping vine on tree trunks and stumps. The plants are always divided into three leaflets, with smooth surface and edges.

One danger sign is the whitish, waxy fruit which appears on some ivy plants. The flowers appear usually late in July or early August. They are small, greenish white clusters formed in the axils of the leaves. The berries, appearing later, sometimes last all winter.

Ivy is most frequently confused with wild grapevine or woodbine. The formation of leaves offers the safest means of differentiation, both the grape and woodbine leaves being rougher surfaced and with more than one point jutting out on the leaflet. The two harmless vines also do not have the three leaflets joined.

Some people know the poison ivy as poison oak, poison creeper, climbing sumac, or three leaved ivy. Sumac in some forms is poisonous to humans and livestock. It is frequently referred to as swamp sumac, poison elder, poison dogwood, poison ash, or thunderwood.

RICHARD LIEBER RESIGNS PARKS POST IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, Ind., July 7.—[Special.]—Richard Lieber of Indianapolis, builder of Indiana's famous system of state parks, today resigned his posts held in the administration of Gov. Paul V. McNutt.

Head of the state department of conservation since it was created in 1919, Lieber since early in the Gov. McNutt administration has retained the subordinate posts of state parks commissioner and superintendent of lands and waters, under the state's new department of public works.

Virgil Simmons, Bluffton attorney and former member of the legislature, who served as one of Gov. McNutt's legislative advisors, was appointed to directorship of the new department of public works.

FATHER CHARGES HOSPITAL HOLDS GIRL AS HOSTAGE

Attorney Victor Frohlich yesterday filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the Superior court against St. Mary of Nazareth hospital, Leavitt and Thomas streets, on behalf of Edwin Jaswick, 3243 South Morgan street. Jaswick charges that the hospital is holding his daughter, Lorraine, 6 years old, because he is unable to pay the bill for her treatment. She went to the hospital a month ago with a broken leg, which is now entirely healed, he charged. Judge Joseph B. David ordered the hospital to answer the writ at 10 o'clock this morning. "No human being can be held as a hostage for the payment of a bill," Judge David ruled.

The collection of personal property taxes for 1931 totaled $2,260 yesterday.

County Judge Jarecki yesterday ordered 26 properties into receivership under the Kerner-Skarda act. County Treasurer McDonough was appointed receiver in each case to collect all income from the property until delinquent taxes are paid.

The old Essanay studio, 1349 Argyle street, home of pioneer motion pictures, was among the properties ordered into a tax receivership. The petition against the property, filed by Assistant State's Attorney William T. Crilly, declared that $13,176 is due in delinquent taxes upon the property.

Stevens Hotel to Pay $100,000.

Attorneys for the Stevens hotel notified the county treasurer that a payment of $100,000 will be made today on delinquent 1931 taxes against a balance of $197,582 due. The hotel is in federal receivership.

Suits to place 75 more properties under tax receivership were filed in the County court by Assistant Corporation Counsel William L. Sullivan. Delinquent taxes upon the defendant properties total $317,408.

$642,500 Revenue Distributed.

County Treasurer McDonough distributed to the major local tax spending bodies $642,500 in 1931 taxes. The distribution was as follows:

City and schools, $500,000; Sanitary district, $40,000; South park, $40,000; state, $25,000; Lincoln park, $17,500; forest preserves, $10,000; West parks, $10,000.

Approximately 200 receivership petitions will be heard by Judge Jarecki today.

HEAVILY LOADED BARGES START VOYAGE TO GULF

Freight carriers of the Federal Barge lines, powered by the towboat Warner, left Chicago yesterday loaded to capacity with goods for delivery via the lakes to gulf waterway to destinations on the Mississippi river, the Gulf of Mexico, and the Pacific coast.

Lead toys, wood working machinery, paints and hardware, furniture, incandescent lamps, and bags of talc were consigned to New Orleans. Petroleum products, boxes of clothing, and shoes were destined for Mobile, Ala. Tampa and Jacksonville, Fla., were to receive chemicals.

A carload of automobile springs was on board for Seattle, Wash., two carloads of coaster wagons for San Fancisco, as well as tools and pipe fittings. Sheet metal was consigned for Los Angeles, and bar steel for St. Louis.

Service twice weekly is provided by the Federal Barge lines from their loading platform at the North Pier terminal warehouse. The barges from Chicago are taken to Peoria, placed in tow for St. Louis and sent from there to New Orleans in larger tows.

ANN CUNNINGHAM HIS BRIDE, SAYS AD EXECUTIVE

Malcolm Anthony Jennings, advertising executive, 1250 Stone street, last night verified reports of his marriage to Ann Cunningham, 1223 Astor street, radio artist, in Crown Point Thursday night. Jennings is the former husband of Marcia Masters, daughter of Edgar Lee Masters, the poet. She obtained a second divorce from him on grounds of cruelty Oct. 18, 1932, in the court of Superior Judge Walter T. Stanton, and was awarded custody of a 10 months old daughter, Marcia. The first decree on similar grounds was obtained July 6, 1930, their second marriage occurring about six months later.

Stong Offers Another Novel of Farm Life

'Stranger's Return' Work That Has Reality.

"Stranger's Return," by Phil Stong. [Harcourt-Brace.] Published on Thursday.

Phil Stong had written twelve novels before his lucky thirteenth, "State Fair," brought him fame and [even in these days] fortune. Whether "Stranger's Return," Phil Stong's new novel, is one of that dozen of rejected manuscripts or number fourteen in the list of Mr. Stong's opuses, there is no official statement. It might be either. It is not the book that "State Fair" was, and yet it has a sureness of method that shows it definitely not the work of an amateur. I suspect that it was number twelve . . . the book that was almost good enough to cause a furore, but which lacked a certain uniqueness which a first published novel needs to fish it out of the river of novels flowing down to the sea of oblivion.

PHIL STONG.

"State Fair" had that punch. "Stranger's Return" lacks it, but once the world has come to know Phil Stong's material and method, "Stranger's Return" will unquestionably be appreciated for the quality which it has, one of the serenity of growing things and the reality of a farming family in mid-Iowa. The plot is fragile—the return of a granddaughter to the farm of a testy, but very determined old codger who is harassed by daughters and nieces-in-law who are waiting about like buzzards to pick the bones of his farm as soon as his eighty-five years take him to his grave, or as soon as they can manage that his vigorous mental old age can be certified into senility.

The fact that the granddaughter comes from New York and that she is a divorced woman adds mildly to the plot, as does also the fact that a neighbor farmer is her mental equal and not on the level of his prosaic "kinder kuchen and kirche" wife. Love, like the famed local crop, blossoms quickly "out where the tall corn grows." How the lovers settle their emotional problem is less important in the book than how the old man manages to settle life for those whom he cares most for.

The person the reader will remember in "Stranger's Return" is not the stranger, but Grandpa Storr, who is a "character." He is, however, no rag man, stuffed with straw and presented to the public as a "type." Grandpa Storr is as real as the cider apples from which the juice trickles in a golden stream, as real as the Sunday dinner of roast duck which he insists is "a way underdone. The God-damned thing ought to have been burnt up entirely." Grandpa Storr is a profane old man who has his last joke in his coffin when the preacher—following death bed instructions—has to preach word for word—with a penalty for one word too many—the sermon which put him comfortably to sleep at his last attendance at church. Grandpa has cursed his nearest neighbor in language which to the uninitiated might sound insulting, but which between himself and Guy is understood as the most intimate friendliness. You'll be amused by Grandpa Storr, and you'll find something of the richness and reality of farm life in "Stranger's Return."

Mr. Everyman Offers Verse He's Collected

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—This week I must speak of an author of twenty-one and an author of seventy-four. The author of seventy-four is Ernest Rhys, known the world over as the editor of Everyman's Library. No wonder he calls his little book of collected poems "Rhymes for Everyman"! But that title gives a wrong impression of the book. It makes it seem as if the rhymes were jog-trot doggerel, whereas nothing could be farther than this from the fact. They are as firm and juicy as a fine apple.

ERNEST RHYS.

Although, as we know from his autobiography, "Everyman Remembers," Mr. Rhys has been all his life a book lover, a journalist, a novelist, and an editor, he has always been, first and last, a poet. His shortest prose sentence has been that of a man who loves words and their proper ordering; his happiest literary associations have always been with poetry. "Rhymes for Everyman," though not for those who prefer homely jingles with a moral, will delight all who have any sense of lyrical beauty.

The book is a book of songs, quiet, serious, and very attractive, by one who has watched the world for many years without growing tired of it. Mr. Rhys is very wise; but he will never grow old. At seventy-four he is younger than most of us.

He is not younger than my author of twenty-one, but there is time for this author to grow much older. His name is Harold Albert [Albert being the true surname], and he has written his first novel. The interesting thing about Mr. Albert is that he is not, as so many of the new writers in England are, an elaborately cultured young man who finds life repulsive. Not at all. He finds it very full of interest. Last year, for example, he got married and set out to show his wife the pleasures of Europe. Together they explored Germany. But Mr. Albert's novel was already written, for it is about London life, and a kind of it that is well known to the author.

The title of the book is "Café People." The book itself, I am told, has been thought to show some affinity with Arnold Bennett's "Imperial Palace" [although it is in no sense derived from "Imperial Palace"], for it sets out to describe the life and organization of one of those giant teashops which are a feature of London.

BRIEF REVIEWS

N. D. Cochran, author of "E. W. Scripps" [Harcourt Brace], was the editor of the first adless newspaper, the Day Book, founded in Chicago in 1911 with a life span of six years. Through his long and intimate contact with E. W. Scripps, both in an official and unofficial capacity, he is eminently fitted to write the record of his chief's life and accomplishments. E. W. Scripps was the son of a farmer and, though he had no particular interest in farm work as such, he said in later life that he first learned the principles of leadership there. He soon became interested in journalism and started with other members of his family the chain of newspapers throughout the country whose control in a comparatively short time lay in his hands. He also was responsible for the founding of the United Press. E. W. Scripps was a rugged and powerful figure in the history of journalism.

N. D. COCHRAN.

George Buchanan has written a charming and thoughtful book "Passage Through the Present" [Dutton]. The author chats of cabbages and of kings with equal zest and informality. He writes of politics and economics, of interesting personalities, of literature and the arts, of human relationships, of emotions such as love, hate, loyalty.

"Passage Through the Present" is mainly composed of diary or journal fragments, bits of dialogue the author has overheard, snatches of observations and thought, sometimes longer discourses on significant themes, stories both real and imaginary taken from the canvas of life and experience.

"Understanding Investment," by Alliston Cragg [Dodd Mead], author of "Understanding the Stock Market" tells the layman, in clear, concise and simple terms, what to do about investments. Besides the explicit information about investing your money, the author explains the present economic system in an indirect way, to be understood by every one with ordinary intelligence. If there is any one still who has money to invest, he might consult Mr. Cragg.

Author Declares Music Inspired 'Orient Express'

Graham Greene, author of "Orient Express" [Doubleday-Doran], the drama of a group of people traveling from Ostend to Constantinople, says that it was not a railway journey but a piece of music that inspired his novel. Though Mr. Greene made the very same trip several years ago it was not until he heard Honneger's "Pacific 231" that the idea for the novel came to him.

An English Lawyer Finds Life Pleasant in Our Southwest

"Enchanted Sand," by D. J. Hall [William Morrow], subtitled "A New Mexican Pilgrimage," is a record of the experiences of a health seeking young English lawyer and his wife who find in our great southwest many things besides health.

They spend a season in a work camp and a rest camp, living among the Mexicans and Indians, and round out their findings by a trip across the sand swept trails into the remotest depths of Indian land, to the Grand canyon and on to Los Angeles.

The end papers are clever picture maps of the district traversed, done by Mrs. Lawyer, which really illustrate this fascinating account of the colorful, picturesque, unusual journeyings in this colorful, picturesque, unusual country. It's like a snapshot book of familiar scenes to the confirmed Santa Fé-ite—of whom there are many—and it's an intriguing piece of travel talk to the uninitiated.

Paul Harvey Defends His William Falkner Spelling

Critics of Sir Paul Harvey's "Oxford Companion to English Literature" (Oxford Press) have pointed out to him from time to time that William Faulkner's name appears in his book as "Falkner." As a proof of English accuracy he calls attention to the American "Who's Who," 1932-'33, which has an entry reading "Falkner, William (surname originally Faulkner)."

Author's Barque Breaks Records in Grain Race

Alan Villiers, author of "Grain Race," is the owner of a four-masted barque named Parma, which has for the second successive time won the famous grain race from Australia to England. Mr. Villiers' ship broke all records for sailing ships since the days of the clippers in the mid-nineteenth century. This year the passage took eighty-three days as compared to the 104 days of last year.

Society to Be Busy on Week-End Filled with Interesting Events

BY JUDITH CASS.

ANOTHER full week-end for those of the "pretty world!" To compete with A Century of Progress, which always is an attraction, this afternoon there are the races at Arlington, two weddings, one in Lake Forest and one in town [there is another fashionable one in town tonight] and a flower show in Winnetka. Tomorrow there are the finals of the national clay court championship tournament at the Chicago Town and Tennis club, two polo games, one at Fort Sheridan and the other at Oakbrook. And in addition there are numerous private affairs, all small, both in town and in the country.

At Arlington to watch the Arlington Lassie stakes and other races will be a large and smart crowd, especially in the Post and Paddock club, where there are to be quite a number of luncheon parties before the racing starts. Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Henry N. Rowley, and Edward F. Wilson are among those who have made reservations for parties at luncheon.

At the park yesterday Mrs. William F. R. Hitt [Katherine Elkins] of Middleburg, Va., was one of the interesting and interested spectators and so were the Charles T. Fishers of Detroit, who had with them their daughtery, Mary, and James Monoghan, also of Detroit. Mrs. Hitt was with Mrs. John D. Hertz and Mrs. Warren E. Wright.

Miss Russell to Be Bride

It won't be a large wedding, but a very important and fashionable one, that of Miss Maroussa Russell and Col. George Voevodsky, which will take place this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the drawing room of the Lake Forest residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund A. Russell. The service will be read by the Rev. George Roberts of the Presbyterian church in Lake Forest and the Rev. Herbert E. Prince of Lake Forest's Episcopal church, the Church of the Holy Spirit, in the presence of the relatives and a few friends.

The bride's only attendants will be her nephews, Larry and Eddie Dawson, whom she has mothered and fathered since the tragic airplane accident about 9 years ago that orphaned them. John S. Broeksmit will serve as Col. Voevodsky's best man. It had been planned to have a Greek Orthodox service preceding the home wedding, but Bishop Mardary is ill and that plan has been given up.

The handsome Russian colonel, who has lived in Chicago for the last eight or nine years, and his bride will take a short trip and upon their return in two or three weeks will be at home at 716 East Westminster road, Lake Forest, where the bride and her nephews have lived for the last six or seven years.

Two Weddings to Be in Town

The weddings that will take place in town today are those of Miss Kathryn Evans, daughter of Mrs. Albert Thomas Evans, to Paul Alfred Welbourne III., son of the junior Paul Alfred Welbournes of Boston, and Miss Julia Hull Kramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Kramer, to Richard Morey Lamport, son of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Lamport of South Bend.

Miss Kramer will repeat her wedding vows at a candlelight service in St. Chrysostom's church this evening at 8 o'clock, and she and the bridegroom will receive the congratulations of their relatives and friends at a reception at the Churchill hotel immediately following the ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. Frederick F. Shannon, in the absence of the Rev. Dudley Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's, assisted by the Rev. Harrison Ray Anderson of the Fourth Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Kramer gave the bridal dinner last night in their State parkway apartment, for just the bridal party, which includes Miss Marion Gordon, the maid of honor, and four bridesmaids—Miss Caryl Bloomingston, Miss Mary Claire Walker of Racine, Wis., Miss Shirley Selig, and Miss Helen Lamport, sister of the bridegroom; Robert Heller of Cleveland, who serves Mr. Lamport as best man, and the ushers, Alden Vose Jr. of Westport, Conn., Joseph Birdsell of South Bend, and Le Roy Kramer Jr. and Henry T. Kramer, the bride's brothers.

The bridegroom's parents are arriving this morning from South Bend. After a wedding trip of two or three weeks, Mr. Lamport and his bride will be at home for the summer in the Kramers' apartment, while the bride's family are in their summer home at Harbor Point, Mich.

Evans Ceremony at Mother's Home

Miss Evans is to be married at high noon in her mother's Lake Shore drive apartment in the presence of about fifty relatives and close friends, the Rev. H. R. Anderson of the Fourth Presbyterian church officiating. She will be attended by her cousin, Miss Ruth McCullough of Wausau, Wis., and Miss McCullough's cousin, Broome McCullough of Evanston, will serve Mr. Welbourne as best man. A wedding breakfast will be served after the ceremony. None of the presents that have been arriving daily will outshine the present Mrs. Evans is giving the young couple, for she is giving them a wedding trip to Europe. Mr. Welbourne and his bride will leave this afternoon for Boston, where she will meet his family, who were unable to come west for the wedding and then the bridal couple will sail on July 12 for Europe.

Mrs. Evans has already planned her travels for next winter and she has reservations on the Lurline for a South seas and oriental cruise, sailing Jan. 21. For the next six months she will be in and out of Chicago, most likely going east in the autumn when her daughter and son-in-law return here to live.

Flower Show at Winnetka.

It wouldn't be hard to predict which will be the first exhibit that Mrs. Samuel Douglass Flood, Mrs. Gordon L. Pirie, Mrs. Leslie L. Cooke, Mrs. Edwin L. Brashears and Mrs. Robert H. Gardner will visit this afternoon at the Winnetka Garden club's flower show for their respective husbands are the entries in a class for men to show their ideas in the arrangement of flowers in original containers and, of course, their wives will be anxious to examine their husbands' artistic efforts. The show is to be held from 1 to 6 today and from 10 until 6 tomorrow on the James Kellogg estate at 80 Locust road, Winnetka.

Another interesting exhibit will be one arranged by children showing the arrangement of flowers in dolls' houses and in tin containers. Marion Wood, Carolyn Kuehnle, Tommy Cooke, Peggy and Betty Magle, Nancy Brock and Liha Kimball are a few of the youngsters who are going to have entries in this class. In addition there will be numerous flower arrangements, an exhibit of small fountain figures, paved terrace gardens 7 by 9 feet and exhibits of prize vegetables and flowers.

Tonight after the semi-finals in the tennis tournament at the Town and Tennis club there is to be a dinner dance for the tennis players to which a number of young girls, including Miss Helen Marie Castle, Miss Peggy Wiley and Miss Margaret Huth have been invited to insure a good time for the young players. Miss Lois Jaques is chairman of the entertainment committee and she has persuaded Miss Ethel Dixon to sing and dance as part of the entertainment. Junior Coen and Frank Parker and Karl Kamrath and Gene Mako are to play in the singles matches today and every one anticipates that young Parker and Mako will meet in the finals tomorrow, but the "dope" may be wrong. It often is in the world of sports.

Dinner Tonight for Bradford Normans.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Norman of New York, who arrived in town yesterday to visit the J. Russell Forgans, will be given a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Forgan tonight at the Forgans' house in Lake Forest. During the Normans' short visit there will be other, very informal parties for them. Mr. and Mrs. Norman are leaving Monday.

Miss Jean Harder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Achilles Harder of New York, arrived recently in Lake Forest to visit Miss Fleury Leonard, daughter of Clifford M. Leonard. Miss Harder will meet most of the debutante crowd of Lake Forest tonight at the dinner-dance Mr. Leonard is giving for his daughter at the Onwentsia, for about 80 guests have been invited.

Members of the Knollwood club and their guests are to have a repetition of the successful "Saint Jean de Luz" party they had last year, tonight. For the benefit of those who haven't been to St. Jean de Luz or who don't know where that heavenly spot is—it's a

Girl Shows Her Prize Winner

It's much too hot for hugging, thinks Annabelle von Edelweiss who cannot remove her fur coat, but her little mistress, Maude Eakins, doesn't think it's ever too hot to hug her St. Bernard dog to show her how much her mistress loves her. Maude, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Eakins of Evanston, entered her pet in the dog show at the Onwentsia last Tuesday, and the dog carried home four ribbons. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Admit Death of Dry Law at Camp Meeting

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Des Plaines campmeeting Methodists concede the early repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Yesterday, at the historic grounds where the 74th annual meeting is being held, the Rev. John Wesley Holland of Rockford admitted the death of Volsteadism before sessions of the women's association of the Rock River annual conference convened in connection with the campmeeting.

"We stand to lose the eighteenth amendment because we have not enough converted people to carry on the fight," said Dr. Holland. "Our trouble is that we have a very active world and a very tired church."

Dr. Holland was not alone in admitting the imminence of repeal. The turn, begun during the last year, toward renewal of temperance education, was reflected not only in the Rockford pastor's address, but also in the leadership classes. Dr. Holland urged the advancement of the temperance cause by the indirect method of making individuals "more Christlike."

In this work, Dr. Holland told of the importance of women's church work. He berated the biblical idea—as especially enunciated by the apostle Paul—that women should keep silent in the churches. Dr. Holland argued that as women exert control over the moral and spiritual development of their children in the formative periods they occupy a strategic position in the Christian cause.

Last night, the Rev. Dr. J. M. Schneider of the Albany Park Methodist Episcopal church outlined the problems facing leaders in church work. The most important problem to be solved at present, he said, is that of lack of unity.

Lack of attractiveness was stressed by the Albany Park pastor. He called attention to the colorfulness of the World's Fair, which adds greatly, he said, to the Exposition's appeal. Dr. Schneider pleaded for color in worship which would banish its present drabness.

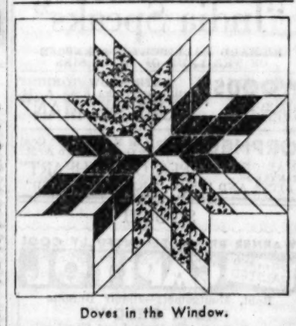

The Rev. Charles H. Draper of Evanston, manager of the campmeeting, expressed enthusiasm for the 1933 sessions. He said that attendance has increased over former years.

Fair Follows Social Rules of Diplomacy

Former Envoy Arranges Official Parties.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

When an ambassador visiting A Century of Progress is greeted by a salute of 19 guns, not 18, who is it that attends to this official detail?

When Count and Countess Folke Bernadotte came to the World's Fair a fortnight ago to pay the respects of their king, Gustav V. of Sweden, who was it that arranged the official call of Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition, and Mrs. Dawes within 24 hours after their arrival?

And who is it that is more concerned with the reception of Gen. Balbo and his brilliant air men than any one person in Chicago . . . dinners, luncheons, salutes . . . details in myriad?

It is that very elegant gentleman, Ulysses Grant-Smith, who presides over a large mahogany desk in N-310, the Administration building at A Century of Progress. He is the diplomatic dictator, the chief of protocol of the World's Fair.

"No, I do not seek work," commented Mr. Grant-Smith with a quizzical smile and a twirk of his Adolphe Menjou mustache yesterday.

Never before has Mr. Grant-Smith acted in the capacity of diplomatic dictator. Yet he is working from experience. He is an intimate friend of that other elegant gentleman, Warren Delano Robbins, who, until his recent appointment as minister to Canada, told Washington debutantes when they could have their parties and capital hostesses the days on which they might entertain in their marble palaces on Massachusetts avenue.

Then, too, Mr. Grant-Smith has had a long and interesting diplomatic career of his own. It was in 1903 that he entered the service as the second secretary of legation in Constantinople. Three years later he was moved to London, then to Santiago, Chile, thence to Brussels. In 1912 he became counselor of embassy at Vienna. This [for the sake of dinner party seating] is equal in rank to that of a brigadier general in the army or a rear admiral in the navy. On Aug. 29, 1921, he signed the American-Hungarian treaty of peace; in 1929 he went as special ambassador to the inauguration of the president of Uruguay, and in 1930 he resigned everything diplomatic. Since then he has been living a quiet life in Washington . . . until he was invited by the state department to spend a summer in Chicago.

"Be assured," continued Mr. Grant-Smith [he was born a Smith . . . Grant-Smith is only to simplify identification, he explains] "protocol refers only to official or diplomatic relations. I have nothing to do with placing Chicago society." He heaved a sigh of relief

Yesterday Mr. Grant-Smith was passing on a half dozen drafts of the platform and the seating arrangement for the official reception to be accorded Gen. Balbo and his flyers the day of arrival in Soldiers' field. Contrary to the two large flat stands that were provided for several hundred dignitaries on inaugural day at the Fair, [reporters and aldermen stormed the place], there will be one small graduated platform on the west side of the field for seven dignitaries.

"Commissioner Harry S. New will have the center position at the Soldiers' field ceremony," explained Mr. Grant-Smith, "because this ceremony is the welcome of the United States government to the Italian flyers. Quite the contrary, however, the following noon when the Century of Progress entertains the visitors at luncheon in the Trustees' Lounge. Then it will be President Dawes at the center of the head table, Gen. Balbo to his right, Italian Ambassador Rosso to his left. Only three ladies will have places at this table."

It is these details that Mr. Grant-Smith knows as well as a soldier knows his manual of arms. Then, too, he sees that President and Mrs. Dawes call first on all visiting ambassadors and royalty, but ONLY ambassadors and royalty. All other visiting dignitaries call first on the Daweses.

This was the reason for Mrs. Dawes' trip to the Administration building late yesterday afternoon. With Mr. Dawes she motored over to the Blackstone hotel and at 5 o'clock the two of them paid their respects to the Japanese ambassador to the United States, Katsuji Debuchi, and Mme. Debuchi.

This afternoon the ambassador and his wife will return the call. A troop of cavalry will meet them on the outer drive beyond Soldiers' field and escort them to the 12th street entrance to the Fair grounds. Here a company of infantry will meet them, a salute of nineteen guns will be fired, music, an inspection of the guard by the ambassador, then a reception within the Trustees' room.

All of these details . . . the work of Grant-Smith.

"Nineteen guns, yes 19 tomorrow," he finished yesterday. "Army ritual calls for a certain number for every dignitary. An ambassador gets 19. A few weeks ago when another ambassador was here one of my secretaries scheduled only 18. Fortunately I caught the error. Eighteen might have resulted in strained diplomatic relations. And certainly that must not be the result of A Century of Progress."

Combine Black, White Linen in Beach Costume

BY RHEA SEEGER.

One of the smartest newest beach costumes that you can find in town is a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde arrangement of one frock divided against itself—in other words, a half and half affair, one-half of black linen that ties over a white linen half made exactly the same way.

The sleeves are extremely short and a wide sash ties snugly around the waistline. It can be used as a tennis frock because of the great amount of freedom asssured with the split skirt, and it is perfect over a contrasting bathing suit and with beach accessories.

Next to this dress in popularity are the countless good looking beach robes of striped and plain colored seersucker . . . and while they were perhaps designed with the idea of covering a swim suit, they are undoubtedly the very best buys for the gal who wants something cool, tailored, and tubbable for hot summer mornings while she dashes about the house and dresses for the office or a day's shopping.

Even the youngsters have seersucker house robes. . . . You can get them for a trifling sum, and they come in grand color contrasts, such as cheery yellow against white and almond green, peppermint candy pink with white, and all the blues any one could ever dream about.

Some other very youthful robes in these tub materials are colorful terry cloth in all pastel shades, as well as the gay striped affairs that would delight the soul of a savage. . . . Wild reds, blues, vivid shades of green and yellow all combine in a splendid disregard of anything that might be dubbed sissy.

Good Morning!

Well, here's Loretta Young again! My word, don't the studios ever give that girl a rest!

"Midnight Mary" from a story by Anita Loos is a crackling melodrama, presenting as heroine a maid far more sinned against than sinning. True, she breaks the law; but, then, from childhood she's been played tricks by a malign fate. At heart, really, there's no nobler citizeness than Mary.

While assisting her gangleader sweetheart to rob a cabaret, Mary saves the life of an aristocratic young lawyer. He takes an interest in her, provides her with secretarial training and, later, with a job in his own office. Here she succeeds splendidly. She's engaged to young Mannering and the future beckons sunnily when—arises a large black cloud in the shape of police to arrest her for a crime of days gone by . . .

To prison goes Mary, after a beau geste which successfully prevents the name of Mannering from being linked with hers. He, in the dark as to a lot of things, marries a woman of his own circle . . .

You won't be particularly surprised by succeeding events for "Midnight Mary" is a melodrama of conventional pattern. It is interesting, however, because of excellent acting, clean cut direction, and some remarkably effective interiors.

Miss Young gives a competent performance in the title rôle. She is, as always, an appealing and convincing young person. Ricardo Cortez as the gang chief, Warren Hymer as his assistant, and Una Merkel as the latter's moll, turn out nice work. I can always do without the adenoidic antics of Andy Devine, but apparently he has his place in the hearts of the fans, for producers insist on using him. Franchot Tone's splendidly intelligent interpretation of Mannering provides the piece with real class.

This young man, recently recruited from the stage where he was notably successful, hasn't the "it" of Gable and Montgomery, perhaps, but he has an arresting personality and sure, smooth technique. A fine and imaginative actor! You will remember him as the secretary in "Gabriel Over the White House," and as the naval officer in "Today We Live." They do say that he and Joan Crawford are that way.

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"Swell" Garrick—the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy—is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training rather than tailoring skill. Maitland, a crooked gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough, who is unknowingly being used as decoy. Maitland plots to trick Rhoda out of a fortune left her by an uncle who died in Rome. Garrick exposes to Rhoda, before Maitland and his gang, their crooked card tricks. Garrick is overpowered by Schewan, Maitland's chief, but manages to defeat Schewan's purpose of burning him alive in his car. Maitland has Rhoda adjudged insane. Garrick knows she has been administered a drug which will produce temporary madness. Having no proof of guilt he determines to settle the matter in his own way. He kidnaps Maitland and holds him captive until he learns where Rhoda is being held. Garrick learns from his solicitor that if Rhoda can gain and maintain her liberty for twenty-eight days she will be considered legally sane. Garrick undertakes a bold rescue. He escapes to London with Rhoda and hides her in the warehouse where he had held Maitland. The gang learns the location of the warehouse from the renting agent. When Garrick returns he finds Maitland and his gang with a constable. He manages to slip his gun to Rhoda and by simulating insanity Rhoda holds them all at bay and escapes. She joins Garrick later on a motor boat on the Thames. At night they burgle their way into a private boathouse. A farm hand out of work finds their hideout. Garrick hires him as a helper and buys his silence. Next morning Garrick returns to his home.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

FACING DEATH.

Garrick waited until the detective looked at him enquiringly.

"Again, strictly between you and me, Mr. Lanport, that little thing in Schewan's hand is a hypodermic syringe. It was filled with hilvanium—an infernal drug that produces in a sane person the symptoms of madness—for four or five days at a stretch."

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Lanport in amazement. "But the photograph doesn't prove all that!"

"O no! If it did your task and mine would be simple. But if you make the necessary enquiries you will find that Miss Fairclough was to be examined on the following day by a visiting physician. You can take that photograph with you if you like. I have another print here—for my solicitor to use when the time comes."

There was a long silence during which the detective pocketed the photograph.

"There's one thing and another," he said thoughtfully. "There was what happened in that warehouse of yours yesterday . . . You know a great deal about this case, Mr. Garrick."

"Strictly between you and me, Mr. Lanport—I do," smiled Garrick. "There are no witnesses present and the information won't help you," he added, abandoning his bantering manner. "I intend to marry Miss Fairclough next month. Doesn't it occur to you that no man would want to marry a woman who was really insane—and risk going to prison for doing it?"

Not a tenth of a second too soon had he pirouetted and gripped Lawson's wrist in an unbreakable lock.

"You're certainly risking that, Mr. Garrick," said Lanport. "Look here—if you're really fighting some sort of conspiracy against the young lady, why don't you let us help you—by telling us all you know?"

"I've told you and you don't believe me. Even if you think I'm telling the truth, you can't act on it. I'm afraid it has to be war between us, Mr. Lanport. Catch me if you can!"

The detective moved towards the door, then turned.

"As a matter of fact—I don't say I believe all you say. Put it like this. I believe you believe all you say—that you think you're acting for the right!"

"That's very sporting of you!"

"May be! But I'm not a sportsman—I'm a detective. As to catching you—we shall catch you and Miss Fairclough the very next time you go to see her. Take it from me we shall get you—the very next time. Why not make us your friends, Mr. Garrick?"

"I've tried—through my solicitor—and it was a wash-out," replied Garrick. "I'm seeing Miss Fairclough this evening. You and I will meet again then, I understand. Good morning, Mr. Lanport!"

Garrick lunched at home and afterwards went to his club, then went with a well known aviator to Hendon to give his opinion on the latter's new airplane.

He was back in Marron street at half past five, having shown himself enough for one day. There would be time to pack a kit-bag with a few things and get down to Richmond before dark.

He would do the packing himself—but Walters must bring him the kit-bag. He rang for Walters, then—after an unwonted delay—rang again.

He checked himself as he was about to ring a third time. He realized that he had never before had to ring twice for Walters. He felt, not annoyance, but something approaching alarm. Walters would be so terribly ashamed of himself—unless he were ill. Surely he must be ill!

Garrick ran upstairs to Walters' bedroom.

"Are you there, Walters?" Receiving no answer, he first knocked, then entered and found the room empty.

Garrick went back to the library and rang to the kitchen—waited and rang again.

"They can't all have gone out for a walk at once!" he reflected.

He unscrewed the bell-push—touched the contacts with the penknife. A tiny spark told him there was nothing wrong with the bells.

"By jove! The gang must be in the house!"

He was certain of it—certain, too, that they had come to murder him.

"And they didn't count on my testing the bell—they counted on my going down to the kitchen to investigate."

He slipped over to the door intending to lock himself in—but the key had been removed.

"All right! I'll have to chance it!"

He whipped off his coat, put it over his head to muffle his voice, then picked up the telephone receiver and gave the number of Scotland Yard.

"Victoria Seven Thousand. Urgent!"

Even as he spoke he felt that the line was "dead."

"Put 'em up, Swell Garrick!"

And each of the rifles was fitted with a drum-like attachment, which Garrick knew to be a silencer.

As Garrick put up his hands the three men came into the room, followed by Lawson.

"Clever of you, Gorilla! I thought you'd be waiting in the basement."

"Are you going to tell us where the girl is, Swell Garrick?"

"And be shot afterwards!" snorted Garrick. "Pull yourself together!"

Schewan blinked, but the muzzle of his rifle swerved not the fraction of an inch.

"O rot! We agreed the other day you can't pull your stunt off as long as I'm alive. You've got your chance now—and you'll take it."

Lawson passed around behind Schewan then, keeping himself out of the possible line of fire, sidled up behind Garrick.

Garrick's timing, as usual, was perfect. Not a tenth of a second too soon had he pirouetted and gripped Lawson's wrist in an unbreakable lock. He knew that neither Schewan nor the other two would dare to fire in that lightning mix-up for fear of killing Lawson. So he allowed himself a full second to lever Lawson's body on his wrist until Lawson, forced by the pain in his wrist to stand on tip-toe, was himself facing the muzzles of the three rifles—a living shield for Swell Garrick.

"Drop those rifles, all of you!" commanded Garrick. He had drawn his automatic and now rested it on Lawson's shoulder.

There came a cough from the silencer as a bullet zipped past Garrick's ear and buried itself in the wall.

That bullet in the wall, Garrick knew, would put him indisputably on the right side of the law—for it would prove that he himself had fired only in self-defense.

Garrick fired—straight at the Gorilla's heart. The crack of the pistol filled the room. But some familiar sound was missing—the return click of the automatic. For Garrick's pistol had jammed.

Schewan did not move—yet Garrick knew that at that range his aim could not have failed. For a moment only he was mystified. It was the jamming of the automatic that told him the truth.

The pistol had jammed because there had been insufficient tamping for the recoil—because it was still loaded with the blank cartridges with which he had filled it in the warehouse on the previous day in order that Rhoda might pretend to wound him. That was why Schewan was standing unhurt, grinning triumphantly.

"Pick up these rifles, you two, and get him sideways. I'll hold him in front . . . You're all right, Archie. We'll get him without hurting you."

It seemed to Garrick then that the end was very near. Instinct and nothing else made him resolve to go down fighting.

GASOLINE ALLEY—LINE'S BUSY!

Use Airplane to Find Actor on Vacation

Loud Speaker Calls Huston to Film Lot.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 7.—[Special.]—It's gotten so that all the latest innovations of science are being employed to keep movie actors at work. There's the case of Walter Huston.

Walter had just completed [as he thought] his current film and retired to his cabin in the mountains above San Bernardino, Cal., to rest and supervise some work on what is to be his personal trout creek.

The studio decided it needed retakes, so, what was Huston's surprise, while he was out riding through the woods to hear a voice from heaven saying: "Walter Huson, O, Walter! We are making retakes at the studio. Hurry back to Hollywood."

Some canny executive, knowing Huston had deliberately declined to have a telephone at his place, had sent a plane with a loud speaker attachment to spot the actor from above.

With Victor Jory it was different. He had gotten the studio's release after his last scene in "Devils in Love" and gone on an ocean fishing trip. What was Jory's astonishment when a 55 foot speed launch arrived with Ed Beery of the Fox studio on the speaking end of a megaphone. And these were Ed's words: "Jory, Victor Jory; hey, Jory; making retakes on the picture. Report at once to the studio."

Jory hastened ashore and to the studio and his complaint now is: "After I got there, they didn't make the retakes anyway, because they couldn't find Loretta Young anywhere in the city. They could find me, all right, in the middle of the ocean."

The name of Will Rogers' current film is changed to "Dr. Bull." It used to be "Life's Worth Living." Dr. Bull is a character in "The Last Adam," the original story.

Chic of Schiaparelli Dress Rests on Arrangement of Quilted Canvas Scarf

BY SUZETTE BARILLET.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The daytime dress being just a background for smart accessories this summer, women spend a lot of time hunting around for trappings that are unusual. Schiaparelli, being adept at extraordinary dress details that have a distinction all their own, is doing a hectic business on her scarf dresses.

Bouffant organdy and piqué scarfs abound against the background of plain street frocks, and so the smartest women here are wearing Schiaparelli's dead white, or black and white printed scarfs, that are made of quilted linen canvas, and that are worn primly crossed over and held in place by unusual leather belts.

The original scarf-dress is shown in our sketch today. It is made of ribbed silk in that odd, grayed shade of dark blue that is called "mussel blue." Like all the frocks of this dressmaker it is extremely simple, with long sleeves set on to a dropped shoulder line with a standing tuck. The silhouette is straight, and tucks around the waistline give an impression of fitting at this point. The dead-white quilted canvas scarf is crossed in front and held by a wide dark blue calfskin belt that is closed by a silver bar passed through a loop. The ends below the belt fall in points that suggest a vestee.

BY MARY MEADE.

Hot days seem to be giving birth to just lots of kitchen worries—notwithstanding the rumor going around that kitcheneers are all off at relatives' and husbands are cooking with can openers. At least enough of you are staying at home to keep cooking editors busy answering questions.

The first problem before today's cookery clinic comes from Mrs. L. G. T., who asks: "What makes my potatoes turn black during cooking, and what can I do about it? Is it all right to add vinegar?"

There are a number of ways to keep the pure whiteness of raw potatoes. One way is to peel them and then soak them in cold water for 2 or 3 hours before cooking. Another precaution is that of adding the salt when whipping them or otherwise preparing them for the table—not during the cooking. If they are to be served whole, add the salt during the last few minutes of cooking, or sprinkle it over the cooked potato before serving. It also has been discovered that potatoes boiled in about one-third milk and two-thirds water stay much whiter than those cooked in the usual manner. Don't throw out the cooking liquid. It will work well in soups or sauces. As for vinegar, it does tend to keep the potatoes white, but it also quite definitely hardens them.

Next, a question from Miss D. H. S.: "How can I have a chocolate cake, made with soda and sour milk, of uniform brownness?"

The answer to this one has mainly to do with the way the soda is distributed, for it is almost always this ingredient that produces extra brown flecks and splotches in chocolate cake or gingerbread. And the solution is, be sure that your soda is evenly distributed. Frequently when we mix soda with sour milk [which we should not do, for a reason I'll tell you] part of it is left undissolved and in small lumps. Soda should be sifted twice with the flour and other dry ingredients and then the cake mixed as usual. This is because putting soda with sour milk immediately liberates a great share of the leavening gas which should not be released until the cake reaches the oven, if the cake is to be light and feathery.

Cavalry Expert to See Polo Game.

On the sidelines tomorrow at the Sixth Corps Area-El Ranchito polo game at Fort Sheridan will be an officer who probably knows as much about horses as any other man in the United States army. He is Maj. Harry D. Chamberlin, a graduate of the Ecole des Applications de Cavalerie and the Fort Riley Cavalry school, and the captain last year of the U. S. Olympic equestrian team.

He arrived this week at the Fort, and present plans are for him to run a September horse show for Maj. Gen. Frank Parker that will, to judge by the recent Fourth of July event, be one of the highlights of the fall social season. The polo game tomorrow is the second in a three game series.

Another polo match tomorrow will be played at Oak Brook, between the St. Louis team and the west suburban "four."

Guiness-Channon Nuptials Next Week.

Twenty-five invitations have been received by Chicago friends to the wedding of Lady Honor Guiness, daughter of the Earl and Countess of Iveagh, to Henry Channon, son of Mrs. Westover Channon and Harry Channon of Chicago, on July 14 in London. The ceremony is to be performed at 2:15 at one of the most fashionable London churches, St. Margaret's, with a reception following at 11 St. James's square.

The early date of the wedding is as much of a surprise to Mrs. Channon as to many of the friends of the bridegroom here. Mrs. Channon had expected a fall ceremony and had anticipated attending, since she is sailing abroad in September. In explanation of the date her son has written "we want to go abroad before the summer is over." This means Italy to a Londoner.

Among the Chicagoans invited are the Fowler McCormicks, the Wolcott Blairs, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Clow, Col. and Mrs. R. R. McCormick, the William E. Clows, the Howard Linns, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker and their son, Arthur Meeker Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson.

Since graduating from the University High school Miss Van Alstyne has spent several years abroad studying languages and traveling. She was two years in Paris and Grenoble, where she met her fiancé.

Mr. Bjerke is in business with his father, who is a Swedish architect. After their wedding Mr. Bjerke and his bride will make their home in Paris, returning to Chicago next winter for a visit with Dr. and Mrs. Van Alstyne.

Chaps Wonder How to Make a New Friendship

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Puzzleds" of both sexes are ever busy with the problem of how afterward to get in touch with someone met at this and that function.

"Hank," victim of the stag line system, loses the girl after a few steps on the dance floor. That brief spell of her, however, tells Hank he must see her again—and soon! Her name may not have registered. Her phone number wasn't given—so how's Hank to go on from here if he's ever to see the girl again?

Or, as the latest "Puzzled" tells it: "I met a wonderful girl recently. I would like to ask her out. How can I go about it?"

A wideawake opportunist works fast, gathers the name and the phone number and consent to use the latter on that first meeting.

Even so, it is never taken as an affront by the young lady to learn her telephone number is in request, so the process of dismissal, if such it must be, is painless. On the other hand, the young woman may be just as eager to renew acquaintance later.

Altogether, it is no problem for the young man except to keep himself wide awake for the opportunity to speak. Once he's away from the scene, he may have to do a bit of juggling around to get the name and phone number, but the host or hostess of the occasion might be asked directly for help.

The girl must resort to subtler ways, unless she's a daughter of the famed Mounted Police. She usually has to "plant" a bridge game, or some kind of foursome, or party for a first excuse to get in touch with the man.

Overcrowded City Section Hard on Child

Woman Seeks Help in Solving Problem.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Since the following interesting letter has on it no address, I imagine the reader thought I did not write personal replies and expected it to be answered in the column.

"You may think it a little out of place for a young girl to write you, inasmuch as your column is really for mothers.

"These are the facts: I am engaged to be married, perhaps in a year, to a young physician who has his office in a very densely populated part of the city. When we are married we will have to have our home together, with the office, for quite some time, as you no doubt understand.

"Here's where the hitch comes in. As I have told you, I will live in a congested part of the city, a part in which I will not want to have my children mingle with the other children. Please don't misunderstand me. I am not a snob, but the neighborhood where I expect to reside has people of all races and creeds, living under unfavorable conditions.

"I don't expect to have the perfect child. In fact, I don't want a perfect child. But how can our child have friends in the neighborhood where we reside? Being too much with parents certainly is not the right thing.

"Can you enlighten me a little?"

Such problems are difficult to reply to in a few words. The accusation "snobbish" is not at all merited. No mother, if she had her choice, would prefer to have her children brought up in an overcrowded city neighborhood, where she felt the influences were not of the best. However, many mothers are attempting to bring up their children well under such adverse conditions and are succeeding, having moved from more favorable surroundings because of money losses. This department would be interested in hearing from mothers who are working out this problem to their own satisfcation.

MINUTE MYSTERY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLASS DAY.

"Now listen carefully, you fellows," said Prof. Fordney to Detective Sergeants Reynolds and Bush. "I've laid a trap for our wily friend 'Con Jenkins. He's in a building down the street and I know that when he comes out he's going to walk toward 8th avenue. Reynolds, you know him?"

"Yes, sir, I certainly do."

"And you, Bush?"

"No, sir. I've never seen him."

"Alright, we can still pull it off, I think." Fordney was impatient.

"As you both know," he continued, "this is a one way street with traffic east bound. I want you, Reynolds, to stand there and face directly west," said Fordney, pointing, "and you, Bush, I want you to stand up there on the same side of the street and face directly east. Jenkins will pass between you two before crossing the street—I've seen to that. When you spot him, Reynolds, you are to signal Bush with your hand."

"Pardon me, professor," the somewhat slow thinking Bush interjected, "but I don't see how we can trap him that way. If Reynolds is to face west and I'm to face east, and Reynolds is to signal only with his hand, how am I going to see it?"

"Come, come, Bush. There isn't a moment to lose. Get to your places and be on the alert."

HOW DID BUSH SEE THE SIGNAL?

[See solution on page 27.]

Silk Stockings Should Have Life of 10 to 15 Wearings

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

From ten to fifteen wearings is supposed to be the life of a pair of silk stockings. Service weight, you and I'd call them. But not so according to our stocking mortality statistician.

If you're not getting ten good sturdy wears out of yours, or fifteen, you're not treating them properly. And because stockings are much involved in the beauty scheme today, we feel we should pass on a few tips about them.

Probably more stocking fatality is due to buying them short than through any other cause, excepting starting runs through rough handling. The only distressing symptom of this mistake is not that the toes wear out, but when the stocking is short it is stretched too tight the entire foot over, and invariably the length is not what it should be, either. The friction of the toe or heel of the shoe against this tautly drawn chiffon wears it through in no time.

Worse than the stocking fatalities due to short hose are the actual foot troubles. The ingrowing nail, for instance, and a painful affliction if ever there was one, more often than not is due to this very shortage. A too small stocking is just as cramping to your walking style as a too short shoe.

Rough toenails raise the very mischief with fine hosiery. You can use your emery board on your nails after the clipping, you know. And you should to save the stockings. If the heel of your stocking is given to working down under the foot, you may be sure you need a larger size. If they're too large, the same down slipping happens, too. You know you can get sizes built especially for fat girls and for very long legged ones, the latter an inch or more longer at the top.

Now, the way not to put on a stocking, if you're interested in its longevity, is to pull it on as a man jerks on his boot.s

WHAT DOES RUTH HAVE TO DO TO WIN A MEDAL?

It's Time to Make Him a Duke.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—What does a man have to do in this country to win a national honor such as a medal or a title, and don't you think Babe Ruth has done it by this time?

Benito Mussolini is said to be just waiting for Primo Carnera to return to Rome to trot him up to the little king's house and have him tapped solemnly over the skull and knighted because he knocked out Jack Sharkey. I may be inaccurate as to what it is that the little king does in such cases to justify his existence and earn the rent and vino for himself and family, but I will not quibble about that.

Maybe he does not tap them over the skull with the royal scepter, but jabs them in the ribs with it, and maybe it is not a knight that they are planning to make of Primo, but a cavalier, which is the Italian equivalent. Anyway, they are fixing to roll out the red runner, rig up the striped awning and turn out a guard of their most beautiful parade soldiers to make national kudos of Primo's having knocked out Jack Sharkey. It said so in the papers.

As though there was anything original about knocking out Jack Sharkey.

Babe Should Be in Italy.

On a comparison of their achievements and their artistry in the same general line of work, which is to say athletics, Primo Carnera compares to Babe Ruth like a sign painter to Michelangelo. This Ruth is magnificent, a national treasure, and he grows more so, and yet his country is so stiffnecked that so far as any official records of the nation are concerned he is indistinguishable from any mildewed bum along a right of way. As a hero he has no official existence, whereas in Italy, by this time, with an equivalent career he would be at least a duke and probably up for king.

Of course, such honors can be made trivial, and some governments, in their desire to hop up the national spirit and keep the citizens in there trying, bestow titles on tugboat skippers for towing the daily potato peelings out to sea. On such a scale every governor and mayor in this country would be a knight commander of something pretty high sounding, and anybody who contributed as much as $10,000 toward the campaign fund of the party in national power would be entitled to an earldom, at least.

Babe Should Get a Medal.

But it would cheapen no order, if we had any orders, to confer one of the best on Babe Ruth at this particular time when his home run, hit under great pressure of circumstances in the first of the All-American ball games, is not only fresh and gorgeous in the minds of the citizens, but has served to recall many other feats of similar glory. It recalls the time when they opened the great Yankee stadium, and the Babe, by way of inauguration, hit a home run over the right field wall. And the time when President Harding, never having seen him hit one, was trundled into the same park and up to his seat in a field box, where he shook hands with Ruth and asked for a home run, please, and promptly got it.

Remember 1932 Series?

And those three that he hit in one world series game in St. Louis, whereafter he loped over to the field boxes on his sand piper legs in the ninth inning, reached in among the foliage on a lady customer's hat and snatched a fly ball one handed which would

Game of Century Prize Winners to Be Listed in Week

Winners of the $500 contest conducted by THE TRIBUNE in connection with the Game of the Century will not be known for at least a week. It will take the contest department that long to check the thousands of lineups submitted by fans who attempted to pick the starting teams for the inter-league game at Comiskey park.

THE TRIBUNE sports department, which suggested and sponsored the game, extends its thanks to everyone who contributed to its success. The great contest was made possible by the enthusiastic coöperation of the presidents of the major leagues, William Harridge and John Heydler; the 16 club owners and the players who participated.

We pay special tribute to Connie Mack, who made a hurried trip from Philadelphia to Chicago and return at an age when most men would be content to listen to the game over the radio, and to John McGraw, who came out of retirement to lead the greatest roster of stars ever handled by any National league manager.

Our thanks, too, to Harry Grabiner, vice president of the White Sox, and his staff of ticket officials, who handled the heaviest demand in the game's history with a minimum of complaints.

Last, but not least, our deep appreciation to the fans of the nation for their whole hearted indorsement of the event.

Shute, Wood Tie in British Open Tourney

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 7.—The British open golf championship, was all wrapped and ready for delivery to the United States today for the tenth straight year.

At the end of 72 holes of play this evening, two young American professionals, Densmore Shute of Philadelphia and Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., were tied with four-round totals of 292 each.

The winner of the crown relinquished by Gene Sarazen, will be decided in a thirty-six-hole playoff tomorrow between Shute and Wood.

Wood and Shute came through to their tie after having been almost counted out in the qualifying rounds. On Monday and Tuesday they were equally bad and each had a total of 156 at the end of the qualifying round, with a discouragingly large part of the field ahead of them.

Shute played even par golf all the way with four 73s and Wood's scores for the four rounds were 77—72—68—75. As the figures indicate, Wood was at his best in the third round at five under par.

Sarazen made a mighty effort to land third place with 293, although he had to share the show place with another American, Leo Diegel, and the British hope, Syd Easterbrook.

Walter Hagen's great stand came to naught when he blew up in the morning and thereafter never found the form that put him into the early lead. An 82 on the last round gave him a total of 301.

Mickey Finn, Infielder for Phillies, Dies

Allentown, Pa., July 7.—(AP)—Halted at the top of his big league career, Neal [Mickey] Finn, star second baseman of the Phillies, died today of a stomach ailment in his 30th year.

Finn succumbed after a recent operation at a hospital here. He had been in the hospital since June 22. He had showed up particularly well in spring training, but shortly after the season opened, the stomach ailment, which hospital authorities described as "chronic duodenal ulcers," hampered his play. Gerald Nugent, president of the Phillies, sent him to Allentown to place himself under the care of D. H. Poetter Boyle, Nugent's brother-in-law.

The operation was performed by Dr. Boyle three days later and Finn apparently was on the road to recovery, but took a turn for the worse a few days ago. His family was at his bedside at his death.

Finn and Gordon Slade, now with the St. Louis Cardinals, were an outstanding infield combination with the San Francisco Missions of the Pacific Coast league a few years ago. Then Brooklyn purchased both in 1930. Last winter Ray Benge, right hand pitcher, went to the Dodgers, and Finn came to Philadelphia with Infielder Jackie Warner and Pitcher Austin Moore.

BY JERRY CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, July 7.—A general order excusing Private Paddy Connolly from all drill and sentry duty has just been issued at Collins barracks. These two important routines of regular army life often are the sources of fatigue and sore muscles. Private Connolly must under no conditions be exposed to either before the night of Aug. 2.

This extraordinary precaution is taken because Private Connolly is the flyweight champion of the Free State and will be the first Irish boxer to enter the ring in the International Golden Gloves bouts against the Chicago team on Soldiers' field.

Private Connolly is pleasantly surprised with the order. He had not expected a recess from the two phases of military duty to which he lends the least enthusiasm. The respite will give him more time to fight. Fighting is Paddy's chief occupation and recreation.

No Fauntleroy in Paddy.

Aside from his pugilistic tendencies, the most striking thing about Connolly is his frankness. He prides himself on his utter contempt for fear, either in personal revelation or physical combat.

"When I was young," he admitted willingly though not boastfully, "I was a terrible divil. I was never out of fights when I was a kid. I was always scrappin'. And I could never take a licking. There was a fellow called Dolan, once. He was well able for me and he could always give me a terrible hiding. But I never gave in to him. And eventually, begorra, I did lick him."

Connolly is a product of the Pimlico district in Dublin. Pimlico is a maze of narrow streets withdrawn from the city's arteries, where families are clustered within limits that appear almost impassable. The people of Pimlico are stanch, homely, and deeply religious folk, who fight doggedly but light-heartedly for existence.

From Brick Field to Army.

Connolly's father died when Paddy was a babe in arms. His mother managed to maintain a home in Pimlico until Paddy was fourteen years old. She became ill and, before Paddy could

DYKES, SIMMONS HIT HOMERS AS SOX WIN, 9 TO 1

Durham Holds Macks to Six Hits.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7.—[Special.]—The three famous Athletic alumni performed exceptionally well today against Connie Mack's staggering club and the White Sox breezed to one of their easiest victories of the season, 9 to 1.

It was an afternoon of complete triumph for Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes, and Mule Haas. In the first place, Simmons cracked his eleventh homer of the season off Tony Freitas with Haas on base in the ninth. This hit, coupled with a single, allowed Simmons to oust Joe Cronin in their contest for the American league batting leadership.

Dykes had a field day, both at the plate and at third. He hit his first home run of the season in the seventh inning off big Jim Peterson, the University of Pennsylvania right hander. It was a terrific drive into the upper deck of the left field stands.

Haas Has Big Day.

Dykes started a three run rally in the preceding inning by walking. He doubled in the fourth and eventually scored. The veteran came up with several fine fielding plays and steadied down Ed Durham, the flighty fielding hurler.

Haas rapped out four singles to figure in three Sox scoring sprees. In addition, Durham turned in the best pitching performance of recent weeks. The tall right hander allowed only six hits, two going to Jimmie Foxx. It was Durham's seventh triumph.

Foxx drove in the Athletic's only run with a single in the first inning. Durham was in tough spots in the fifth and seventh, but pulled out nicely with the aid of perfect fielding. Today's victory was the sixth in nine games against the Athletics and placed the Sox only half game behind the Philadelphians in the battle for third place.

One Apiece in First.

Swanson got on base in the first inning without taking the bat off his shoulder. He stopped at second when Haas dropped a single in left. Sullivan moved both runners up with a sacrifice, and Swanson scored after Simmons sent a short fly to Coleman.

The Athletics tied it up in their half. Bishop beat out a bunt in front of the plate, but was forced by Cramer. Johnson walked, and Foxx's hard single to left brought Cramer home.

The Sox battery started a second inning rally after two were out, both Grube and Durham singling over short. Grube had plenty of time to score when Swanson dropped a single in short center.

Dykes Is Busy.

Durham put himself on the spot by walking Mahaffey and Bishop to open

Koenig's Home Run Ties Score.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The days of Wrigley field heroics are upon us. Mark Koenig again is making pinch homers to break the hearts of the New York Giants; late inning rallies are being staged to laugh off early inning embarrassments and the counting room is beginning to figure on world series ticket sales.

The Cubs yesterday spotted the Giants five runs in the third inning, tied them on a Koenig special with two on in the eighth, and grabbed the opener with the New Yorkers in the tenth, 6 to 5.

These exciting episodes were not conducted in semi-privacy. They were staged before a screaming ladies' day assemblage of 24,000, each of whom rushed home to ask papa to take her to the double header with the Giants tomorrow.

Win After Two Are Out.

The victory, even after the tie was accomplished, was not put over without great suffering among the beautiful spectators. The Cubs had the bases full in the tenth with none out and then won on an error after two were out.

Hustling Frankie Demaree started the exciting tenth with his third hit of the game, a line single to center off Clark. Gabby Hartnett delivered his fourth successive single to put Demaree on second. Grimm beat out a bunt, filling the bases. Koenig came up the second time with a chance for super-heroics. But this time, against a left hander, he was batting right handed, which isn't his real stance, and he was called out on strikes.

Zack Taylor, an earnest young man who is rarin' to get at least one hit this year, went up to bat for Root with blood in his eye. Zack took two strikes and then lifted a fly to Jackson. There were two out and Lon Warneke was warming up like everything in the bull pen.

Error Lets Demaree Score.

Manager Terry held a conference with his help in the center of the diamond and eventually it was decided to send a right hander in to pitch to Woody English. So Herman Bell relieved Clark. The strategy worked to the extent that Bell made Woody hit a grounder straight at Jackson, but it failed because the shortstop's ailing knees wouldn't function. He failed to bend over, Woody's grounder popped between his heels and Demaree was home with the bacon.

The Cubs hammered out 16 hits in their first salute to the invading easterners, with Babe Herman the only starting fellow excepting the pitcher who failed to get at least one single. Hartnett had four singles in a row after failing the first time up. Demaree and Grimm had three each in five times at bat. Mosolf had a double and a single and Bill Herman had a pair of singles. And don't forget that homer of Koenig's which came down in Sheffield avenue.

Jackson Starts Big Inning.

Jackson made the first hit off Malone to start the third and launched the five run riot which soon caused Pat to flee the premises. A pass to Mancuso followed. The runners held on while Parmelee flied to Babe Herman, but Critz singled, Jackson scoring and Mancuso stopping at third. O'Doul supplied the second out with a short fly to Demaree, but Terry, who had been robbed of a triple by Mosolf in the first inning, was in no mood to be thwarted as he came to bat with Mancuso and Critz waiting to dash home.

Manager Bill promptly tripled to the screen in deep right center, scoring Mancuso and Critz. Ott doubled to center, scoring Terry, and at this point Malone was borne off the field, Nelson replacing him. Vergez singled, scoring Ott. Moore also singled, but Nelson fanned Jackson.

Double Play Halts Cubs.

The Cubs showed a willingness to start their catching up campaign in the latter half of the third, but a double play stopped them before they could get a run across, with the re-

Hennelly, Mulligan, Hearns and Hughes

BY FRENCH LANE.

Along about 5 o'clock this afternoon the new queen of the 2 year old thoroughbred fillies in America will be crowned at Arlington Park.

The ceremony will take place immediately after the running of the Lassie stakes, the richest race for horses in this division run anywhere in the country. It has brought together the topnotchers from every part of the country in an overnight field of 13.

It bids fair to be the most furious east-west turf battle of the year. The western leader, Mata Hari, unbeaten so far in her brief career, hooks up with the eastern champion, Slapdash, winner of the Great American stakes in New York last Saturday.

Race May Be Worth $31,900.

Charles Fisher of Detroit owns Mata Hari and the Wheatley stable, maintained by Mrs. H. C. Phipps and Ogden Mills, is the owner of Slapdash.

These wealthy owners are not the only ones striving for the Lassie prize, which will be worth $31,900 provided all of the 13 eligibles go to the post.

Backing up Mr. Fisher's Dixiana flier in an effort to bring the big prize to the west will be Some Pomp, owned by Warren Wright of Chicago; Baby Stare, from Hal Price Headley's stable in Kentucky; Guiding Light, which will race for Ella Simpson, wife of Congressman James Simpson Jr. of Chicago, and Barbara Carom, the property of the Chappel brothers of Rockford, Ill.

Westerners Are Outnumbered.

The western owners are considerably outnumbered, however. Aside from Slapdash, the east has as representatives Dabchick, the petite daughter of Royal Minstrel, which races for Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney; Polly Egret and Sun Celtic, from Mrs. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Fairfield stable; Dawn Child, owned by Katherine Elkins Hitt of Baltimore, and Hindu Queen, owned by Morton L. Schwartz of New York, which will be ridden by the veteran Kentucky jockey star, Bill Fronk.

The racegoers a week ago thought that Arlington Park had offered a program that would not be surpassed this year. But it appears as if this afternoon's program has the one of a week ago beaten by a couple of country blocks.

There are other races on the program which may hold more general interest than the Lassie. Two of them are the Sheridan, for 3 year olds at a mile and a furlong, and the Buckingham handicap at a mile.

Sheridan Draws Classic Eligibles.

The Sheridan attracted eleven 3 year olds, all eligible to the Classic to be run a week from today. Among the colts and fillies entered are Charley O, winner of the Florida Derby and third in the Kentucky Derby; Edelweiss, first in the Coaching club American Oaks; Barn Swallow, second in the latter event and victor in the Kentucky Oaks; Jovius, second in the Latonia Derby; Sun Archer, winner of the Sanford stakes and Grab Bag handicap; Technique, with the Breeders' Futurity to her credit, and Bamboula, first in the Illinois Oaks.

In the Buckingham are such handicap stars as Sidney Grant, Rush Hour, Springsteel, Polydorus, Helianthus, Play Time, and Plucky Play. The latter, winner of the Arlington handicap and Hawthorne gold cup last year, is the topweight at 124 pounds. Most of these horses are being prepared for the Arlington handicap, but Rush Hour is being pointed for the Classic.

It promises to be a battle royal.

Sun Tempest, carrying Willis Sharpe Kilmer's green, brown and orange jacket, conquered a band of stylish 2 year olds in the Briergate purse, which was the best race on the program at Arlington yesterday.

He won as if he might be a colt with plenty of class. He didn't step the 5½ furlongs particularly fast but was in complete command of the situation from the time he took the lead on the turn leading into the stretch.

The Audley farm's Cloud d'Or ran second and Prince Pompey from Warren Wright's stable showed lots of speed all the way and was third. Earnings, the half-brother to Twenty Grand, showed a dull effort. He had been backed almost as stoutly as Sun Tempest and Trainer Willis Brennan could not understand his bad race.

That chestnut son of Sir Greysteel called Monel turned in another brilliant effort yesterday when he won the fifth race at a mile. He stepped the distance in 1:37. Col. Edward R. Bradley's Fingal, which raced wide all the way, finished second and Ebony Lady landed the slim end of the purse. Monel was in front from the start to finish and paid $6.08 to win.

Gold Basis, with which Morton L. Schwartz hopes to win the Classic as he did last summer with Gusto, flashed good speed in his workout yesterday morning when he stepped three-quarters in company with the latter horse. Gusto is being pointed for the Arlington handicap on July 22. Although he won the Latonia Derby last Saturday, Gold Basis had all his speed and he went the opening quarter in :23 2-5, half mile in :46 4-5 and three-quarters in 1:12 3-5, Gusto being right with him all the way.

GENE D., given a hustling ride and away fast, was under strong urging the opening quarter and, continuing well under energetic riding, won drawing out, but had little left. CREOLE BIRD, a strong factor throughout and forced to lose ground the first three-eighths, tired near end. TRANSCALL, taken back when in close quarters soon after the start, saved ground at the turn and, closing fast, headed STIMULAW in closing strides. Latter had no mishap.

Went to post at 2:50. At post 5 minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

MORSUN took command quickly, drew into a long lead at the turn, and weakened after five-eighths, but was not seriously menaced. ET CETERA, away slowly and slightly forced back when he failed to get through on inside approaching the turn, made up much ground after reaching final five-sixteenths and may have been best. GOOD AND HOT, sore and beginning slowly, closed with good speed.

Winner trained by Max Hirsch. Went to post at 3:19½. At post 1¼ minutes. Start good from permanent stalls. Won driving; second and third same.

CLEAR, having the benefits of the pace and steadied along for five-eighths, lost ground at the stretch turn and, responding to mild pressure when straightened up, wore down the leaders and appeared ready to draw out. FRENCH KNIGHT, away fast but taken in hand to follow the pace, was much used in wearing down COLIGNY after reaching the stretch and hung on well. COLIGNY had speed, saved ground throughout, and withstood driving gamely for another eighth before faltering.

Winner trained by W. Sims. Went to post at 3:46½. Off at once. Start good from permanent stalls. Won easily; second and third driving.

BEAVER, dropping far out of it and much the best, saved some ground at the turn and, closing with a rush, overtook the leaders to win drawing out rapidly. UNCOMMON GOLD, a strong factor from the start and strongly shaken up approaching the turn, stood the drive gamely. STREET SINGER, taken into the lead and steadied along for five-eighths, continued gamely to final eighth, where he faltered.

Went to post at 4:13. At post 2½ minutes. Start good from permanent stalls. Won easily; second and third driving.

MONEL, away fast and having speed, quickly drew clear, made an easy pace to stretch, where she maintained her speed gamely, and had something left. FINGAL lost ground throughout, responded to strong hand riding after reaching the final five-eighths, and while unable to get to winner, held on well. EBONY LADY saved much ground, could not get to leader when urged hard, and weakened in final three-sixteenths, but was best of others.

Winner trained by G. Land. Went to post at 4:40½. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

SUN TEMPEST, away fast but dropping back slightly when slow to find his stride, moved fast and on extreme outside at the turn, slowly wore down CLOUD D'OR, and won under light pressure. CLOUD D'OR, hustled to front on inside, had good speed and held on gamely. PRINCE POMPEY, away fast and allowed to drop back at the turn, responded to punishment after reaching final eighth, but was taken in hand near end, where he swerved behind winner.

PREFER, away slowly and a good distance back for three-quarters, improved her position gradually thereafter and, wearing down DISPATCHER, won drawing out. Latter had speed from the start, saved ground after three-eighths, and held on in improved order. FOOLHARDY, away well but weakly ridden and repeatedly taken back, closed on own courage.

TREK, improved and far back for seven-eighths, began bettering his position fast on inside, thereafter bore over in the final drive and was up in closing stride, but was disqualified for fouling. KING PIN crowded his way through on inside at first turn, raced ULTRA MARINE into submission, and bore out badly when holding on stubbornly in final eighth. WHITE LEGS, probably best and well up from the start, was crowded between the two leaders near end and with room probably would have won. ODERIC weakened in final eighth.

Canzoneri and Ross Sign for Title Battle

Ross defeated Tony in a 10 round contest at the Chicago Stadium June 23.

Bout Set for 15 Rounds.

The New York meeting will be at 15 rounds. It will be Ross' first test at this distance while the former champion had successfully defended his crown against Billy Petrolle, Jack [Kid] Berg, and Kid Chocolate in 15 rounds.

The terms of the contracts were announced as 37½ per cent for Ross and 12½ for Canzoneri. Canzoneri received a $30,000 guarantee in the previous match against Barney, who received 20 per cent.

Ross Has Two Matches.

Ross is scheduled to engage in two tuneup encounters before facing Tony again. Last night it was announced that Barney will defend his junior welterweight title against Johnny Farr at Kansas City on July 25. He will open training for this match at Grand Beach, Mich., July 17, with the Golden Glove champions, who meet a team from Ireland in an international tournament at Soldiers' field on Aug. 2. The Farr contest will be at 12 rounds.

Promoter Mara will return to New York tomorrow following professional football meetings today and tomorrow. He is owner of the New York Giants pro football team.

Sammy Wolff, Chicago promoter, yesterday mailed contracts to Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight champion, for a match with King Levinsky on Sept. 7. It was reported that Levinsky had accepted terms. Wolff said the match would be held at Comiskey park or Soldiers' field.

Karl Kamrath Enters Tennis Semi-Finals

Two college stars of the tennis world, Karl Kamrath of Texas and Gene Mako of the University of Southern California, came back with rousing finishes yesterday to join Frankie Parker of Milwaukee and Junior Coen, Kansas City, in the semi-finals of the National Clay Court singles tennis meet.

Kamrath defeated John McDiarmid, Texas Christian university professor, in a stirring five set duel, 2-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3, and Mako whipped Lefty Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Coen May Default.

The two collegians meet in today's semi-final on the Chicago Town and Tennis club courts, but the battle of the upper half bracket was doubtful. Coen suffered from a blistered right foot today and withdrew from the doubles competition. He said he might default to Parker, thus putting the Milwaukee school boy in the finals.

Except for the first set, when the Chattanooga southpaw upset him with lightning placements and cross-court drives, Mako, a serene and confident player, had Bryan at his mercy with his cannon ball service and smashing overheads, but with Kamrath it was a different story. He lost the first two sets as McDiarmid played steadily and fed him soft shots.

Kamrath Starts Rally.

Kamrath opened his comeback mid way in the third set with the game score 1-4 against him. He checked McDiarmid's net attack and won the next five games and the third set, 6-4. In the fourth he won five in a row, rested as McDiarmid won two games after they had been deuced, and ran out with two 4-2 game victories to square the match.

In the final set Kamrath ran the game count to 4-love, then 5-1, after which he played a safe game.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

Third Round.

Lefty Bryant, Chattanooga, and John McDiarmid, Fort Worth, Tex., won by default from Wilbur Coen, Kansas City and Jay Cohn, Chicago.

Gilbert Hall, New York, and Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa., defeated Frank O'Connell, Chicago, and Ed Shoaff, Chicago, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Jack Tidball, Los Angeles, and Gene Mako, Los Angeles, defeated Henry Prusoff, Seattle, and Wilbur Hess, Fort Worth, Tex., 7-9, 6-3, 6-2, 10-8.

DOUBLES.

Quarter-finals.

Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., and Karl Kamrath, Austin, Tex., defeated Frankie Parker, Milwaukee, and Doc Barr, Dallas, Tex., 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 9-7.

SINGLES.

Quarter Finals.

Karl Kamrath, Austin, Tex., defeated John McDiarmid, Fort Worth, Tex., 2-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.

Gene Mako, Los Angeles, defeated Lefty Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., 3-6 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

CRAWFORD WINS FROM VINES AND CAPTURES TITLE

Final at Wimbledon Goes to Five Sets.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, July 7.—Ellsworth Vines of the United States today lost his Wimbledon crown to Jack Crawford, brilliant Australian, in a smashing five set match, 4-6, 11-9, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

Crawford's victory was unexpected. Before today the pair had met seven times and Vines had come out on top in every encounter except two. Last year in this same tournament the American national champion turned back the Australian in straight sets.

By virtue of his victory today, Crawford must be placed at the top when the stars of the court are ranked. In addition to the Australian championship the Anzac Davis cup player also holds the France singles championship, which he won recently by beating Henri Cochet in straight sets.

Vines Wins First Set.

Crawford dropped the first set to Vines, whose cannonball service was working to perfection. The Australian was bewildered as Vines' serves went by him for aces and, though he kept fighting back to bring the score to 4-5, the set came to an end as the tall Californian sent another terrific serve at him.

The second set started with both players winning on their own serves and the set went to nine games before either was able to break through. A double fault by Vines gave the Australian the set in the 19th game when Vines' service began to lose some of its power.

In the third set the Australian reached the peak of his game and, after both players had won their own serves twice, Crawford won four straight games to capture the set.

Playing desperately in the fourth set, Vines was putting every ounce of power into his strokes and, as the Australian became a trifle unsteady, broke through to take a 2-1 lead. He won on his own service, but Crawford came right back to make the count 3-2. Vines then rushed on to victory, taking the set, 6-2, and squaring up the match.

Loses on Netted Balls.

Crawford got off to a 2-1 lead in the fifth set, but the American made it even on his own serve. Vines' backhands were working poorly, and he was unable to break through. The match went to 4-all, and then Crawford forged ahead to make it 5-4. Vines, badly tired, netted the ball and the match was over.

Dog Race Bill with Monopoly Up to Horner

Springfield, Ill., July 7.—(AP)—Whether pari-mutuel betting on dog races, which for several years have been held at tracks in Cook and Madison counties without legal sanction, is to be legalized will soon be determined by Gov. Horner.

The last general assembly passed a bill permitting such betting and the governor has until midnight July 13 to act on the measure. He has not publicly indicated what disposition he will make of the bill.

The bill provides for the licensing of dog tracks by the state department of agriculture. It is provided that no more than three such licenses shall be issued in counties of more than 500,000 population, [there are now three dog tracks in Cook county], and not more than one license in counties of less population. This provision gives the four dog tracks now in operation in the state a monopoly in their counties.

The bill permits licenses to be issued for meets to be held between May 1 and Oct. 1, but provides that no single meet shall exceed 165 days. Racing would not be permitted on Sundays.

Dog tracks would be required to return to the state 10 cents on each paid admission. Each track would be permitted to retain not more than 13 per cent of the money wagered. Of the money retained by the track 3 per cent would go to the state.

The bill also provides for state inspection of the betting. The inspector, however, would be paid by the track a salary not to exceed $20 a day.

Bob Fothergill Is Given Release by Red Sox

Boston, Mass., July 7.—[Special.]—Bob Fothergill, veteran outfielder, was given his unconditional release by the Boston Red Sox today. The club has purchased Freddy Muller and Bill Waters from the Coast league and dropped Fothergill to stay within the player limit. Fothergill came to Boston in a trade with the White Sox last December.

SIMMONS TAKES BATTING LEAD AS CRONIN IS IDLE

While their National league rivals from Philadelphia were idle yesterday, the three American league members of the Big Six knotted their race up in the closest tie so far, with Al Simmons, Joe Cronin and Jimmie Foxx separated only by fractions of percentage points in their race for the league batting lead.

Cronin also had the day off yesterday. Simmons made two hits in five times up, lifting his mark just enough to give him the lead, while Foxx hit two out of four to gain two points.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The second and final portion of The Tribune Golf school's graduating exercises, an 18 hole medal play tournament, will be conducted today at the Northbrook Golf club on Dundee road a mile and three quarters west of the Waukegan road or one mile east of Milwaukee avenue.

The boys' class will tee off first, starting at 11 a. m. They will be followed by the girls at noon, the women at 1 p. m., and the men at 2 p. m. The field today will be composed of the same 108 finalists from the 27 member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association who competed in the form contest at Mid-City Wednesday night.

There were numerous excellent swings at Mid-City, but today is the day when they will be proven, for no matter how well they may have looked Wednesday night in matters of stance, grip and swing, they'll be hitting real golf balls at real greens today.

Among the finalists in today's tournaments are the four winners of the form competition Wednesday. They are Ray Deen of Hickory Hills, who won in the men's division; Mrs. Betty Lucas, also of Hickory Hills, who was adjudged best in the women's class; Dorothy Sturm of Mid-City, the victor in the girls' class, and Victor Arvia, the Olympia Fields caddy representing the Pipe o' Peace course, who won among the boys.

Deen and Mrs. Lucas received their six weeks of free instruction from Harry Adams, while Joe Tivnan was Miss Sturm's tutor, and Arvia was coached by Bill Pachot. They were rated the best on form by a jury of professionals composed of Bob McDonald, Tommy Armour of Medinah, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, Jock Hutchison of Glen View, and Harry Cooper of Glen Oak.

All of the prize students are requested to appear at Northbrook on time today, since this is the day when all prizes will be awarded. Each of the 108 who entered the finals will receive from the Daily Fee association a playing membership good for the balance of the season at that course at which they took their lessons. The eight winners of the two finals will receive from the association a playing membership good for the remainder of the season at all 27 member courses of the association.

The Tribune will award Mrs. Lucas, Miss Sturm, Deen and Arvia silver loving cups for their victories in the form contest, and will present to each of the four winners of today's tournament a bag, two wooden clubs and four irons. Winners of second and third places in the two finals will be awarded a dozen balls by the association.

A number of the courses have planned to put on exhibition matches tomorrow for the benefit of their pupils during the six weeks of the school. These include Westgate Valley, Elmgate and Northbrook. Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley will present the best show when he brings four of the school's judges together—Armour and Hutchison against Walsh and Cooper—in an 18 hole match beginning at 3 p. m. The club is located at 131st street and Ridgeland road, just west of Blue Island. All pupils are invited to attend.

Women's City Golf Tourney to Open at Skokie July 17

The Chicago Women's District Golf association will hold its city championship tourney at the Skokie Country club from July 17 through July 21. All golfers with handicaps of 28 or less whose clubs are members of the Women's Western Golf association are eligible to compete. The entry fee is $2. Entries should be sent to Miss Marjorie Russell, secretary of the association, 140 South Viola avenue, La Grange, or Mrs. John A. Wheeler, president, of 814 Ingleside place, Evanston.

The Cook county open tournament, conducted annually by the Garfield Park Golf club, will begin Wednesday and continue through Saturday. An 18 hole qualifying round will be played Wednesday, with two flights of 32 players each advancing to the match play rounds. Entries will be accepted at the tee Wednesday until 1 p. m. The fee is $2, including greens fees for the qualifying round. J. P. Fitzgibbons is secretary of the club, and Charles Naselli chairman of the sports and pastimes committee.

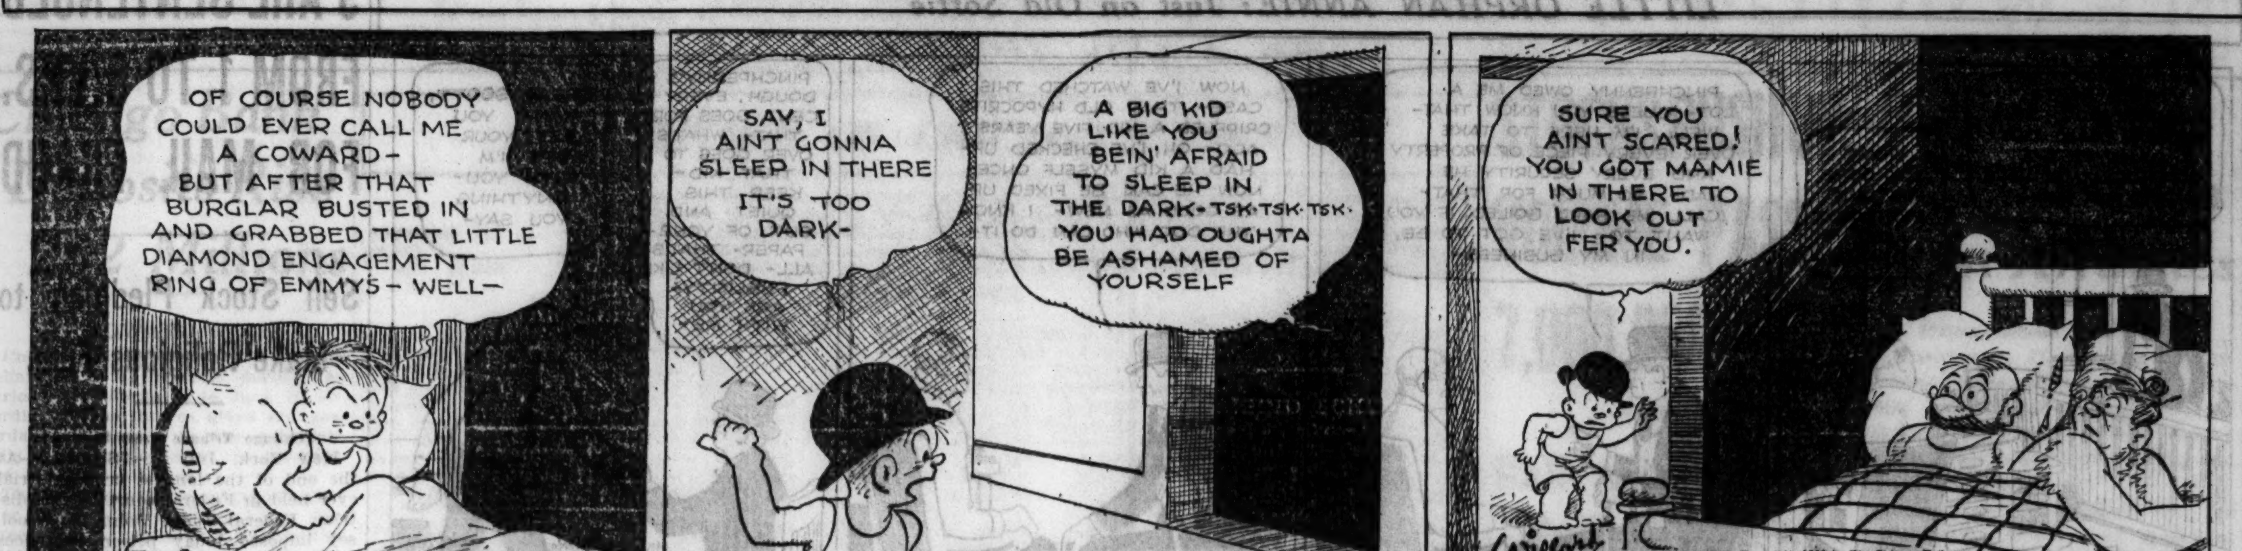

Entries for the national amateur championship, to be held at the Kenwood Country club, Cincinnati, O., Sept. 11-16, close on July 20 with the United States Golf association, 110 East 42d street, New York City. The fee is $5. The qualifying round for the Chicago district will be held at Bob o' Link on Aug. 8.

Chuck Becka of Calumet is the first player to enter the Chicago District Golf association's amateur championship to be held at Glen Oak July 31-Aug. 3. The qualifying round will be at 36 holes. The entry fee of $5 should be sent to Joseph G. Davis, secretary of the association, 1534 Lytton building, Chicago.

The Illinois Professional Golfers' association championship, which is combined with the annual qualifying round for the National P. G. A. tournament, will be held on July 24 at the Cog-Hill Country club. The tournament is at 36 holes, and the fee of $2.50 should be sent to the Illinois P. G. A., 14 East Jackson boulevard, room 1614. The Illinois P. G. A. will hold a pro-amateur event Monday at Beverly. Tommy Armour of Medinah is expected to compete.

GAME OF THE CENTURY.

With the baseball game of the century, successful even beyond expectations, now a matter of history, query naturally arises whether it may become an annual fixture. Chicago, of course, could hardly expect to become the permanent location. If held, it naturally would rotate among the various big league cities for the greatest good of the game.

If wishes of fans alone are considered similar contests will be held annually. For that reason baseball officials are loath to be quoted even in the mildest opposition to such plan. Yet one feels in talking to them informally they are making mental reservations as to the future. Strangely enough, those reservations apparently are based on the very great success of The Tribune suggestion and consummation.

From American league sources we learned the affair was regarded as marking a high spot in the history of baseball, an affair standing out for this year and for years to come. So impressive was this climax there was tendency to wonder whether it were not better to let well enough alone.

Could any other game, argued this line of thought, ever equal the game of the century on July 6? If held annually, might it not become just another ball game? The game of 1933 accomplished its purpose of baseball in recognizing A Century of Progress. Its discussion and its broadcast over national chains reached fans who otherwise would not have been reached. Perhaps such heights never again could be attained.

National leaguers, too, indorsed just as heartily the promotional value of the game at this time. Then came a line of thought, would such publicity each year tend to detract from public interest in the world series. Some thought it would. Others were open minded.

These undercurrents are given the fans just as candidly as were advance details of their contest. The game of the century was a game long wanted by the fans. It was participated in by players of their choice, determined by final ballot. The Chicago Tribune sponsored this particular affair. It has no further interest, except as the good of baseball and the wishes of the fans are concerned. The future is not determined. But you from this frankness know just as much as The Wake knows what may happen in years to come.

When asked for his opinion of the highlight, President Harridge of the American league was impressed with the zeal and earnestness of his league's players. Not one of them gave any evidence of regarding it as an exhibition. Every player was trying as hard as in a world series. That fact and a money's worth exhibition of high caliber play to fans fortunate enough to be there were his thoughts.

President Veeck of the Cubs prefaced by saying that from his viewpoint, that of a National leaguer, the highlight was that their star hurlers could hold back the greatest aggregation of American league sluggers ever brought together. Perhaps if Hubbell had started the result might have been different. Hubbell, however, had pitched an eighteen inning game earlier in the week and the Giants are in the thick of a pennant fight. A little difference in the breaks could have reversed the final figures.

PRO FOOTBALL CHIEFS CONSIDER NEW MEMBERS

Two and possibly three applications for franchises in the National Professional Football league are expected to be accepted at the annual meeting which will open at the Blackstone hotel this afternoon.

Cincinnati and Pittsburgh have applied for membership and Philadelphia is expected to make application. Frankfort, a surburb of Philadelphia, Pa., formerly held membership in the league, but Philadelphia proper never has had representation. The league operated with eight clubs last year.

Aldermen to Play Judges in Hospital Benefit Game

Public officials yesterday made plans for a benefit ball game between aldermen and judges, to take place on July 15 at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, for the benefit of patients. State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney was nominated umpire, with Municipal Judge Joseph P. McGarry as captain of the judges and Ald. James A. Quinn captain of the aldermen.

Washington and Yale Win Crew Trials

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Long Beach, Cal., July 7.—Yale and Washington eights, rowing favorites of the east and west, won their respective heats in the intersectional collegiate sprint regatta over the 2,000 meter distance in Long Beach marine stadium today. Cornell and Harvard were secondary qualifiers, insuring a bitter fight in the final race tomorrow.

Washington's oarsmen, spurred by Harvard's spirited challenge in the middle distance, finished in 6:40, the fastest time of the day. Yale's time in winning the first heat was 6:44 3-5.

Washington Wins Easily.

After Washington shook off the Harvard challenge at the 1,400 meter mark, the Huskies rapidly increased their lead, and Coxswain Harry Love never allowed his crew to cool off in the finish. As a result, Washington finished ahead by better than two lengths, with University of California at Los Angeles, gamely struggling to qualify with a 38, and then a 40 beat, fading into the ruck. Cornell, placing second to Yale in the first heat, made a closer race of it, to place second by slightly less than one boat length. California was a well beaten third in this heat.

The races were rowed in a perfect setting, although the crowd was a disappointment to Long Beach and Los Angeles civic bodies, which had underwritten the venture for more than $30,000 in an attempt to attract favorable attention to offset the publicity of the March 10 earthquake and the recent oil field explosions.

Runner-Up Times Poor.

Cornell's second place time of 6:49 1-5 in the first heat surpassed Harvard's qualifying time of 6:51 3-5 in the second heat, but neither of the second place qualifiers justified any expectation of victory tomorrow.

A series of single scull and four oared races for Pacific coast championships completed the day's program.

What Does Ruth Have to Do, Anyway?

have won the ball game for the Cardinals.

And that greatest individual performance ever achieved by any athlete, a display that transcended mere athletic might and became artistry, when he not only hit two home runs in the world series game in Chicago last fall but, on the second one, took two strikes and then pointed to the spot where he was going to, and unerringly did, drop it.

The 15 cent paper backs of the baseball library are crowded with statistics on the Babe, but if he goes past this season, or this hour, without receiving the recognition which he has earned, then this latest feat, like the rest of them, will jell into type on the records, losing all the stimulating color and flavor. The time to holler for a hero is when he is fresh, and the Babe may begin to grow historic any day.

Americans Go for It.

Why is this lack of gew-gaws with which to honor an American who has done as much as the Babe? It certainly is not that the American character abhors the epaulet and clanking sword as any one knows who ever watched any body of American lodge brothers, including dignified and outwardly unimaginative retail merchants, salesmen and members of the learned professions, marching in plumes and garish pantaloons in the grand parade of the annual convention.

Change Name of Park.

An honest recognition of the facts would admit that the official distaste for such things in American life conflicts with the temperatment of the citizens. There are no distinguished orders other than the military, but there is a great trade in lodge buttons and parade uniforms and in beautiful badges which are pinned across the fronts of gents and ladies at a thousand annual reunions of the sons and daughters and knights and ladies of one thing and another every year.

If Babe Ruth had been an Englishman and he had performed his feats in the soap or grocery business or the publishing trade or in party politics, he would be at least a lord today.

To be sure, he is the Babe to one and all, and not much worse than first in the hearts of his countrymen as matters stand, and that is very nice. But it is also democratic cant to insist that that is enough. He ought to be his grace and earl of the Bronx with a big jeweled sunburst or suspender buckle to show for it, and Col. Jake Ruppert, after holding out all these years, ought to chip those sulky letters off th facade of the park which he calls the Yankee stadium and do himself the honor of naming it after Babe Ruth.

Cubs Win in Tenth After Trailing, 5 to 0

In the fourth, however, the Cubs accomplished two runs in their uphill drive. Mosolf doubled to left and paused while Babe Herman executed the first of two successive strikeouts. Demaree rammed a single off Parmelee's glove, Mosolf holding second. Hartnett then came through with a single to center, the first of his series of four successive hits. This scored Mosolf and put Demaree on third. Grimm singled to left, scoring Demaree. Luque replaced Parmelee. Jurges flied to Moore and Campbell, batting for Nelson, tapped to Terry, who tossed to Luque for the putout.

Henshaw Holds Giants.

Henshaw held the Giants to one single in each inning during the fifth, sixth and seventh, and hitless in the eighth, striking out four the while and getting the stage in shape for the Cubs' fine eighth inning tableaux.

The big tying blast opened mildly enough with Luque throwing out Demaree. Hartnett, however, made his third single and went to second when Grimm also singled. Koenig then batted for Jurges. After a strike and two balls he drove the ball over the right field bleachers, whereupon Gabby and Charley and Mark trooped across with just enough runs to effect a 5 to 5 tie. Henshaw and English were easy outs.

When Henshaw walked Mancuso on five pitches to start the ninth, Manager Grimm lost no time in replacing him with Charley Root. Pinchbatter Peel and Critz did nothing, and the inning ended with Davis fanning.

Stephenson, Cuyler Called On.

The Cub ninth was an old home spectacle, though nothing was accomplished. Lefty Clark went in to pitch and after Bill Herman had popped to Jackson, Manager Grimm canvassed for some right handed hitters. He first called Stephenson, out with a broken finger since June 20. Stevie batted for Mosolf and sent a long fly to Davis. Manager Grimm then stuck by his decision to request Kiki Cuyler to come back to work at the first appearance of a lefty. Ki batted for Babe Herman and grounded out to Jackson.

Terry walked to start the tenth and moved to second on Ott's sacrifice. Root then put on the clamps and made Vergez fly to Stephenson and Moore pop to English.

Then came the stirring tenth with the happy results of which you are aware.

The Cubs and Giants will engage in the second of the four game series this afternoon, with Guy Bush pitching against the able young Hal Schumacher.

The Cubs yesterday gained on all the teams ahead of them in the National league. They are seven games behind the leading Giants and two behind the Cardinals and one behind the Pirates.

Blanchard, Donovan Draw in 5 Rounds at Fronton

Pete Blanchard, Kansas City welterweight, and Artie Donovan of Joliet fought a five round draw last night in the windup of the boxing show at the Rainbo Fronton. The semi-windup also ended in a draw between Artie Mitchell and Joe Roman. Other results:

Jerry Kucera beat Jack O'Brien [4].
Bobby Vernon beat Curtis Mills [4].
Mennen Kumis knocked out Jack Mathews [3].
John Holda threw Al Williams, 12:50.

Sox Defeat Macks, 9-1, in Opener

the Athletics' fifth, though the Philadelphia pitcher would have been retired had not Sullivan dropped his foul. Billy, however, escaped being charged with an error. Cramer attempted to sacrifice, but Durham pounced on his bunt and his throw to Dykes retired Mahaffey. Jimmy then went far to his left for Johnson's roller and started a double play.

The busy Dykes coaxed out a walk to start the sixth and was sacrificed to second by Hayes. Grube came through for the third straight time, handcuffing Williams with a line drive that scooted into left field for a single, Dykes scoring. After Durham had sacrificed, Swanson doubled to left, scoring Grube. Haas' third single sent Swanson home, but Sullivan rolled weakly to Williams.

Simmons Hits Homer.

Big Jim Peterson relieved Mahaffey in the seventh. Simmons greeted him with a single to center. Appling hit to Williams, who started a double play. Al slid into second and argued in vain that he was safe. Everything was forgotten, however, when Dykes blasted the ball deep into the upper left field deck.

Durham again showed his skill with men on bases in the Athletics' seventh. Williams beat out a slow roller to Appling and Pinch Hitter Bing Miller was hit in the ribs. The next three hitters went out.

Tigers Whip Yankees, 9-4; Take 5th Place

New York, July 7.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers opened the western invasion of the Yankee stadium today by pounding four Yankee pitchers for a dozen hits and a 9 to 4 victory. The triumph sent the Tigers into fifth place ahead of the idle Cleveland Indians while it put the Yanks three games behind Washington.

Babe Ruth walloped his 19th home run of the season in the first inning after Fred Walker had walked. But the two run lead lasted only to the fourth inning. Then Charley Ruffing struck a streak of wildness and left the game after walking in a run.

16 Yachts Start Race Tonight to Saugatuck

The Jackson Park Yacht club's annual race to Saugatuck, Mich., one of the best known distance hauls from these waters, will start tonight at 7 o'clock off the east tower of the sky ride at A Century of Progress. Sixteen boats, including nearly all of last year's class winners, will set forth on the 78 mile jaunt to the Michigan shore. The course is northeast, three-eighths east.

William J. Moore, chairman of the regatta committee of the Jackson Park club, will fire the starting gun from Commodore Charles Roovart's power cruiser Lotawana, sending away the cruisers at 7 p. m., the Seawanhaka class at 7:05, and the Q boats at 6:10 p. m.

Princess Wins Last Year.

The sailors who battled through the 1932 race are hoping they will not encounter such difficulties as last year, when the fleet ran into an electrical storm 25 miles from the Michigan shore. Princess, the Q class boat owned by Edmond Jedrzy-Kowski and Carl Kallgren of Jackson Park, finished first at Saugatuck despite the fact that its mainsail was torn to tatters during the storm.

The other victors last year included Nira, Dr. R. B. Cobb's B class cruiser from the Chicago Yacht club; Bryce Hess' Beaver, C class cruiser out of Jackson Park, and Gus Nylund's Seawanhaka entry, Springtime, from the Columbia Yacht club.

Benedict Seeks Time Record.

Bob Benedict will enter his Bagheera in the class A cruisers and hopes to set a time record as he did in last year's Michigan City race, getting to the Indiana city in 3 hours and 21 minutes.

Class A cruisers—Bagheera, Bob Benedict, Jackson Park Y. C.; Mary Lou, Dr. R. R. Duff, Jackson Park Y. C.

Class B cruisers—Edith III., Bert Williamson, Jackson Park Y. C.; Nira, Dr. R. B. Cobb, Chicago Y. C.; Comet, Dr. W. E. Redlich, Chicago Y. C.; Ann, Ed Daniels, Jackson Park Y. C., and Audax, William Ryan, Jackson Park Y. C.

'WHY BREAK UP WINNING TEAM?' MACK ANSWERS

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7.—(AP)—Connie Mack, back from Chicago, where the American league baseball All-Stars defeated John McGraw's National league All-Stars, tonight answered the question that has been worrying quite a few fans:

"Why didn't you use Jimmy Foxx, Wes Ferrell, Tony Lazzeri, and Oral Hildebrand in the big game?"

"I didn't shake the team up because it's against all my instincts to disturb a winning combination," he said. "Nothing made me feel more badly than the fact I didn't use Foxx, Lazzeri, and Pitchers Hildebrand and Ferrell.

"After all, I was chosen manager of this team to win the game, and I resolutely followed my own methods once the game was under way. The players understood."

Fighting's All Paddy Has to Do for While

realize she was ailing, she died. Connolly was confided to the care of his uncle. He had just finished the National school course and now the matter of a job became of utmost importance.

Passengers cannot be carried in Pimlico families and Connolly shied at the thought of being a burden to his uncle. The first position open to him was chore boy in a bottling works. This was tantamount to being a janitor. It was not to Paddy's liking and he immediately promoted himself to the rank of a day laborer in a brick field.

A short time later he joined the National army reserve. His enlistment brought him into contact with boxing instruction and organized athletics for the first time. His natural boxing ability attracted attention in the summer training camp and in the fall army authorities suggested that he join a boxing club. Paddy promptly became a member of the St. Andrews club in Dublin.

Champs Get a Hidin'.

The club entered him in his first tourney in the spring of 1930. These bouts were the Leinster championships. Paddy was chosen to fill out the St. Andrews team. No one expected him to make much of a showing. But he knocked out his first two opponents and scored three decision victories to enter the finals for the championship. He was outpointed in the title bout by a seasoned fighter, who, it later developed, was an instructor in a small club.

A few months later Connolly attracted nation-wide attention when he went to Drogheda to fight a welterweight. Paddy hammered the big fellow into submission in six rounds. This bout was followed by victories over the Scottish flyweight champion, the Welsh titleholder, Tommy Pardoe, the British A. B. A. champion, and Sock Johnson, a six foot A. B. A. welterweight champion.

In the army championship last winter Connolly defeated Cadet Doyle, the defending champion, for the flyweight title. This victory led to his promotion from the reserve forces to the regular army and he was mustered in at Collins barracks, once the home of the notorious Black and Tans of invidious memory.

Chicago! Ah, Chicago!

Connolly had scored three knockouts in the Army tournament and was becoming a feared man among flyweights. Unable to find opponents in his class, he accepted a match with Pat [Slogger] Hughes, the featherweight champion, who will represent the Free State in the Chicago bouts. Connolly forced the fighting for the first four rounds, but tired and lost the six round decision. This was preparatory to the national championship tourney, in which the contestants for the Chicago bouts were selected.

The national meet had little opposition to offer Connolly and he won the championship and right to make the Chicago trip without extending himself. The dream of Chicago made Connolly all the more determined to win in this tourney, a fact which may be largely responsible for his easy triumphs. Chicago, the World's Fair, and an opportunity to study American army life have been Paddy's chief aims since the announcement of the Free State's selection as the 1933 representative in the international bouts.

Battalion buddies call Paddy the Whistler, a nomenclature prompted by the peculiar hissing sound Paddy emits from the side of his mouth while fighting. An accident to his chin during childhood has left Paddy's mouth awry and when he trades punches his breath whistles through his twisted lips, much like the hiss of a serpent.

BODY OF HOGG OF LIQUOR FAME ON WAY TO CITY

The body of David Hogg, 92 years old, retired liquor dealer, was on the way to Chicago last night from La Jolla, Cal., where he died on Thursday. Since leaving Chicago six years ago Mr. Hogg had made his home in the west coast city. Funeral services will be held following the arrival here on Tuesday, accompanied by his three surviving children, Mrs. Lawrence R. Adams, Robert, and Raymond Hogg, all of La Jolla.

For many years David Hogg was one-half of the widely known firm of Hannah & Hogg, liquor and cigar dealers, owners of the Brevoort hotel and of numerous oases in the downtown district of Chicago. Their fame centered mainly in the renowned crystal bar at the Brevoort, which was restored to active service a few months ago, when beer again became legal.

Came to Chicago in 1869.

Born in Milnaphorte, Kinrosshire, Scotland, near St. Andrews, on April 23, 1842, David Hogg received his education in his native country. He came to America in 1863, and worked as a fresco painter and paper hanger in the east. In 1869 he came to Chicago, working in the same line with John J. McGrath and later with David Walker. It was in 1873 that he formed the partnership with Alexander Hannah that netted him fame and fortune.

In 1902 the firm was incorporated, and Mr. Hogg served as vice president until July of 1910, when he became treasurer, and remained in that post until his retirement in 1927. He still retained his interest in the Brevoort hotel.

Partners Married to Sisters.

In 1877 he married Miss Margaret Grady of Chicago, whose death occurred in 1922. His partner, the late Alexander Hannah, married a sister of Mrs. Hogg, both of the wives being Roman Catholics and both of the husbands prominent in Masonic circles. A joint mausoleum is owned by the family in Mount Calvary cemetery, where the body of Mr. Hogg will be interred.

INDIAN WOMAN, LAST OF TRIBE, IS DEAD AT 98

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Another tribe of the all but extinct Indians of Long Island vanished into legend today with the death of "Aunt Martha Mayne"—last survivor of the once numerous Poosepatuck nation. She died in her small cottage on the Indian reservation at Mastic, L. I.—now largely occupied by Negroes—at the age of 98.

For many years Aunt Martha had been an active worker for the white man's God and was widely known in Methodist circles. She was born in May, 1835, the daughter of Joel and Sabra Davis, pure strain Poosepatucks.

As a girl she went into domestic service in Greenport, and at the age of fifteen married William Hill, an Indian of Newburgh, N. Y. By him she had three sons, all of whom died. When Hill died a few years later she married Gilbert Mayne, a civil war veteran. They had four children, one of whom, Mrs. Abby Carl, survives.

When Mayne died, thirty years ago, his wife returned to her own people, going first to the Shinnecock reservation at Southampton and then moving to the reservation at Mastic, where a scattering few of her own tribe then were living. She outlived all of the other full blooded Poosepatucks.

Four Children Also Share in Fortune.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—The late Senator T. Coleman du Pont left an estate of $17,799,766 gross and $17,540,652 net, it was revealed today with the filing of a transfer tax appraisal. The senator, member of the famous Delaware family which controls one of the largest industrial enterprises in the country, died at his home in Wilmington on Nov. 11, 1930.

The senator was for many years head of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder company. He sold his interests in 1915 for $14,000,000 and retired. His fortune, before his death, had been estimated to be upward of $50,000,000, but large philanthropic gifts considerably reduced it, even before the depression.

The transfer tax appraisal filed today showed that securities in the estate totaled $15,841,976. His widow and four children are the principal beneficiaries.

The total value of New York taxable property amounted to $457,174, of which $454,585 was the appraised value of property at Irving-On-Hudson. The state receives $58,318 in taxes.

An affidavit describing Mr. Du Pont's nontaxable gifts, said that out of a total of $6,346,277 set aside in 1916 he transferred $2,000,000 to his wife and also made gifts to his son, Francis B. du Pont, and his daughters, Alice du Pont Buck, Renee du Pont Donaldson, and Ellen du Pont Meids, and gave $125,560 to employés in the Equitable building in this city in appreciation of their services.

9 ARE SENTENCED FROM 1 TO 5 YRS. FOR MAIL FRAUD

Sell Stock Pledging to Make Religious Film.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—At the end of the longest criminal trial ever held in Federal court in this district, Federal Judge John M. Woolsey imposed today prison sentences and fines upon Otto E. Goebel and eight co-defendants, who had been convicted of mail fraud.

Goebel, who headed an enterprise which was held to have defrauded 6,000 persons, mostly Roman Catholics, of $3,000,000, received a term of five years and a fine of $41,000.

Judge Woolsey sentenced Irene C. Flautt, Goebel's sister-in-law, to serve four years in prison and pay a fine of $41,000. Elizabeth M. Flautt, also a sister-in-law, for whom the jury had recommended mercy, was sentenced to prison for a year and a day.

So-Called Clean Plays.

The remaining defendants were salesmen of stock of the National Diversified corporation, backer of a campaign to promote clean and so-called religious motion pictures.

Jerome D. Klein and James E. Cassidy, described as super-salesmen of the enterprise, received sentences of four years and were fined $41,000 each. Similar fines and sentences of two years each were imposed upon Bernard J. Flynn, Franklyn Johnson, Robert J. Patterson and John Elder.

Judge Woolsey pronounced sentence at 3:30 p. m., a little more than an hour after a jury, which had begun deliberating late Thursday, had returned a verdict of guilty on thirty-one counts alleging mail fraud and on one count charging conspiracy.

Judge Assails Defendants.

Before imposing sentence Judge Woolsey said:

"The fraud in this case literally smells to heaven. There is not anything so odious as fraud flavored with religion—not any fraud more abhorrent than that which preys upon religious feeling and is practiced upon innocent and pious people, in this case people owning the simple faith of the Roman Catholic church."

The court noted that the defendants, by means of the operations of Associated Arts and other companies affiliated with National Diversified in some instances had taken the life savings of poor and trustful people.

DOLLAR SLIDES TO 71.23 CENTS IN GOLD VALUE

Sterling Up to $4.70, Franc to 5.5 Cents.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—With normal conversion operations practically suspended the American dollar went skidding to historical low quotations in terms of principal foreign monies.

At the end of the day the dollar was worth 71.23 cents in gold, using the French franc as a measuring rod. This was a depreciation of more than a cent from the preceding day's quotation of 72.8 cents. Just a month ago the dollar was worth 82 cents in terms of French gold money.

Pound Up 11¼ Cents.

Against the British pound sterling, a non gold money, the dollar was conspicuously weak. The pound rose to a cable rate of $4.70, the highest since the gold deseration, then turned down to finish the day at $4.68. At that price it is 11¼ cents above its previous day's close.

With the extent of the dollar's ultimate depreciation still uncertain the normal conversion support is entirely lacking. American firms have abandoned their usual procedure of converting foreign exchange holdings into dollars and are waiting until some stability is established. With this automatic support lacking and speculative selling from abroad the dollar had a tough time of it.

Bid for Foreign Money.

With normal transactions suspended, the market is unusually sensitive to speculative maneuvering which for the time being is all on the bear side. Corporations with actual need for foreign exchange are finding it difficult to obtain foreign monies without raising their bids. Many are hedging against future depreciation by accumulating balances to meet coming obligations abroad.

The fluctuations of the dollar against the franc were wide. Early the franc rose to 4.58 cents then declined to 4.50, a net gain for the day of 2 points. The Swiss franc advanced to 27.06 cents, up .56 cents. Dutch guilders were 1.33 cents higher at 56.43 cents.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., July 7.—The pound sterling jumped to $4.98 here today, a new high.

GOLD BLOC TO MEET

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, July 7.—Governors of the central banks of the European gold standard group will meet at the Bank of France tomorrow to consider a concerted policy, in view of the London economic conference's failure to reach a monetary accord. In financial circles the greatest importance is attached to these discussions because of the effects on exchange speculation and on stock market prosperity.

Clement Moret, governor of the Bank of France, will preside. Also present will be the governors of the banks of Italy, Holland, Switzerland, Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Jugo-Slavia. The conferees have invited Leon Fraser, American president of the Bank for International Settlements, to be present.

In official quarters it was stressed today that the meeting is intended to permit experts to take stock of the international situation and decide on the best means for mutual action to protect their currencies from enforced devaluation. No final decisions can be taken because the governments will not be represented. All the bank governors hope to accomplish is to arrive at an understanding for mutual coöperation, which will be recommended to their governments.

Rates of bankers acceptances—one of the most important forms of commercial financing—were advanced ⅛ of one per cent in New York yesterday, the first change in many weeks. The new rates are: 30 to 90 days, ⅝ of 1 per cent bid, ½ of 1 per cent asked; 4 months, ⅞ of 1 per cent bid, and ¾ of 1 per cent asked; 5 to 6 months, 1⅛ per cent bid, 1 per cent asked.

The advance was attributed in La Salle street yesterday to money getting a little bit firmer because of increased activity in the stock and commodity markets. It was stated also that another reason for the advance might be found in an increased demand for money because of expanding business.

In this connection New York banks found themselves in a position last week of having to draw funds from banks in other districts to meet federal reserve requirements.

In New York outside call money rose from ¾ of 1 per cent to 1 per cent. Time money is ¼ per cent higher at ¾ to 1 per cent for 60 and 90 days, 1 per cent for 120 days and 1 to 1¼ per cent for 150 days.

Chicago Bank Deposits Rise 282 Millions

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Chicago banks gained 282 million dollars in total deposits during the period from March 25 to June 30, according to the figures given out yesterday in response to the quarterly calls by the controller of the currency and the state auditor.

This represents the sharpest gain ever made by Chicago banks in any three months period and reflects the return of public confidence after the nation-wide bank moratorium.

Of this increase only 26 millions was in the savings department, savings deposits advancing from 263 millions on March 25 to 289 millions on June 30.

Despite the 282 million dollar growth in total deposits, the banks expanded their loans and discounts less than 9 millions, preferring to use the bulk of the money returned by depositors to improve their liquid position.

The result is that cash and cash assets have swollen substantially in proportion to total deposits. Cash resources totaled 570 millions on June 30, compared with 425 millions on March 25.

The improvement was well distributed, practically all banks sharing in the gains. In the few instances where gains were not shown the lower figures were due to reorganizations incidental to reopening after the bank holiday.

In the case of the Live Stock National bank deposits of $12,383,000 on March 25, 1933, included large special accounts aggregating approximately $7,500,000, and since eliminated by subordination or otherwise at the time this bank reopened.

No figures were available for the National Security bank as of March 25, 1933, due to the fact that this new institution absorbed all deposit liabilities of the Security Bank of Chicago and the Second Security Bank of Chicago at the time of reopening.

Figures were similarly lacking for the Mid-City National bank as of March 25, because this newly organized bank assumed all deposit liabilities of the Mid-City Trust and Savings bank.

The 282 million dollar gain in aggregate deposits does not measure all of the post-moratorium recovery, because of the fact that much of it had occurred between March 13, when the banks began to reopen, and March 25, when the first quarter call was made. The gain since March 25, however, has been continuous. Of the 282 million increase in deposits only about 6 millions represents deposits of banks reopened since March 25.

Chicago now has 15 national and 34 state banks, compared with 13 national and 30 state banks three months ago.

Nineteen Billions Transferred as Nation Changes Treasurers

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—Transfer of the largest amount of money and securities ever made by a government official was completed today when Walter O. Woods, former treasurer of the United States, turned over to his successor, W. A. Julian, a total of $19,347,366,089. To this sum the amount of 51 2-3 cents was meticulously added.

Julian, named as treasurer by President Roosevelt, gave his predecessor an itemized receipt for the amount, which was the largest that any incoming treasurer of the United States has ever receipted. It was about $5,000,000,000 greater than when Woods took office.

Exact to Fraction of Cent.

The exactness with which the committee handled the transfer of the funds from one treasurer to another was shown in its listing of the two-thirds of a cent shown in the receipts. It was necessitated by an old Tennessee bond which has remained in the treasury since before President Harrison's term of office.

The largest item in the receipts was for $16,776,306,720.27 2-3 which was for securities the government holds from foreign nations for war debts, securities from banks to guarantee government deposits, and securities from banks to back currency.

The new treasurer receipted $25,067,360 of gold certificates, $10,838,340 of gold, and $47,369,932 of silver. The immensity of the job of counting all of the money in the treasury was shown by the silver total alone. The metal weighed 1,400 tons and is actually only one-tenth of the silver that the government has. The remainder of it is in mints and the subtreasury.

Another large item on the receipt was $2,409,032,000 of reserve currency, which is held in the treasury.

Counting Requires Month.

The counting has been under the direction of a committee appointed by the outgoing and incoming treasurer and a secret service operative and tellers selected by them. The work was started more than a month ago and every bit of coin and currency and securities in the treasury that was not under seal of the mint or the bureau of printing and engraving was counted.

COPPER JUMPS TO 9 CENTS; OTHER METALS ADVANCE

New York, July 7.—(AP)—The price of copper in the domestic market today was established at 9 cents a pound, a gain of ½ cent over yesterday and the highest since May, 1931.

Other nonferrous metals continued to move forward with the red metal. The price of lead was marked up another 1-10 cent to 4.40 cents a pound by the American Smelting and Refining company. Zinc was quoted 15-100 of a cent higher at 4.75 cents a pound, East St. Louis.

NASH MOTOR RESUMES DIVIDEND ON BELIEF BUSINESS IS IMPROVING

Encouraged by improvement in business conditions throughout the country, directors of Nash Motors company yesterday voted a dividend of 25 cents per share, payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record at the close of business July 20. The company's second quarter report showed a loss of $145,469 after all expenses and taxes, which compares with net loss of $134,136 in the first quarter.

CHARLES W. NASH.

At a previous meeting on April 10 directors of the company had deferred payment of dividends "until such time as conditions justify."

Charles W. Nash, chairman, referring to the dividend actions, said:

"The improvement in business conditions throughout the country is so pronounced and our plans for future operations are so comprehensive and should mean so much to our company and to our dealer body that the declaration of a dividend seemed advisable and justified at this time."

The company's financial position continues to be exceptionally strong. The balance sheet at the close of the second quarter of the fiscal year, comprising the months of March, April, and May, showed $31,800,265 of cash and government bonds.

STOCKS PUSH UP; VOLUME PASSES 7,000,000 MARK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—Trading on the stock exchange was on an enormous scale today. Volume ran to around 7,024,530 shares and the number of individual issues traded in reached 957, making it one of the biggest days of the entire inflation movement so far.

Price movements, however, were not commensurate with the show of activity, due to the confusing nature of the day's news. The fresh collapse of the dollar to a new low brought a rush of buying orders in the forenoon dealings as traders set about to convert depreciating funds into equities. However, the break in wheat and cotton and a midday reaction in sterling turned the tide to the selling side in the afternoon and served to erase part of the early gains.

In the last half hour or so General Electric and Westinghouse led the list in a fresh rally which gained considerable momentum in some directions. Closing prices were mixed, but with plus signs predominating.

Rail Group Does Best.

The most consistent group performance of the day was put on by the railroad shares, the division as a whole going to the best levels since 1931. Pere Marquette issues spurted sharply and Southern Railway looked buoyant at times.

Among the oldtimers, New York Central had to content itself with a gain of a point or so, while Union Pacific and Atchison finished slightly in the ruck. Norfolk and Western added a point to its recent gains. At its closing figure of 175 today the last named carrier showed an advance of 116 points from its low of last July 8, the low of the long bear movement, while Union Pacific, finishing up at 128¼, showed an appreciation of nearly 100 points from its extreme low of 28⅜.

Other issues of the group showed recoveries of anywhere from 25 to around 60 points from their 1932 bottoms, Atchison and Delaware, and Hudson being two of those to show improvement approximating the larger figure.

Some of Leaders Sag.

Due to the afternoon selling, much of it probably attributable to the customary Friday afternoon run of profit taking, few of these leaders closed at their highs of the day, however. American Can, American Tobacco, Atchison, Case, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, Public Service of New Jersey, and others generally rated as market leaders closed behind minus signs.

The "repeal" stocks wound up on the wrong side of the column as a group, and the oils, in spite of rising prices of crude oil and gasoline throughout the country, showed a tendency to lag. Aviation shares also closed below their previous finals. In the mining group, Homestake, generally a star performer when the dollar is on the run, slid off for a net loss of 2 points.

However, there were enough gains of 1 to 3 points distributed about the list to give the market an upward look.

Banks Called to Give Data on Affiliates

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—The federal government today launched its first sweeping inquiry into the relationships between federal reserve member banks and their security and other affiliates.

Acting under provisions of the Glass-Stegall banking act passed at the last session of congress, the federal reserve board called upon each member bank to show the condition of its affiliates and its relations with them. Large banks, such as the National City bank and the Chase National bank, New York, which have dealt heavily in securities through their affiliates will have to reveal their transactions to the government for the first time.

Seek to Check Speculation.

The reports were required in the Glass bill as a device to check speculation with bank money pending the compulsory abolition of all member bank affiliates on June 16, 1934.

Full details of the relationship between affiliates and the parent bank have been called for in the forms the reserve board has prepared. These forms have been forwarded to the twelve reserve banks, which today started mailing them to member banks.

Money on deposit to affiliates, loans to them, borrowings from affiliates, bank stock owned by the affiliates and affiliate stock owned by the bank are some of the items specifically called for in the new forms. The blanks will not be made public in full until they reach member banks throughout the country.

May Examine Banks.

If the reserve board is not satisfied with the reports sent in by affiliates it may send in its own examiners to check over the institution. Federal authorities are especially anxious to learn of dealings between banks and their affiliates in order to gauge the effect of affiliate abolition next year.

Although the reserve board has the right to extend the time for the filing of affiliate reports, it was stated today that the board has no intention of granting a blanket extension. If some institutions can not immediately comply with the new requirements they may apply for an extension. The date for the report will remain as of June 30, however.

BOARD OF TRADE ORDERS REPORT ON BIG LONGS

Grains Sell Lower After Spurt.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The business conduct committee of the Board of Trade yesterday ordered members to report daily the net long position of all individual accounts where the open interest in any one future of wheat, corn, or oats exceeds 500,000 bushels or 200,000 bushels of rye. An individual operator who clears his trades through other members must make a report when his net long position is in excess of 2,000,000 bushels of any one future. The order became effective with the close of business yesterday.

For some time past the trade has been reporting daily to the committee the net short position of individual accounts where the open interest exceeded similar amounts. It is understood the new order is to forestall any charges of manipulation in the recent advance in grains.

"Police" Own Members.

For years the grain trade has been fighting for the right to "police" the actions of its own members rather than have the grain futures administration do it. No returns of individual open interest in the market have been made to the latter for a number of months and it is claimed speculative activity has increased as a result. The announcement appeared to have no market influence yesterday.

The continued nose dive in the American dollar, as measured in terms of gold currencies, started the grain markets higher yesterday, with all deliveries of wheat and corn soaring to a new high for the season, wheat moving up 2¼ to 2⅞ cents from Thursday's finish and around 13 cents from the low of last week, with all deliveries selling above $1.00 at the extreme. May wheat touched $1.10¼ at the top.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—Bonds displayed general strength in active trading today. A feature of the advance was the active participation of high grade issues which have tended to lag in recent sessions.

Demand for secondary speculative obligations continued, with a sizable list advancing one to three points, and with even wider movements in some instances.

Low priced rails paced the market most of the time, including issues of the Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate, Great Northern, Denver and Rio Grande, St. Louis Southwestern, Chicago and Northwestern, and Baltimore and Ohio.

Dollar Decline a Factor.

The decline of the dollar in the foreign exchange market influenced the market in some directions. For instance, bonds of American and Foreign Power and International Telephone debenture 5s were notably strong. Both companies collect a substantial portion of their income in the form of foreign currencies which are continually increasing in dollar value.

High grade bonds were steady to fractionally higher. The treasury list was closely grooved to yesterday's closing, while small but sustained gains were shown by such high ranked liens as Santa Fe general 4s, issues of American Telephone, Burlington general 4s, and Pennsylvania 4¾s, Consolidated 4s and general 4½s.

French Bonds Soar.

French government and municipal bonds soared 6½ to 10 points. French government 7½s and 7s closed at the same price, 139, each up 8¾ points on the day; City of Lyons 6s at 134, up 10 points, and Bordeaux 6s and Marseilles 6s at 131½, up 7½ and 6½ points, respectively. These prices represented the highest levels at which these issues have sold since issuance.

TRADE REPORTS CAN'T KEEP UP WITH EXPANSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—The forward rush in general business is being reported with such rapidity that even the trade reviews are hard pressed to present an exact report of the progress being made and an exceedingly comfortable backlog of unfilled orders is being increased in many lines. Even leaders of industry, the reviews say, have been mystified by the unprecedented climb of productive and distributive totals.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., say in part: "It no longer is an opinion that business is on the upgrade. It is a fact. Besides, it is one which has come on so suddenly that its full significance is yet to be comprehended in many quarters.

Orders from Unexpected Sources.

"In addition, orders are being received from unexpected sources, and many for amounts unequaled in years, while unemployment is being reduced each week and is accompanied by the encouraging announcements of more firms granting pay increases.

"Allowing no pause to be occasioned in the far reaching efforts to obtain goods by such world developments as the failure of attempts to stabilize international currencies, consumers continue to turn their new money into articles long needed, with a decided shortage already appearing in many lines of merchandise.

"The buying wave now has reached such proportions that it has swept aside all suspicion and lack of confidence so prevalent three months ago, and the weekly increase in the backlog of unfilled orders is considered unquestioned proof of the permanency of the general improvement.

Orders Still Conservative.

"While speculative buying is not absent in current operations, wholesalers as well as retailers are placing their orders with conservatism and are reluctant to stake too much on future developments. Buying during the fall season will depend heavily on the price at which the farmer will be able to market his crops.

"The recent price rises, however, in wheat, oats, and wool to pre-war averages have stimulated trade greatly in many sections, and with the purchasing power of farmers already lifted to the highest level in years, definite progress toward permanent recovery appears to have been achieved."

Lehn & Fink Products.

Investors' Guide: What is your opinion of Lehn & Fink stock?—S. V. H.

Answers: Lehn & Fink Products company was originally established about 60 years ago. Most important products are "Lysol" preparations, Pebeco tooth paste, Hind's cosmetics, and Dorothy Gray cosmetics.

Competition in these lines has become increasingly severe during recent years and maintenance of position in the industry appears to be dependent on liberal and effective use of advertising. Distribution is international.

The company reported a profit of $118,000, or 29 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1933. Net income for 1932 was $1,244,000, or $3.04 per share, against net of $1,451,000, or $3.59 per share, for 1931. Net for 1930 equaled $4.07 per share, against $4.10 in 1929 and $4.59 in 1928.

At the close of 1932 current assets were $2,096,000 and current liabilities $313,000. Cash was $891,000 and Dominion of Canada bonds totaled $44,000. Working capital was $1,783,000, against $1,332,000 the year before.

The 408,966 shares of $5 par common pay 50 cents a quarter. Management stated that the June 1, 1933, payment, while not earned, was declared because of the strong financial position of the company.

Trend of earnings since 1928 has been downward, although profits have been maintained on a better level during the period from 1929 through 1932 than those of many other companies. This was due in large part to better demand for proprietary products.

GENERAL MOTORS OFFICER LAUGHS AT FORD "PLOT"

Says His Firm Backed New Bank as Trade Aid.

Detroit, Mich., July 7.—[Special.]—Charles S. Mott, Flint capitalist, vice president of General Motors, former director of the Guardian group of banks, and a director of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce of Detroit, proved to be a spectacular witness in the bank inquiry before Judge Harry B. Keidan, who is sitting as a one man grand jury.

Mott ridiculed the "Wall street plot" to gain control of the Detroit banking business and to "get" Henry Ford. He stated that he felt justified in using "any legal means" to avoid a stockholders' assessment on 30,000 shares of Guardian Detroit Union group stock which he sold two months before the bank holiday to Harry S. Covington, at that time executive vice president of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, and admitted that the sale did not involve any real money payment by the purchaser.

Nothing Paid on Stock.

Mott testified that Covington gave him a $240,000 note, reassigned the stock to him as collateral, and up to the present time had not paid a cent of interest on the debt which he contracted Dec. 14, 1932. He knew nothing of the financial condition of Covington, but insisted that the sale of the stock was made in good faith and for a valuable consideration.

"The practical effect of this transaction was that Covington owes you the money, you don't have to pay the stockholders' assessment and you still have the stock?" G. K. O'Brien, deputy attorney general asked.

"From various things I have heard it is very questionable if I will have to pay any assessments," Mott retorted. "The bank may be solvent and there are other legal reasons."

"Do you feel justified in taking advantage of those legal reasons?"

"In view of the way the Detroit situation has been handled, yes," Mott said.

Would Advise Selling Stock.

During his testimony Mott asked questions himself, but nobody knew the answers. "Why," asked Mott, "doesn't somebody in this great financial center take the National Bank of Detroit out of the hands of General Motors? Why claim it is out of town owned and try to make Chrysler and General Motors corporations the goat?

"If I could see any way General Motors could sell the stock of the new bank to J. P. Morgan or George W. Davison or anybody else in Wall street I would do all I possibly could to bring it about. General Motors is not a banker and doesn't want to be one. I would suggest General Motors sell their stock below cost."

Mott insisted that General Motors opened the new bank only to provide needed credit and financial facilities for Detroit.

Mills Report Rush to Buy Flour Before Tax Starts

Kansas City, Mo., July 7.—(AP)—A last minute rush to buy flour before the processors' tax of 30 cents a bushel becomes effective tomorrow night has spurted southwestern flour mills operations to a point seldom equaled in the industry.

Kansas City mills have been pushing their output to capacity to meet the deluge of orders from grocers and other retailers who face an increase of approximately $1.40 a barrel on flour costs after midnight July 8.

Reading Recalls 400 Men to Work in Repair Shops

Free Wheeling Device Firm Reports Gain in Business

Indianapolis, Ind., July 7.—(AP)—W. Carleton Starkey, president of the L. G. S. Devices corporation, manufacturers of free wheeling equipment, today said 204,466 free wheeling units were shipped the second quarter of 1933, an increase of 70 per cent over the same period last year.

NEW SECURITY REGISTRATIONS SWAMP BUREAU

Fifty Issues of 75 Million Listed on First Day.

Washington, July 7.—(AP)—New security issues estimated to aggregate $75,000,000 were registered with the federal trade commission today by 50 business firms to meet the financing requirements of the federal securities law. They may not be sold to the public for 20 days after filing the registration statement.

The sudden flood of bulky financial statements on the first day of official regulation caught the commission unprepared for fast handling of the reports, so that details of registrations could not be made public immediately.

First Day's Fees $7,000.

Officials handling the reports, some of which were brought in person and some mailed, estimated, however, that the opening day's registration fees to the government were between $7,000 and $8,000. The fee is fixed at 1-100 of 1 per cent of the amount of the issue, but at not less than $25.

Most of the first day's registrations were submitted by investment trusts. The largest was a $10,000,000 issue by incorporated investors, a Boston firm. Other large-size registrations included Fundamental Investors, Inc., $9,362,000; Massachusetts Investors Trust, $5,000,000; American Trustee Share corporation, $5,000,000, and the Equity corporation, $3,275,000.

Find Errors In A Dozen.

Even though jammed by the opening rush, commission experts were able to detect obvious errors in a dozen of the first statements and prepared to return them to sender. In most cases the mistake was a failure to inclose the registration fee or have checks certified.

All firms registering today did so in accordance with their own interpretation of the law's requirements and must repeat their registration on the commission's own voluminous forms which now are being printed.

Each registration statement, together with the required exhibits, comprises a good sized volume in itself. Each must be filed in triplicate and the office floor of Baldwin B. Bane, who is directing the securities work, today was stacked high with these documents.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—Further advances in cotton goods are being forced by the rising costs of production due to recovery law. Buying for future delivery has been confined to a few operators. Wool goods' dealers are withholding offerings until their code of ethics is presented and accepted at Washington, most of the spot business being done through jobbers. Rayon sales have been large enough to take care of the September output. Silks continue in steady demand for fall with silks in the greige again advanced. Burlaps are firm at top prices asked.

PALMER HOUSE PLANS TO RECALL FAME OF ITS BAR

New Tavern to Recapture Old Time Color.

BY AL CHASE.

One of the nation's famous bars, that of the old Palmer house, is to make its reappearance before a thirsty world. It was learned yesterday that plans are being drawn for an elaborate bar and tavern to be installed on the first floor of the six story building at 108 South Wabash avenue, adjoining the Palmer house and owned by the Palmer estate. It probably will be called the "Palmer House Tavern and Bar."

WALTER GREGORY.

Passage from Hotel.

A passageway will connect it with the hotel so that guests will not have to go outdoors to reach the bar. It will occupy space formerly used by William H. Hoops & Co. The upper floors of the building are occupied by the Interfraternity club.

"There never was a more famous bar than that of the old Palmer house," said Walter Gregory, manager of the present Palmer house, yesterday. "All of the romance and color of that historic old drinking room we hope to recapture and incorporate in our new tavern and bar.

Design Not Settled.

"We have not yet decided whether to make fixtures and appointments of modern design or to make it an old time taproom with period furniture and fittings. Of course, it will be artificially cooled."

Tentative plans call for a long bar along the south wall of the tavern with buffet tables. The room is 85 feet deep, so one of the longest bars in the country can be installed if it's decided that business will warrant, and with the repeal of the eighteenth amendment in sight it's hinted that a long bar will be necessary.

COTTON ACREAGE REDUCTION PLAN NEARS SUCCESS

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—The cotton acreage reduction program appeared virtually certain of acceptance tonight and as a result the next six weeks will see upward of 100 million dollars pouring into the sixteen cotton states.

An extension of the time for growers to sign contracts to plow up from 25 to 30 per cent of their present crop is believed necessary by President Roosevelt, however, and this will be authorized formally tomorrow by Secretary Wallace.

The President was described today as well satisfied with the progress made in obtaining agreements for producers to plow up a part of their crop in return for cash payments and options on government held cotton.

Publish Acreage Figures.

At the same time that he authorizes a time extension for signing contracts, Wallace will make public the figures showing the number of acres growers have agreed to take out of production up to today. State extension directors were instructed today to forward their latest totals to the secretary.

The campaign, under way during the last two weeks, was to have ended Saturday night, but numerous delays, particularly in distributing blank forms to growers, made it impossible to give all of them a chance to act on the proposal. There are nearly two million cotton growers and Wallace wishes to have each of them given an adequate opportunity to act before the campaign is closed. Wallace desires to reduce the crop by at least three million bales.

Maximum Processing Tax.

A processing tax aimed to raise about 100 million dollars to provide funds for the cash payments will be put into effect about Aug. 1, at the maximum rate, which is expected to be about 4 cents a pound.

Meanwhile farm officials looked forward as keenly as operators at market centers for tomorrow's first official cotton report of this year. It will be made public by the crop reporting board at 11 o'clock this morning, eastern standard time, and will provide the government's first estimate of this year's cotton acreage.

The estimate will be as of July 1 and will not include any compilation of the offers to reduce acreage made in the cotton campaign.

LINCOLN LIFE HALTS SALE OF ALL CITY AND FARM REAL ESTATE

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 7.—[Special.]—Arthur F. Hall, president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company, said today the firm is temporarily withdrawing all sale offers on city and farm property owned by the company.

"No attempt will be made to dispose of these acquired properties until there is definite indication that real estate values have materially increased," he said.

The action is intended to allow property owners to take advantage of the provisions of the farm loan act and the home owners' loan act, he explained. Elimination of dumping will help the real estate market, he said.

BOARD OF TRADE ORDERS REPORT ON BIGGER LONGS

All Grains Sell Off After Early Spurt.

Inflation talk was in the air, and other news apparently counted for little. An overbought condition developed on the bulge, however, and with the forecast suggesting scattered showers likely over the greater part of the grain belt, the markets eased sharply in the later trading and closed well toward the bottom.

Prices Lower at Close.

Final trades were at net losses of ⅞ to 1¼ cents on wheat, 1⅝ to 2⅛ cents on corn, ¾ to 1½ cents on oats, and 1 to 1⅛ cents on barley, while rye was ⅝ cents higher to ¾ cents lower.

The rapidity of the advance in the leading grains was said by brokers and commission houses to have attracted a world of scattered profit taking by smaller traders who were heavy buyers when prices were much lower.

The professional grain speculator is generally puzzled by the continued strength shown in the grain markets and has turned extremely conservative regarding trading operations at the present time. To many the markets have acted strained for several days.

May Corn to 74 Cents.

July corn closed at 60 to 60¼ cents with September 63¾ to 64 cents; December, 68⅛ to 68⅜ cents, and May at 73½ to 74 cents. July wheat finished at 96⅝ to 96¾ cents; September, 99⅝ to 99¾ cents; December at $1.02¼ to $1.02⅜, and May at $1.06⅜ to $1.06½. July oats were 45⅝ cents, and September 46⅛ to 46¼ cents at the last. July rye acted somewhat tight and finished at 76⅞ cents, selling at a new high for the season during the day, while September closed at 80 cents. July barley was 55½ cents and September 58½ cents at the last.

Crop comments on wheat attracted little attention, but the trade had a new idea in oats. A farmer at Elwin, Ill., was reported to have burned his oats crop in an effort to destroy the chinch bugs and prevent them from migrating into corn fields.

Liverpool wheat closed 4 to 4⅜ cents a bushel higher, the advance in sterling exchange being a factor. Winnipeg wheat closed ¼ to ½ cent higher in Canadian funds.

BUTTER AND EGGS REACH NEW HIGHS FOR YEAR

Butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange broke price and volume records in a great bullish demonstration. Trading in the first hour witnessed new high levels for the season and for a time the advance was well maintained. Realizing and hedging sales slowed down the advance somewhat, although butter closed with net gains of ¼@½c and eggs ¼c. The volume of trading was in excess of any day this year, there being a total of 811 cars sold, 291 cars of butter and 520 cars of eggs. There was 1 car of butter delivered. Prices follow:

LARD PRICES ADVANCE TO SEVEN CENT LEVEL

Lard trading was active, with a higher range, commission houses being good buyers and profit takers and hedgers the principal sellers. October advanced to $7, a jump of 25 cents over the previous day's close with a finish of 2½ cents under the top and a net gain of 22½ cents. Other futures were all higher sharply over the $7 line and closed with fair net gains.

Cash lard was 22½ cents higher at $6.97½ for regular, with loose 22½ cents up at $6.07, and leaf with a net gain of 12½ cents at $6.07. Bellies were 5 to 10 cents up on futures, with cash lots higher at $7.37. Liverpool lard was lower, export clearances of 206,900 pounds of lard. Prices follow:

COTTON OPENS AT NEW HIGH; CLOSE LOWER ON PROFIT SELLING

Action of the cotton market was peculiar yesterday. Chicago started at a new high for the season at an advance of around $2 a bale over Thursday's close. The bulge brought selling and a decline with only a small recovery, the close being at net losses on futures in Chicago of 20 to 24 points with other markets off 19 to 22 points.

Spots declined 20 points, equal to $1 a bale, while losses on futures slightly exceeded the dollar level. New York spots were 10.30c; New Orleans 10.20c, while Galveston and Houston were 10.15c. Liverpool closed 16 points net lower.

HOG PRICES RISE TO BEST OF WEEK; SHIPPERS BUYING

Cattle and Lambs Join in Advance.

Highest prices of the week were paid for hogs yesterday when the bulk of the run of 19,000 head turned at prices that ranged from 5 to 10 cents above the previous day. However, the advance was lost after midsession, and closing quotations were steady with the previous day.

Broad outside demand again featured the trade. Shippers took 2,500 head, bringing the total for the week to 12,000, against only 6,000 a week ago, and 8,000 for the corresponding period two weeks ago. Receipts for this week, excluding today's run, amounted to 117,700 head, against 147,079 for the first five days of last week. In other words, slightly more than 10 per cent of this week's receipts were taken by shippers, as compared with only four per cent a week ago.

Top Reaches $4.75.

Yesterday's top of $4.75 was the highest since June 20, and the average again showed 5 cents advance and moved up to $4.50. The top price was paid for 220 to 250 pound butchers. The bulk of the crop sold at $4.40 to $4.65, big packers buying theirs from $4.60 downward. The early estimate calls for 12,000 head of hogs at Chicago today.

The cattle market closed the week in a strong position after making up the heavy losses suffered Wednesday when receipts were excessive. Most classes of steers closed strong, compared with a week earlier. The top of $6.70 was paid by Armour for choice 1,253 pound steers, the bulk turning at $4.75 to $6.00, with only a limited number of steers offered.

Demand for Feeders.

Good demand for stocker and feeder cattle, the opposite of a week ago, featured the trade. Replacement cattle prices are considered favorable in relation to quotations of fat stock. All classes of the stock were scarce and strong Friday. Fat cows sold mostly from $3.00 to $3.75. Fed heifers bulked at $5.00 to $5.50 this week, the best here yesterday bringing $5.35. Bull and veal prices remained unchanged at the recent sharp advance.

Lamb prices are sharing the bullishness of other live stock markets and strong to 25 cents higher prices were the rule again yesterday. The top for fancy native lambs was $8.65, the highest since June 13. The bulk of the good lambs brought $8.00 to $8.50 to packers.

One development in the market of late is the increasing demand among farmers and breeders for breeding ewes. Buyers are willing to pay $4.00 to $4.50 for yearlings, twos and threes, but are not finding enough to fill their orders.

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, July 7.—Demand in the Boston wool market continued fair today, with prices pointing upward. Stocks of wool here and abroad were below normal, giving unusual strength to the price structure with heavy consumption expected to continue for the summer.
